VANDALS ATTACK DU BOIS HOUSE IVY DAY STONE

By ROBERT WHITEWATER

The College House System has once again been the target of vandalism. The DuBois House, the home of three students, has been defaced, followed by an incident in which two men allegedly tried to pry open a window in the Hill House. The incidents have sparked a wave of anger and a call for action among students.

An investigation is underway into the DuBois House incident, which occurred on Sunday night. The house was entered through an unlocked window, and a number of items were taken, including a cash register and a computer. The house is owned by the University, and the incident is being handled by the Police Department.

In the Hill House incident, which occurred early Saturday morning, a window was broken, and a variety of items were taken, including a television set and a stereo system. The house is also owned by the University, and the incident is being handled by the Police Department.

Both incidents have sparked a sense of outrage among students, who feel that the University is not doing enough to protect their property and their safety. Many students have called for stronger security measures and for the University to take a more active role in addressing the issue of vandalism.

Search To Begin For SPUP Dean

By STEVE LATHAM

The Student Public Use Program (SPUP) is preparing to begin its search for a new dean, according to Acting Dean Margie Davis-Jones. The search process is expected to take several months, and the University is looking for a candidate who has experience in public affairs and education.

Davis-Jones said that the search process will be divided into two phases. The first phase will involve the selection of a search committee, which will be responsible for identifying and evaluating candidates. The second phase will involve the appointment of a new dean, who will be responsible for leading the SPUP program.

The search process is expected to begin in the near future, and the University is hoping to fill the position as soon as possible. Davis-Jones said that the University is committed to finding a candidate who is well-qualified and who will be able to lead the SPUP program.

Provost Approves New Graduate Education Guidelines

By PETER CANCELO

President Thomas Hirsch has approved a new set of guidelines for the University’s graduate education program. The guidelines are designed to improve the quality of graduate education and to enhance the graduate students’ experience.

The new guidelines include a number of changes, such as the creation of a new committee to oversee the graduate education program, the establishment of a new curriculum for graduate students, and the introduction of new assessment tools to evaluate the effectiveness of the program.

Hirsch said that he was impressed by the quality of the new guidelines and that he believed they would help to improve the graduate education program. He added that he was confident that the new guidelines would be successful and that they would help to attract more students to the University.

Vet School Plans For New Library Building

By MARK BROMBERG

A new library building for the Veterinary School will be constructed on the University’s main campus, according to Acting Vice President for University Affairs, Arthur Hirsch.

The library is expected to be completed in two years, and it will be the largest library on the University’s main campus. The building will include a number of features, including a large reading room, a research facility, and a lecture hall.

Hirsch said that the library will be a vital resource for the Veterinary School and that it will help to attract more students and faculty to the University.

Workshops Help Students Develop Skills in Reading

By GORDON FRIED

"Help!" The reading assignments just keep stacking up, even if I try to read no more than 30 pages a day. My grades are slipping, my friends say I'm losing my interest in reading, and I'm bored with the whole concept. What can I do to improve my reading skills?

First of all, you need to understand that reading is a skill, like any other. It takes practice and dedication to become proficient at it. The key to improving your reading skills is to practice regularly and to use effective strategies.

Here are some tips to help you improve your reading skills:

1. Choose books that interest you. Reading should be enjoyable, so choose books that you enjoy.
2. Read regularly. Make time to read every day, even if it's just for a short while.
3. Use a reading strategy. There are many different strategies that you can use to improve your reading skills, such as active reading, summarizing, and questioning.
4. Take breaks. It's important to take breaks when you read, so that your mind can rest and you can come back to the text with a fresh perspective.
5. Ask questions. If you don't understand something, ask yourself questions about it.
6. Practice regularly. The more you read, the better you'll become.

By following these tips, you'll be on your way to improving your reading skills. Good luck!

NEWS IN BRIEF

Stock Market Evades 'Blue' Forecast

NEW YORK - The depressed stock market posted a strong rally Wednesday, prices rose sharply on Wall Street, and the Dow Jones industrial average climbed almost 10 points - its best showing in nearly a year. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which began the week at its lowest level in about a year, soared 9.6 points in 15 minutes Wednesday as investors were reassured by a Wall Street report that the nation's largest banks are more financially sound than was believed last week.

But most investors were cautious about the stock market's rally. The action was fueled by the buying of widely recognized stocks and by increased buying of previously overlooked companies, such as General Electric Co. In London and around the world, stock prices also gained, with British and German markets among the strongest.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which began the week at its lowest level in nearly a year, soared 9.5 points in 15 minutes Wednesday as investors were reassured by a Wall Street report that the nation's largest banks are more financially sound than was believed last week. I think it was in the May 1981 that Excel Menahan and a distinguished group of men saw in the belated, late summer sun shining on a pastel- colored car as it rode slowly through the traffic of the University of Pennsylvania, a look at the future of the university, a group of adorable little chimps playing quite different from the brutal, weathered burlesquers offet to the nation."I have become the selling point of the small, once peaceful grooviness, free love. In the weeks since WXPN Sports Director Radin, who was named to his position last January, took over the WXPN Studio to direct the station's sports coverage, the quality of WXPN's specials and its broadcast schedules have improved significantly. WXPN's special events, such as its coverage of the Big Five basketball tournament, and its radio broadcasts of college basketball games have received widespread acclaim. WXPN's new sports department has also been praised for its innovative programming, such as its coverage of the Winter Olympics and the World Cup.

WXPN Sports Director Brian Radin and his staff are already at work developing new programming ideas, including a sports commentary show and a weekly sports news magazine. Radin is also working on developing a new sports radio format for WXPN, which he hopes will be launched in the next few months.

It could have been worse. It could have been much worse. It could have been nowhere near the best possible outcome. In sports, there are few situations that are as cut and dried as the situation in which we find ourselves today. The ticket sales for the upcoming home games at the Palestra are running at 50% of capacity, and the radio station's ratings have dropped significantly. It's a bad situation, but it's not the end of the world.
