Former Stanford Dean
First Outsider in Century

Ehrlich, president of the University, has been named to the position of the new University's first outside dean. The announcement comes in the wake of the recent death of President Sheldon Hackney.

The news was welcomed by students, faculty, and administration alike. "It's a great move," said Professor Charles Smith, head of the philosophy department. "Ehrlich has a long history of academic achievement and is well respected in the academic community." The appointment was made after extensive deliberations by the search committee, which included members from various disciplines and backgrounds.

Ehrlich's tenure will be for one year, and he will be responsible for overseeing the academic affairs of the University. He will work closely with the administration and faculty to ensure the continued excellence of the University's academic programs.

Ehrlich is a well-known figure in the academic community, having served as provost at several universities. He is currently the provost of Stanford University, where he has been for the past ten years. Ehrlich is a specialist in the field of comparative literature and has made significant contributions to the study of Chinese literature.

The appointment of Ehrlich is seen as a step towards diversifying the University's leadership. "It's important that we have a diverse set of perspectives leading the University," said President Hackney. "Ehrlich brings a wealth of experience and a fresh outlook that will be beneficial to our institution."

A dean who asked not to be named Wednesday said, "Children had very strong support among the faculty," which made the decision "a near unanimity." The dean added that Hackney did not win Monday night what course of action he would follow. "The president didn't show up in expressing his preferences," he said.

Another faculty member, who was a name on the part of the team that was a finalist, said one of the things about the decision that made him is that it has the "right look to it." Hackney conceded yesterday that when he walked into the dean meeting, "Frankly, I was insisting," and he said there were "two killers" to be part of the process. Things were very quickly and broad-mindedly to sit with them beforehand.

Many members of the University community praised upon Hackney, as well. "I think the world of him," Law School Dean James Freedman and Wednesday. "Any pill that had the kind of qualifications that he had saw the list, and I don't care if anybody was interested in his name, I do not see if they saw it differently," he added.

Outgoing Graduate and Professional Student Assembly chairman Steve Mannon called Ehrlich "wonderful," adding, "He's really good. I think they would make a lot of students want to go through the process."

Out of the Fishbowl

Congratulations, seniors. Soon you will be awarded diplomas and nudged out of the Fishbowl you've called home for the past four years. Despite your expectations that freshmen living on campus would be like ninety cent bugs in the real world, it is likely that you experience, in retrospect, will seem status quo the world you are about to enter. The world will change. Life will not exist around those towering apartment houses, a block of tenement rooms, the Fishbowl.

Life, we suspect, is not as simple or fair as you once hoped. The world you will enter is not the world of Pennsylvania. It is frustrating, for example, to see a university that so carefully attracts minority faculty members and students. When at the University of Pennsylvania, this isn't even an issue, because no one ever has to ask to be there.

At least we hope so. We hope this University is not so self-conscious when it comes to matters of race, sex, and money that it will not see the students it attracts as barriers but that it accepts that these barriers are the most important thing: not how much capital on the miniature campus, not how much the students it attracts identify with the important struggle you see, and then to react with courage.

So, in the spirit of the graduation rites of your four years of real life, they will have been worth it. If not, I hope you will try again.

Happy graduation, seniors. Make us proud of you.

"It was a white, drizzly day in the middle of May. That's all. As we come to the end of our four years here at the University of Pennsylvania, the world outside exists along with the Fishbowl. And that world has been replaced by the more exciting contrast of culture and ideas. It is only that in a few years the campus will be a campus, with countless walls and locked doors. The Fishbowl will no longer be a reality in which we will reside. And this is a good thing.

Judicial Inquiry Officer Peters, Career Placement Head Resign

By ROBERT WOJTOWIEZ

In an unexpected resignation, Judicial Inquiry Officer D'Boraah Peters and Career Placement Director Donna Down have left the University permanently.

Peters resigned his position late last month because of health problems. Vice Provost Jane Somerville said this week that the decision resulting from a recent review of personnel with serious health problems was made by the University. Several lower-level departures were maintained with the help of University Life staff members.

"We did essentially lose a month," Somerville said. "We're very lucky that people were able to go back into the transition." Executive Director Jerry Condon and Judicial Administration Director Lewis had handled the organizational aspects of case pending before the smaller judiciary.

"I'm sorry for the poor judgment," Condon had said in Peters' absence after the resignation.

"Through the combination, we will have gotten the most pressing and serious cases handled," she said. "Some will be handled in the light and some will be handled in the dark." Peters became the first full-time JIO in January in what was previously a part-time position. The change was a result of several amendments to the Academic Integrity Code made during the fall semester.

Somerville said she did not believe that Peters' resignation, coupled with Condon's, indicated a lack of understanding or support of the Academic Integrity Code. "That's not a problem," she said. "We found that we would have to reorganize the conflicts of the community as an efficient operation this spring, in the case of some cases. Instead, it certainly wasn't D'Boraah's fault."

"I think the charter itself is sound," Condon said this week, adding that he would propose some changes for next semester. "I've been asked during the current process to see what the different rules and regulations that exist. It's for them to put things together in some understandable form."

Condon added that he will send the regulations in their present form to the JIO and will decide on minimum and maximum penalties for offenses.

Condon said he will conduct interviews for the JIO position over the next two weeks. He added that he will decide on minimum and maximum penalties for offenses.

"I thought Bud was better, but I've been proved wrong. I chose Schlitz."

One taste of Schlitz can change a lot of minds. Recently hundreds of loyal Budweiser and Miller drinkers tasted their beer and Schlitz side by side.

"I thought my beer - I thought I'd choose Miller. But I chose Schlitz."

Charles Waker, Swain Miller Drinker

Before the taste tests, all the participants signed affidavits swearing they were loyal Budweiser or Miller drinkers. But following the tests, lots of those tasters were surprised. Because after tasting their favorite beer and Schlitz in unbranded mugs, many found they preferred Schlitz.

"I'm definitely surprised. I thought for sure I'd pick Miller. But I picked Schlitz." Mike Miller

Swan Miller Drinker

One person who wasn't surprised is Frank Sellinger. Some people thought it was risky to taste test my Schlitz on national TV. But I was sure lots of folks would pick Schlitz over their beers.

"Three years ago I came to Schlitz to make our beer. And after 40 years as a master brewer, I know this is it. Taste one glass. You may like my Schlitz better than your beer, too."

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"
Psalm 2:1 and Acts 4:26

"Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Each passage quoted from the New Testament is the first recorded words of the Master after His baptism by John the Baptist. The Spirit of God was descending upon Him in the form of a Dove. Surely the Creator of Life, The Preserver of Life, and The Redeemer of Life is qualified to tell us what is necessary for life and warn us against the ways of the Destroyer of Life, Satan. (For Devil may Christ was speaking to the devil who was under the command of the Destroyer of Life, Satan.)

Doubtless one of the greatest causes of the "heathen and confusion" upon earth today is the inordinate selfishness of those who believe they are "rebels against the power of heaven." In the line of the passage quoted from the New Testament, the word "heathen" is translated as "Gentiles." We may suggest that the young, the middle-aged, and the old even if you are "secretly among them" may consider the evil influence of our "heathen" world and the "heathen" influence of our "heathen" thoughts - be it in the imprecated word "dove" as meaning much of "every word" that proceeds out of the mouth of God. This word means more than it can possibly mean of any of the words of all the devils on earth below Mr. Underaker "table for your comfort." There is no telling what much mischief either this word or other words like "heathen" may do to our fellow men. Christ said to His disciples, "Take heed to yourselves, lest Satan enter in like a thief and steal your Judgement."

"I've been drinkin' Budweiser for 25 years. But tonight I opted for Schlitz." Elbert Marcus, Swan Miller Drinker

One taste of Schlitz convinced them. "Schlitz has body, it has flavor," agreed Miller drinker Mike Miller. But I chose Schlitz, proudly. Miller drinker Robert Davis summed up the feelings of many when he said, "I'll have to stop by and pick up a six-pack of Schlitz."

The meeting also saw five tributes — two of them spontaneous — to University and Council members. Former Provost Varian Gregor. who resigned last October on the recommendation of Hacker's colleagues, was praised by the meeting as a "teacher, scholar, administrator and wonderful human being" in a resolution introduced by Hacker. Gregor, who was in New York, presented a tribute to the School of Allied Medical Professions, which he directed for 15 years. He left his post as president, was praised as a "wonderful human being" in a resolution introduced by Hackney. Council also praised Paul Bender, outgoing chairman of the Faculty Senate and the Council Steering Committee for his leadership.

Tributes were also offered to Gregor's colleagues, in a spontaneous round of ovations which he received the University's thanks.

Roger Crampton, Legal Services Chairman when Ehrlich was president, said this week that Ehrlich has an "outstanding human and personal ability to deal with a wide range of constituencies - from poor people to legislative bigwigs and the like," and that he has a "strong social commitment to things like affirmative action and social justice in the United States."

Ehrlich is currently on leave from Stanford and holds its Carlsmith Chair in law, but has announced his resignation from the Stanford faculty.

relations with students were also good.
"We got along with students at a time when not everyone did," Meyers said, adding that Ehrlich implemented grading systems during his time at Stanford, a method that helped to improve student performance and engagement.

Ehrlich is currently on leave from Stanford and holds its Carlsmith Chair in law, but has announced his resignation from the Stanford faculty.

Both at Stanford and elsewhere, Ehrlich has been noted as a progressive thinker. He has been highly critical of Chief Justice Warren Burger, and was one of 13 deans who appeared before the House of Representatives in 1973, calling for President Richard Nixon's impeachment.

In 1976, President Jimmy Carter chose him as the first president of the Legal Services Corporation, a private, non-profit organization established by the government to provide legal assistance to the poor. Three years later, Carter named him director of the International Cooperation Development Agency.

Touche: Sabre Friedberg Wins ’15 Award

By CINDY SHMERLER

When Paul Friedberg was a professional fencer, he was known as one of the best in the world. Friedberg grew up in high school, where he was captain of the fencing team. After high school, Friedberg graduated, got married, and had two children. Although Friedberg began his professional career at age 16, he retired from the sport at age 26, switched to coaching, and has since become one of the nation’s top collegiate coaches.

Friedberg was honored by his former coach, Herb Hartnett, and the Quakers, as well as his current coach, Martin Meyerson. "Paul has been such a credit to our university," said Coach Meyerson. "He has been a wonderful mentor to our young fencers, and we are grateful for all he has done for us."

Friedberg was pleased by his list of recruits. “Overall, we feel that we have a very talented group of young men to add to our roster. We are excited to see what they can bring to the team.”

The Quakers, under the leadership of Coach Meyerson, were declared the nation’s top collegiate team for the third straight year, finishing the season with a perfect 10-0 record in the Ivy League.

Field Hockey Athlete Awarded Friedberg Falls

Diane Angstadt, a member of the U.S. National Field Hockey and a three-letter All-American athlete at Pennsylvania, has been selected the recipient of the Friedberg Award, given annually to the outstanding senior athlete at the University.

"Diane has led our teams by example ever since she’s been here," said head coach Janet Cantwell. "She is a true leader on and off the field, and we are honored to have her as a part of our team."

"Diane has been an excellent point guard. She has helped us to win many games," said coach Larry Lauchle. "She is a true leader on and off the field, and we are honored to have her as a part of our team."

"I am very honored to receive this award," said Angstadt. "It is a great honor for me and my teammates. We are excited to see what the future holds for us."
