King's Memory Lives at Irvine

By MARQO COHEN

"You're not what you're going to be until you're there," said the late Martin Luther King, Jr., to President Samuel Sylvester.

Three words, spoken by FAS Associate Dean Mary Meyerson Williams, com- memorated the sentiments of last night's celebration of Martin Luther King's birthday—part of the pride in the contributions of which students, faculty and administrators at the University spend each year.

Meyerson Williams brought to life the sentiment of last night's celebration of Martin Luther King's birthday, philosophy department Chairman Elizabeth Russell-Faithan readiness to present the potential plan.

King participated in her graduate seminar in the Ethics and Philosophy of History."It was a concept of search, said University President Samuel Sylvester. "We want to know what is going on in the history of our own time."

"I'm going to bring this as a message of to the students and the faculty.

Governors Declare Drought

TRENTON, N.J. - A drought emergency and a ban on non-essential water use in the Delaware River Basin was declared yesterday by the governors of New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

The ban affects more than 7 million people in those states, including Philadelphia and its suburbs, in the Delaware River Basin Commission, also voted unanimously to further reduce the amount of water released into the Delaware River. New York City, which has reservoirs in the basin area, was considering its own water restrictions, officials said.

Sunshine Books Finds a Home

By MARK COHEN

Sunshine Books, the University's largest student-owned bookstore, has found a new home in a renovated eatery and its employees, and improved, operations for owner Marc Falkowitz.

The move to a permanent residence at 126 S. 19th Street has meant expanded operation for owner Marc Falkowitz and his employees, and improved, operations for the University's Book Store.

The Books' former retail location at 301 S. 19th Street was cramped, and its operations were disrupted by the University-wide employees' strike.

Falkowitz started the company in September 1977. Because of a University-wide employees' strike, the Books were forced to shut down their entire enterprise.

At the new location, the Books have access to more comfortable space, and their employees can work without interruption.

Customers will continue to benefit from the Books' expanded space and improved operations.

Survey

"This is typical of the administrators' view that students are not a threat to the institution," Brown said. "We receive service, but for some reason, physical plant doesn't check to see that their services are being carried out well.

The sheer numbers of requests submitted during the first week of the fall semester usually cause a backlog, according to Lynn Hornet, associate director of physical plant.

"They're just not aware of the management problem" in the department, Hornet said.

Perspectives

Tuition Increase

The administration's projected 11 percent tuition increase sparked a great deal of ire last week with the University community, and the safe haven was in the fact that things that will not get any worse under any scenario. Although student leaders continue to make their displeasure known, they are realistic enough to credit the administration with two achievements.

First, the administration showed this spring on the line that the University had not raised its student tuition rates since 1982. Second, the administration carefully laid the groundwork for students to voice their concerns, and although some students continue to be critical of the tuition increase, the atmosphere is more civi- lized this spring than last.

Journalism 101

It's your basic course in news reporting. It's learning the ropes, starting out as a writer. It's at the heart of every major journalism program in the country. But there is no journalism school at the University of Pennsylvania. No journalism department. Very few journalism courses. That's where we come in.

The Daily Pennsylvanian is the student-run newspaper of the University of Pennsylvania. And we can provide you with hands-on journalism experience you just can't find in a classroom. Our beat reporters and general assignment writers cover the campus, the city and the nation. Our sportswriters are there on the sidelines, following the action — wherever it is. And our photographers are there, too.

With the DP's Thursday magazine, 34th Street, readers get complete information on Philadelphia arts right along side the most thorough campus coverage of any Ivy League newspaper.

We'll show you all you need to know — right on the job. Unlike other college papers, we don't believe in special training programs for new staff members. We need news, sports, and feature writers. Columnists and cartoonists.

There are many different reasons to be a DP staffer, from enjoyable people and fun work, to practical experience if you're after a career in journalism. Our new computerized system for reporters and editors makes journalistic training at the DP even more valuable.

We are the journalism school of the University of Pennsylvania.

Minding the Business

The DP Business Office can also offer you practical and enjoyable experience you can't find in a classroom. And in a number of different ways.

Our advertising department can teach you things about sales that you'll never learn in a textbook. Our staff of sales representatives is constantly in touch with regular advertisers and always on the lookout for new prospects. And we never stop thinking about special projects and ideas. If you have experience in sales, come join us. And if you don't, we'll be more than happy to show you just what it takes to become a successful member of our team.

Our financial and credit offices can provide you with the opportunity to put your accounting and financial management skills to work. Together, the two offices manage the ins and outs of the DPs growing $300,000 budget. Staff members work as much or as little as they want, from a few hours every now and then to 40 hours a week and more.

Our production department can provide an outlet for your creative imagination. Staff members are responsible for the layout and design of all the ads in each DP. And if you don't know the difference between a pica and a point, don't fret. We'll teach you all you'll need to know. We're also looking for staff artists to provide artwork for our advertisements.

Put your knowledge to work. And have fun doing it. Join the Daily Pennsylvanian Business Staff.

Here's What You Do

Simply come to our introductory meeting today, January 16, at 4:30 p.m., at the DP offices at 4015 Walnut Street. Just follow the signs to the second floor. Or if you can't make it, call Scott Heller at 243-6585 Sunday through Thursday evenings.

Be a part of a tradition of excellence nearly a century long. And enjoy yourself at the same time. Join us. The Daily Pennsylvanian.

to be meaningful and not just cosmetic. The University needs to dedicate itself to the principles of Martin Luther King. It is in the best interest and future for all. We must rid ourselves of hatred and oppression.

Philadelphia Mayor George Rendell, a White House consultant, said, "Martin Luther King was my inspiration. "We can see my congregation." He urged thousands, "as idealists," he said. Meyerson then introduced Lowery, who insisted that "heroes as well should face the critical problems of the world."

"I thought at the time that it was the best way to judge the movement," he said. "I will not be an offense to the day, "I will not lead the wrong, I will not give a crooked one. "I don't want to start again."

The only disruption came at the beginning of the presentation, when an elderly woman sitting in the front row of the auditorium began to shout that "the black people..."

"The program also marked the first time in months that the monstrous monster that is the monstrous monster that is the monstrous monster that is the monstrous monster..."

"We must pay attention to minorities and others," said William Fontaine, whom Flowet introduced. Lowery, who insisted that "heroes as well should face the critical problems of the world."

Mermen: Is Upset Of Dartmouth Possible?

BY ANDREW G. SMITH

If Penn State insists that the Ivy League's top team is the one that comes out of this weekend's matches, the Quakers may just be up to the challenge. The Red and Blue, who have not won a meet against the Big Ten champion in many years, appear to be 100 percent focused on the challenge.

"I don't think we're looking too far ahead," said Brian Bosco, head coach of the fencing team. "I think we're just looking at what we have to do to win the meet.

"We have to be a little bit more focused on what we're doing and not what's happening to us.

"We have to be realistic about what we're doing and not what's happening to us.

Cagers Try to Snap 5 Year 'Nova Reign

By Bill Rome

Just as the sun is setting, the McNulty在同一时刻, the McNulty
Cager's gun is cocked and ready to fire. The guns are loaded with hopes that the 1981-82 team will be the team to bring down Villanova in the annual meeting of the Ivy League champions.

"We have some good freshmen who we've been waiting for," said Mulligan. "The important thing is to keep our spirits up and to keep working hard. We need to focus on our team and not worry about the future."

"The key to our success is teamwork," said McDevitt. "Each player has a role and we need to rely on each other to excel."

"I believe in our team," said Mulligan. "We have the talent and the drive to make a difference."

Despite the injuries and the early season hiccups, the men's gymnastics team, led by Bill "Chops" Westfield, comes in good spirits for the upcoming season. "We need to stay focused and make a commitment to training," said Westfield. "The season will be tough, but we're ready to face the challenges."

LEADING MEN - Craig Robinson of Pennsylvania is the leading edge of the 1981-82 men's basketball season. Robinson is averaging 16.5 points per game, leading the Ivy League in scoring. His performance has been crucial to the Quakers' success. "Robinson is our key player," said coach Bob Weinhauer. "He brings a lot of energy and leadership to the team."

LEADING WOMEN - Golden Rose is the queen of the 1981-82 women's basketball season. Rose is averaging 20.2 points per game, leading the Ivy League in scoring. "Rose is our star," said coach Mike Keller. "She's the heart and soul of our team."

LEADING PULLS - Monday night at 10:00 in McClelland Hall for all those interested in joining. Autographed pictures of U.M., D.W., and T.L. will be given by judges. Leinjuru, his injury to his foot, has hampered his performance. "I'm hoping to be back on track soon," said Leinjuru. "I'm working hard to get back to my best form."

There are some big challenges ahead. The biggest one, of course, is the number of injuries. We've had a few this season, but we're working hard to overcome them. Then there's the improvement of our team. We're still a young group, and we need to keep improving. We've had some good performances, but we also have some work to do."

"Our main focus is to get better every day," said Mulligan. "We need to be more consistent and work on our individual skills."
