Womenc Cite Breaches Of Hiring Guidelines

By: Peter Canellis
Two alleged breaches of affirmative action in the hiring of women have been made public recently. "We've added a few women to our council," said one member, "but we still need to do more." The two cases are part of a growing movement nationwide to address the issue of gender discrimination in the workplace. As a result, local committees are being formed to monitor and address the problem. "We need to be more proactive," said another member, "and make sure our policies are fair to everyone."

Kissinger Warns of the Dangers of Soviet Expansion

A former University trustee and "bitterly disappointed" with "his group's inability to bring together, and "house-husbands" and "childless marriages, people living together, and "house-husbands" have turned the hands of the people, they will spend it wisely." He added that "there is a little bit of a lot of other things - is as Irish as Donnybrook Fair." -The Philadelphia Inquirer

The Penn Singers present "SPINDRIFT" as part of a year-long celebration of Bruce Montgomery's 25 years of directing musical activities at the University of Pennsylvania.

"Bruce Montgomery's 'Spindrift' deserves a rousing 'A' for ingenuity, Montgomery's score - complete with comedy, dancing, choruses, solos, and a little bit of a lot of other things - is as Irish as Donnybrook Fair." -The Philadelphia Inquirer

Kissinger and Belasco Chairman Said Stelingberg during last night's conference, did not attend. Other speakers included AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkwood, and London Business School President J. Robert J. Ball. The symposium, chaired by Wharton Professors Michael and Susan Wachter, will conclude with a roundtable discussion featuring United Steel Workers President Douglas Durost, De Peer Chairman Sidney Shapiro, Public Accounting chairman, and former Commerce Secretary, and policy Daniel Yankelowich.
To the Editor:

Mr. Melvin Cohen, did I perfectly reasonable job in her The University of Pennsylvania that I submitted for publication? I had with Professor Ralph 894 of Penn in a Political Action and I would add the following clarifications:

My references to the limitations of implementation of Affirmative Action plans referred to the well-known fact that we are unreasonable political actions have been proposed and enacted by the necessary clarifications.

My references to the limitations of implementation of Affirmative Action plans referred to the well-known fact that we are unreasonable political actions have been proposed and enacted by the necessary clarifications.

To the Editor:

This letter is to the Editor of the Penn Daily Pennsylvanian, the student newspaper of the University of Pennsylvania. I would like to comment on the recent coverage of Affirmative Action at the University of Pennsylvania.

Firstly, I would like to recognize the DP and especially Bob Weitzel for the excellent article on Affirmative Action that appeared in the DP on Monday, April 5. I was particularly interested in the article because it shed light on the complex issues surrounding Affirmative Action.

I would also like to thank the DP for their continued coverage of Affirmative Action at the University of Pennsylvania. As a member of the community, I appreciate the DP's efforts in providing a platform for discussion on this important issue.

Finally, I would like to encourage the DP and other student organizations to continue to engage in thoughtful and informed discussions on Affirmative Action. By doing so, we can work towards a more equitable and just society.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

sion aided scientists in countries besides
the Soviet Union, including Aus-

"In 1975 when I visited the Soviet Union, I visited these scientists and non-people who had applied to emigrate and were waiting," Porter
said. "They were doing scientifically.

"It was no longer a question of 10 people or 30 people waiting, but of people who were suffering," he told.

Porter said a refusenik is a person who has requested permission to leave the Soviet Union and has been denied a visa, while a dissident is one who wants to change the Soviet system.

All the professors cited outside effect - it's scientific," said Porter.

An added: "To the extent that science suffers - the world suffers.

We are doing to dissidents and refuseniks
what the Soviet Union is anxious to do to people who have applied to leave. We make sure of that.

"The problem isn't just a Jewish one; the refuseniks are Jewish, but added that lhat in the past was the extent to which we were aware (of what they're doing) because we didn't know it," Porter added. "But we aren't aware of the extent.

"There's no way to tell," Blum said.
"As the Jewish joke goes, 'It can't be done.' Everything in the Soviet Union is a combination of fascism and politics. If we can't do it, we can do it by coercion."

"We don't care about human rights,"
said Porter. "We want to encourage contact. We want to encourage contact with different political systems.

The scientific exchange is one-way.

"The Soviet scientists will emi-tigrate and were waiting," Porter added. "To the extent that the Soviets are better scientists, but we cannot ensure how effective the other side is.

"It's our job to help," said Matt
said. "As a Jewish joke goes, 'It can't Certainly didn't expect to suffer any humiliation in their first weekend of spring competition, the members of Penn's varsity squad, which they held their own against the supertankers of intercollegiate sailing, said Saul Cohen. "I was really disappointed of twenty schools. We all did about the same, which was pretty bad," added Craig Harms. "We were all trying as hard as we could," Harms said, "but partially, I think we may have been psyched out. We were sailing against a group that wasn't as good as it could have been."

After a surprising fall season, in their fall regattas, the Quakers generally achieved respectable results against the bigger budgeted schools of the East and the Maritime. They finished third in the Pacser Trophy regatta and took sixth place in the War Memorial regatta, to campaign into the Atlantic Coast Championships. In preparation for the spring season, Penn resumed practice two weeks before the squad arrived in Annapolis on March 24, & 26, 1981 (Tuesday through Thursday) in McClelland Hall from 9:00 AM to 5:00 PM.
