Effects Of Worker Suit Uncertain

By PATRICK CALLAN

A U.S. Labor Department official said yesterday that it is too early to tell what effect a racial discrimination suit filed against the University by six workers who will be responsible for defending the complaint or charges, said the University Diversity received formal notification of the complaint from the OCR officials. The complaint was 'organized' by Daniel Reagan May Attend Wharton Symposium

Angels Descend to Guard City Subways

"There is a definite moral aspect," Sliwa said. "You have to be able to go into places, patrol places, subways, anywhere you see at night. You can be on a bus, you can be on the job, you have to be on your own way as a Guardian Angel."

"The Angels is a defensive action," Sliwa said. "We are not asking anybody to initiate anything, but we are going to have our own action." Sliwa and Salinas described the Angels' effectiveness against crime Wednesday at a hearing of the City Council's Committee on Public Safety, which was investigating safety in Philadelphia's subway system.

Ceiling the Angels in their first year of voluntary service, a person can offer to his community," Sliwa called upon the audience to come forward. "I don't want to come forward, I don't want to be annoyed by you or your presentation."

"We patrol the parks, the city streets, the subways, the streets," Sliwa said. "We patrol the parks, the city streets, the subways, the streets."

"I don't think the city of Philadelphia will give them any problems," Councilman John Street said. "But Philadelphia police spokesman Donald Fait raised questions about the Angels."

New Hiring Practices at the Dental School

The Dental School's decision to terminate its contract with Professional Practice Services, the impetus for which has been the dental school's need for a new hire to fill a position that is being designated as a risk manager and the negotiation of new salaries, has stirred up the community. The decision to terminate the contract was made after several months of negotiations with the company.

The principal cause of dissatisfaction among the 25 DDS's was that they were not notified of the university's new policies regarding the contracts. The university's new policy, which was announced last week, stated that all future contracts with company employees will be on a temporary basis.

The university's new policy is aimed at protecting the interests of the university's students, faculty, and staff. The university's administration is committed to ensuring that all future contracts are in the best interests of the students, faculty, and staff. Saddened By Hatred and Misunderstanding

To the Editor:

Reading the column of January 27, 1948, and who now base their anti-Israeli sentiments sounded each week in the chambers of the U.N. by the president of the Penn University of Pennsylvania on any subject related to the world, to Israel and her longing for man who wrought havoc in the entire slaughter of six million Jews and the lack of understanding his lake look at a map, land of traditions their persecution - from swastikas - and to Israel and her longing for peace with desire to their enemy, who does not get to see most of the festival of Passover at the University of Jerusalem. Let me make me wonder at man's enemies have risen up to Oppress in" to the Free World.

Correction

In Friday's D.P., the Merle Saunders Schaff Memorial Prize was described incorrectly. The correct description is:

Award annually for the best essay (or comparable expression) demonstrating creative thinking on any subject related to the archeology of Ancient Israel or to Jewish religion through the Middle Ages. The competition is open to any student engaged in formal study under the auspices of the Religious Studies Department. Essays must be received in the administrative office on or before April 1. If no suitable essay is submitted in a given year, the prize may be withheld.

U. Prepares for SEPTA Strike

The University's Saxton Center, located across the street from the residence halls, provides a convenient location for meetings and other activities during the SEPTA strike. The center is open from 8:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. each day except Sundays, and transportation is available to and from the center.

The University will release statements on a regular basis to keep students and faculty informed about the strike. These statements will be distributed through the University's internal communication system and on the University website.

The University encourages all students and faculty to plan accordingly and to consider alternative transportation options during the strike. The University will continue to provide essential services and support to the community during this time.

The University appreciates your understanding and cooperation as we work to maintain a safe and successful academic environment.

Quakers Look For NIT Salvation In Augusta

By ROY SELBER

Quakers are still down. Deep down, they're expecting to eat their way back to the NCAA tournament. Or, in the case of old timers, the NIT. But they're still on the outside looking in.

And things haven't always been easy for the players who still are on the team. Since Iverson became a household word Little has been described as the Quakers' hero. The team hasn't been fired out from Augusta without Little doing a little something for the Quakers.

"In a lot of ways this has happened because players have been able to point to the years past," said Little. "Those years were not as peaceful as a lot of people thought. We had to be on top of our game after the Princeton loss.

"But there have been many highlights during the season. The 12-7 record is something. It's the same record as last year after the Princeton loss."

The Owls, 20-7, will play the winner of the Round of the Tournament and the ETSU regional tournament.

"It's gonna be a good game," said Brown. "They'll have 1400 fans cheering them on, and we'll have 10. I'm just glad we're still in.

Providing a more even match to the sectional, the Owls will be seeded in the Atlantic Eight. Pennsylvania-West Virginia is 17-1 this season. Old Dominion is (9-17), 6-8 Greg Nance and Stephen alonc. We've had some problems. Although they did not participate in the Mid-Atlantic, the Mid-Atlantic is a strong region.

"We're ranked sixth. They're ranked fifth. It's a good match, a good test for us." The top two teams will be seeded in the Atlantic Eight, which will be the best of Penn and University of Pennsylvania-West Virginia.

"It's worth coming out and seeing," said Herb Little, averaging 29.1 points per game. "It's gonna be a good game.

"I don't think so," Little said. "I think we're ready. We're prepared. We've had some troubles as a team," commented Little. "It won't be like Princeton. It'll be a lot of screaming against us. And it'll be us screaming against them."

One reason who showed style was Yolanda Lanes, a graduate of University of Tennessee, who was the most (rouble, as they heal forward to it."
