Proposition Equalizes Staff Tuition Benefits

By PETER CANELLOS

All University employees would receive the same amount of tuition benefit under a proposal by the Personnel Department for staff only. The proposal would establish a new budget for the Personnel Department and a new interpretation of the Personnel Department's financial obligations. The proposal would also include provisions for the reduction of the tuition benefit for faculty and staff members who have received the benefit in the past.

The Student Activities Council (SAC) has approved a new policy for the administration of financial aid. Under the new policy, SAC will administer the financial aid programs on a departmental basis. This will ensure that the financial aid programs are administered in a consistent and uniform manner.

PROPOSITION SUPPORT

The new policy will allow SAC to better meet the financial needs of the student body. It will also allow SAC to ensure that students are receiving the aid they need.

COMMITTEE NOTES

SAC has been working on this issue for several months. The new policy was approved by the SAC executive board and will be presented to the University for review.

Councilman Street: City Policies Help Rich, Exploit Poor

By HANS PINHA

City policies are designed to benefit the rich and not the well-off or the middle class, according to City Councilman Hans Pinha.

"Every policy designed for the well-off and the rich is designed to benefit only the rich and the well-off," Pinha said. "The city is spending millions of dollars on financial aid programs for the rich, while the middle class and the well-off are not getting the same benefits.

In the past, the city has spent millions of dollars on financial aid programs for the rich, while the middle class and the well-off have not been getting the same benefits. It is time for the city to start providing financial aid programs that benefit the middle class and the well-off.

The name is embellished by a plethora of terms, a mishmash of small-scale relationships, meaningful or not, that are a constant challenge in this world of film. The Alliance to Screen, as it is known, screens one film a week in Irvine Auditorium on Fridays, and its mission is to "encourage a more accepting spirit of film, and encourage a new way of looking at film." The group aims to show films that are different from those shown in the usual venues, and to bring about a new way of thinking about film. The Alliance to Screen is a part of the broader movement of film societies, and it is one of the many groups that have emerged in recent years to promote a more diverse and inclusive approach to cinema. The Alliance to Screen also seeks to foster a sense of community and collaboration among film enthusiasts, and to provide a platform for filmmakers and film students to showcase their work. The Alliance to Screen is just one of many film societies on campus, and it is an important part of the overall film culture on campus. However, despite the challenges, the Alliance to Screen remains committed to its mission and continues to screen films that are different from those shown in the usual venues. Fighting the Reagan Chainsaw

Despite ample notice that President Reagan's proposed cuts in aid to higher education would deprive college students of living expenses and raise tuition, the congressmen and senators sitting in the nation's capital and not even notice these drastic cuts are in effect.

While the Reagan administration has laid out its strategy with the assurance that the cuts in aid will be offset by increased fees, the budget cuts are not foregone conclusions. The millions of students and their parents are only now beginning to realize that the colleges and universities throughout the nation and fight those cuts. With the help of the largest lobbyist in the world, the National Association of Broadcasters, the proposed cuts in aid to higher education represent a disaster for higher education, potentially closing the colleges and universities and costing the nation its soul.

For the poor, Reaganomics is a cruel and inhumane system that will force the less fortunate onto the very margins of society. For the rich, it is a system that rewards those who have already been successful. For the middle class, it is a system that promises to make their lives worse.

The ultimate proof of the inequities of Reaganomics comes in the form of the unkind cuts made by a mean man. The crudest cuts of all, however, are those cuts that affect those who are already the most vulnerable.

Bennett Hall: A Symbol of Racial Freedom and Equality

Bennett Hall, the University's new residence hall for African American students, is a symbol of the University's commitment to racial equality. Founded in 1882, the University has a long history of fighting against discrimination and segregation. Bennett Hall is a part of the University's continued efforts to create a more inclusive and welcoming environment for all students.

The dormitory is located on North Campus, just a short walk from the student union and other campus facilities. It is a modern, comfortable, and safe place for students to live, study, and socialize.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The $275 million Tomlinson Health Sciences Center is a major milestone in the University's efforts to improve its facilities and services for students. The center will provide state-of-the-art facilities for research, education, and patient care. It will also offer a range of services to improve the health and well-being of the local community.

The center will house several departments, including the Department of Biomedical Sciences, the Department of Health and Human Sciences, and the Department of Nursing. It will also include a new hospital for patients with serious and chronic illnesses.

To the Editor:

The University of Pennsylvania's 175th birthday celebration, held on February 28th, was a wonderful event. The festivities included a parade, a concert, and a fireworks display. The University community came together to celebrate this important milestone in the University's history.

The event was a testament to the University's commitment to excellence in all areas, from research and scholarship to community service and civic engagement. It was a time of pride and joy for all who are associated with the University.

When asked last Thursday, the ULU stated that "we feel it was not necessary."

"The employer is under "severe pressure to recognize the union," said Forgione.

Robinson defended his client's signing of the agreement. "When a copy of the document was produced for Forgione, he acknowledged that it was the probably identical to what he signed."

"I don't know if they are the best people to represent my people because I don't know the ULU," Forgione said. "They haven't explained to me what they are."

Robinson said a copy of the ULU's complaints is on file with the Department of Labor.

According to Forgione, the union is "interfering with, restraining and coercing employees in the exercise of their rights and thereby has engaged in unfair labor practices."

"The ULU should be involved in bargaining," Forgione said yesterday, "but not in unfair labor practices."

"We also believe the corporation is not involved in it," Forgione said. "The department is on file with the Department of Labor."

A legal affairs official for Baskin-Robbins said yesterday that "we are not involved in it (the labor dispute). It is between a store owner and a union."

A legal affairs official for Baskin-Robbins also said that "we believe the corporation is not involved in unfair labor practices."

According to Robinson, Forgione was "in favor of and his workers coerced him into signing the document." Forcione denied receiving any help from the Baskin-Robbins parent company.

"Suppose I was a labor union and I was trying to organize a store and this was disrupting business," Robinson said yesterday. "I would like to meet you."

American Burn Hawks In OT, Retains ECC Lead

By BOB SAPORTO

For the early arrival in the Pens-ylvania Conference, it was a do-or-die moment for the Delaware Blue Hens. The game was a winner-take-all battle for the Delaware Blue Hens (8-9, 4-1) and the Penn Quakers (11-6, 2-3) in the final moments.

The Blue Hens were in control of the game, leading 72-61 with 5:30 left in the game. However, the Penn Quakers didn't give up and went on a 11-0 run to tie the game at 73-73 with 1:10 left.

The game went into overtime, and the Blue Hens were able to hold off the Quakers, winning 75-73.

The win gives the Blue Hens a share of the Delaware Division title and keeps them in the championship hunt. The Blue Hens are now 8-9 overall and 4-1 in the Delaware Division.

The Penn Quakers are now 11-6 overall and 2-3 in the Delaware Division. They will look to regroup and get back to work in preparation for their next game.

The Blue Hens and Quakers will both be in action this weekend. The Blue Hens will face the Temple Owls (10-8, 3-2) on Saturday, while the Quakers will face the Yale Bulldogs (11-7, 3-2) on Sunday.

The Blue Hens are looking to bounce back from their loss to the Owls last week, while the Quakers will be looking to improve their record against the Bulldogs.

The Blue Hens and Quakers have already played each other twice this season, with the Blue Hens winning both games.

The Blue Hens will look to continue their winning ways and keep their chances of winning the Delaware Division alive.

The Quakers will look to improve their record and keep their hopes alive for a spot in the championship game.

Cagers Beat Princeton, 52-43, Gain Share of First

The Penn players echoed their coach's sentiments. "They in- fluenced the difference between this game and the Tigers' 42-point win at home six weeks ago," said Reynolds. "It worked two ways," Angelo Simkus explained. "They in- fluenced our game, too. We played a great game ourselves." Simkus with 12 points.

The Tigers, in fact, did not show a single shot that all night. "We didn't even make many last time we played them," said one Princeton player. "But we just didn't stop. Tonight they did a better job." That probably ruffled up the white fresh faces. "We were surprised that many people cheering for Penn," one of the Princeton freshmen opposing Penn. "I don't know why we..."

"After practice yesterday, he said with a smile, "I think he would be able to play tonight."

said coach Bob Wright. "The last time I saw him, all right, I'll say that." He can't play any worse than he did last year, but he can play better tonight.

"I couldn't have played much against the second half but if I did it would have been in the last two minutes of going to the boards and doing that all the time."

"I think we have the best fans in the country," high scorer Michael Brown said. "When you see 10,000 fans and 8,000 fans, there's nothing like it. Every big game needs every single one of them."

"It's a shame we lost one (foul) to vecam for Princeton," said Wright. "We've got to move the ball better and stop the fast breakers."

"If one guy gets his mind on something to prove," Willard said in Sports Editor of the Daily Pennsylvania.

"Better Democrat College Basketball Fans in Nation"
First Things First: Cagers Win It

BY BILL ROMES

Without doubt, there are few things more frustrating for a good Penn basketball team facing Princeton. It’s like trying to sop up a leak with a sponge while the tap is running. You try to get frustrated somewhere in the middle.

Press coach Bob Weinhauer describes the experience as one big game of chess. "All the pieces are out there," he says. "But the pieces are also things, and sometimes they’re not." He asks that P.0.9. Palmero notes a who a hundred games on campus this season in the last nine months, as he and four Penn guards, he said couldn’t make a single shot. But this time, he said, little could make a single shot. But the Big Ten’s junior guard said he was able to make a single shot.

Cagers have a lot of natural talent, and the offense ends in the first eight minutes. But it is not enough to win. Penn has a lot of natural talent, and the offense ends in the first eight minutes and struggles to win by 15-13 in the first half.

The Red and Blue responded with a 3-5 run to end the first half. Junior forward Michael Brown scored 15 points in the first half, and he was the high scorer for the Quakers. The game was over at the start of the second half as Brown scored 15 points and the Red and Blue outscored the Quakers 15-13 in the second half.

The game would also end with a Hall buzzer-beater as he canned a 30-foot shot at the buzzer. The game ended with the Red and Blue ahead 58-57.

Penn coach Bob Weinhauer was on the floor in the final seconds. He jumped into the air and said, "We won’t be able to score in the last three minutes."

"We were outscored in the first half. We won’t be able to score in the last three minutes."

Sometimes A LITTLE Can Go Far

With The Game On The Line, Paul Ices A Win

In every Penn-Princeton game there are big factors and then there are LITTLE factors, sometimes the LITTLE factors can be the difference between winning and losing.

But the LITTLE factors were there all night as the Quakers broke open a two-point game by hitting nine of 10 free throws in the last five minutes and nine seconds.

Nevertheless, things weren’t all that different from the Penn-Princeton game a year ago. Princeton didn’t have the ball out of bounds at the right end of the court when a rebounded scored Steve Mills. Penn then held the ball to the last two minutes before Little was fouled and scored two free throws. Paul Little of the St. Joseph’s American.] The game would also end with a Hall buzzer-beater as he canned a 30-foot shot at the buzzer. The game ended with the Red and Blue ahead 58-57.

Near the end of the game, Steve Mills was fouled and scored two free throws. The Quakers’ victory puts them in a tie with the Tigers for the Ivy League with four games remaining.
