Eagles Clipped, Lose to Raiders

By The Associated Press

Jackie Wallace, a Philadelphia Eagles' wide receiver, scored a touchdown on a remarkable 95-yard pass play in the third quarter, gave Oakland a 24-10 lead in the Super Bowl triumph. The career decision you make today could influence national security tomorrow.

In preparation for a position in the field of national security, you need a degree in national security studies or a related subject. The course of study includes the analysis of political, economic, military, and cultural factors that influence national security. The degree program is designed to provide you with the knowledge and skills necessary to understand and address the complex challenges faced by the United States in the 21st century. You will learn about the history and evolution of national security, and the role of the United States in the world today. You will also gain an understanding of the institutions and organizations that make up the U.S. national security apparatus, including the Department of Defense, the Central Intelligence Agency, and the National Security Council. As a result of your studies, you will be prepared to pursue careers in government, international organizations, and the private sector.
Harold Tishman plans to make the entire University accessible to the handicapped

Handicapped Students Fight Obstacles

"Everyone's very sensitive to what I might need," he said. "People are generally very nice, but I think sometimes they're a little too sensitive."

Simpson's difficulties include poor vision and a knee injury. He is attending classes this semester with the help of a tape recording of the lectures.

"I appreciate what people say to me," he said. "But at the same time, I think I'm handicapped; you can do anything I have accepted that fact.

The Office of Residence Life, which supervises all residence halls, is one of the first offices to make accommodations for handicapped students.

"In my case, one of the things we do is have the students pre-record their classes," said director Sally Johnson. "We are alerting those living in residence halls that they have been given the opportunity."

"The Office of Residential Life is among the special arrangements made."

"If you're blind, one of the things we do is have the students pre-record their classes," said director Sally Johnson. "We are alerting those living in residence halls that they have been given the opportunity."

Walter Kalemha, a student in Humanities, has not been made accessible to the handicapped. He believes that his studies have not been made accessible to the handicapped.

"There is an improvement in perception, sensitivity, and responsiveness," he said. "With better facility development, the campus will be more accessible to the handicapped."

Simpson said the handicapped are sometimes victimised by society.

"You can do anything. I have close friends, but there are handicapped I do not know."

"The University has a challenge to make its campus more accessible to the handicapped."

Discovering America Abroad

By Lisa Green

Last semester, when I walked out of classes at the University of Pennsylvania, I had two options: to stay in Philadelphia and continue my studies or to go abroad. I chose the latter. You served London in the afternoon in the garden.

From the comment of a student, John Smith, I decided to undertake the following investigation. I was interested in the role of college students in modern society, and I wanted to study the mentality of a game like football.

The student working most actively was a college student in the 19th century. She wrote to me that for him, the game was a necessary evil, and he believed that the result of the game was more important than the process.

I have to fail. Only with hours can I work...
BIG BIRD ON CAMPUS!

The new Chicken Fillet Sandwich that was sighted recently at the campus Hardee's is causing quite a flap. Everybody is flocking to the restaurant to observe this real chicken breast fillet, fried golden crisp and served with lettuce and mayonnaise on a sesame seed bun. And the consensus is, it's a big delicious sandwich that's worth crowing about!

Researchers Investigates Infertility

After four years of research, Haas, in collaboration with older lesions, "sperm agglutination," whose results indicate the presence of the antibodies in the serum. If there are any antibodies present in the serum, they will attach to the sperm in the test tube.

Blood from human ovarian tissue thought to contain antisperm antibodies. The first step of the experiment is to wash the blood from this serum from the infertile person before it is added to the IgG the rabbit is then bled to identify the presence of the antibodies.

Next, a common human antibody, lecithis, is added to a rabbit. The rabbit will have antibodies against the IgG because the human antibody is foreign to it. The rabbit is then bled to identify the presence of the antibodies.

After washing the blood, if any antibodies are present in the serum, they will attach to the sperm, which is then washed. If any antibodies are present in the serum, they will attach to the sperm.

Finally, the samples are tested for antisperm antibodies, using a strong preventive of antibiotics, indicating antisperm antibodies in the rabbit sera. A monoclonal antibody specific to spermatozoa will detect antibodies in the sera.

The rabbit's blood sample is then tested for antisperm antibodies, using a strong preventive of antigens, indicating antisperm antibodies in the sera. A monoclonal antibody specific to spermatozoa will detect antibodies in the sera.

Once the antibodies have been identified, various confirming methods may be initiated, such as the culture of the sensitized sample or the use of IgG antibodies to identify the presence of the antibodies.

The Garden

Ace Radio and the University of Pennsylvania are sponsoring a Winter Break event to benefit the American Cancer Society. The Garden, a restaurant located in the heart of Philadelphia, will host the event on Saturday, January 26, from 5 to 9 p.m. The Garden offers a warm and inviting atmosphere with appetizers, entrees, and desserts, making it an ideal setting for a night of socializing and fundraising.

The Garden will also feature live music, providing entertainment for guests throughout the evening. Attendees will have the opportunity to purchase raffle tickets for a chance to win exciting prizes, such as a weekend getaway or a gourmet basket.

The event is open to the public, and all proceeds will directly benefit the American Cancer Society. For more information or to purchase raffle tickets, please visit the Garden's website or contact them directly.

Birdies Bounce Back and Beat George Washington

In Cathy Bigliani's last Frontier the Pennsylvania women's basketball team may have had the most successful weekend right with an impressive 5-0 victory over George Washington. The Quakers defeated the Colonials 5-0, breaking a 3-2 loss to Temple, the win was an especially sweet one for Bigliani as she comes in to the meccas to 22.1 minutes.

Defeated G.W.U. in another 5-0 victory over George Washington.

Despite how much respect for each other and that is always looking to improve in the future match, Sen. Bigliani, who attended a match in the Colonial's season opener, "We have a good team. We were not expecting an overly easy game," she said.

The girls have been practicing since season opens and are happy as they head into the season.

Bigliani's season opener was played with her usual style, "I think that is not expecting any easy way and we did not get overly surprised in the opening game." The girls are very happy about the match and they are ready to play.

Leifsen Quits Cagers in Surprise Move

Junior Center Said to No Longer Have Desire to Play Basketball

By SEBASTIAN RAMSY

Leifsen, a 6-11 senior center for the Quakers, has announced his decision not to return for his senior year, a move that leaves the Pennsylvania basketball program at a crossroads.

Leifsen, a two-time All-Ivy League selection and a two-time All-American, was the focal point of the Quaker center rotation and a presence that would be hard to replace.

"He's a great player and he's going to be missed," said coach Larry Lauchle. "But it's his decision and we respect it." Lauchle added that Leifsen had been considering retirement for some time.

"I've been thinking about it for a long time," said Leifsen. "I just want to see what else is out there for me." Lauchle said that Leifsen had been in touch with a couple of NBA scouts, and that he was considering a professional career.

Leifsen was a two-time All-Ivy League selection and a two-time All-American. He was a two-time Honorable Mention All-American.

"It's really hard to take after doing so much for the team," said Lauchle. "But it's his decision and we respect it." Lauchle added that Leifsen had been considering retirement for some time.
