UA Urges Limit On Tuition Hike

Brisbon Named as HUP Administrator

BY ROBERT WOJTOWICZ

The Undergraduate Assembly at its meeting last Monday passed a resolution urging the administration to limit the student's expected tuition hike to 12 percent.

At the time of the proposed resolution, a new University Police was also named. Marc Shandler was appointed by UA chairman Allison Accurso.

News Analysis

said the figures had been drawn from a survey of the "top 20 percent of academic affairs." But research done by this writer shows that the figures were not up the 12 percent goal and even suggested the 4.7 percent average for the 1980-81 tuition rate from being raised above that figure.

Shandler, who serves on the University Board of Trustees, said the figures were "inaccurate" figures.

Believing Fire Alarms

By Andy Goldberg

Don't get alarmed. If there were no fire alarms, we'd be in a world of fire.

A fire alarm can help solve the problem of the headache, but it cannot eliminate the source of the problem. A fire alarm is not a cure-all. It's a tool that helps reduce the risk of fire. Fire alarms are not a substitute for fire safety education. If you have questions or concerns about fire safety, please contact your residence hall director or the office of Residential Living.

Illegal Scalding Incidents Wharton

In the fall of 1979, some students noticed that there were no fire alarms in their residence halls. This was a disturbing trend. The students did not want to live in a world where fire alarms were not present. They wanted to be able to trust the university to provide them with a safe and secure environment.

Remember, fire alarms are an important part of the fire protection system. They help protect you from the dangers of fire. Be sure to check your fire alarm regularly. If you have any questions or concerns about fire safety, please contact your residence hall director or the office of Residential Living.

Concentration’ Program Being Developed By FAS

By ROBERT T. SHEPARD

A new interdisciplinary program, which will enable FAS students to take four courses in another school to then double count, is being developed by FAS Associate Dean Elliott Mossman. Mossman and Friday that he is developing a program of "University concentrations," which would allow FAS students to take two FAS courses and four non-FAS courses in other concentrations. Notation of the concentration would appear on the student’s transcript.

"In the interest of helping our students to professional and career focus, I feel the need for the bridge between liberal arts education and their areas, " Mossman said.

"I want to make sure we do provide those interdisciplinary programs that we don’t provide the liberal arts education in... In the case of studies, one might say it is a good idea to create modes of University concentrations, but also to recognize them in the academic columns of the transcript,” Mossman said.

We added that the program, which would begin in spring, would take three years to develop.

"I want to make sure we do have these interdisciplinary programs that we don’t provide the liberal arts education in... but I want to make sure FAS students have the full benefit of One University," Mossman said.

FAS Dean Robert Dyson said that the new concentration will give the student "an opportunity to look at an area of expertise that makes something to the student’s background.

"We have one pioneer (student) in the design and structural technology dual-degree program, and we’d love to have a pioneer in the other one," he said.

Mossman said some departments already offer special study from both FAS and graduate schools, including urban studies, biological basis of behavior, anderonics.

Two dual-degree programs already exist between FAS and the Engineering School. The science, technology, and society program "combines the resources of the history of science department and the Engineering School," Mossman said, while the program in design and structural technology "combines the history, design of the environment, and civil and urban engineering departments.

Students holding baccalaureate, master's or professional degrees are invited to apply to the Graduate Program in Preventive Medicine at The Ohio State University. The program opens career opportunities in the study of the health of human populations, the investigation of the causes of disease, and the planning of strategies of prevention and health delivery. There is growing demand for persons educated in these fields. Our Department offers the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees.

Students in our program have come from such diverse backgrounds as the biological and social sciences, engineering, education, and the humanities, as well as the statistical disciplines. Our Department offers the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees.

Mermaids Pioneer New Hopes in Debut

The introductory meet of the year has always been a stepping stone toward the season. In 1986, the mermaids anticipated a stepping stone toward the season. It compares Wagner every day, but this time it is could have a small match, the lead was in the off-season. Neither Lauren nor the record to be set in the early in the season. Wagner will mean to be set in the early on the team's future performance.
