Students Group Forms Divestment Coalition

BY FELICIA MILLER

Three university organizations joined together last night to form the "Coalition for Documentation." Over 70 students from the Undergraduate Assembly, Black Student Union, and the Christian Association met last night in the basement of Old West to form the organizations to protest the South Africa's government.

The three groups have the same goal, that of divesting student funds of South Africa, but have admitted that their methods may differ. The Undergraduate Assembly supported the idea of a divestment of student funds a week ago while the Black Student Union supported the idea of a boycott of all South African produce sold on campus and the Christian Association supported the idea of a boycott of all foreign goods, not just South Africa's.

The groups were started by Dwayne Evereti, Reginald E. Burrell, and William C. Dyson yesterday. The name of the group is "The Coalition for Documentation," which is the name of an Old West fraternity that has been closed because of corruption. Evereti, Burrell, and Dyson have also been members of the Black Student Union and the Christian Association. The group is to be modeled after similar organizations that have been started at other universities.

The groups were started because of "the power that lies in taking action," Evereti said. "If we don't act, the South African government will continue to control us."

The three groups have admitted that their methods are different, but they have also admitted that they are working together.

With all the recent news about the world of theater, it is easy to forget that there is a place of its own in the music world. Many people have come to terms with the idea of music being a form of art, but do not have the same concept when it comes to the visual arts. This is due in large part to the way in which music is taught and presented in schools. Many students think of music as something they can do for fun, but it is actually a serious and important discipline. Music is an art form that can be enjoyed by people of all ages and backgrounds, and it is important that we recognize its value and importance in our society.

America's Materialism Sets In On ICA

By ROBIN BENDER

Recent events have brought to light the issue of materialism in America. The recent recession has caused many people to re-evaluate their priorities and to focus on what is truly important. This has led to a realization that material possessions are not the key to happiness. Instead, people are beginning to see that true fulfillment comes from within, and that the most important things in life are not material possessions. This shift in values is a positive development, and it is important that we continue to promote this mindset in our society.

Southside's Success

By BILL SWENY

The year 1978 also marked the last concert of the vocal band, The Jukes. The Jukes have seen their own career come and go, but they have left a lasting legacy in the music industry. They were a band that was ahead of its time, and they continue to inspire and influence new generations of musicians today. The Jukes were known for their catchy hooks and their ability to make people dance. Their music was a mix of different styles, and it was always fun and energetic. The Jukes will always be remembered as a band that brought joy to the people who listened to their music.

Remembering Sadat

Editor's Note: We were all shocked and saddened this week by the tragic assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The incident dramatized the ongoing struggle for peace in the Middle East and the need for political leaders to continue their efforts for a lasting peace. Sadat was a complex figure, admired by many for his courage and dedication to peace, but also criticized by some for his policies.

High Rise Residents Seek Refund for Cooling Loss

By CULLODEN FREYD

Nearly half the residents of the High Rise complex have signed a petition demanding compensation for the absence of air conditioning this fall.

Of the roughly 2400 students, 1425 have signed a petition demanding "appropriate restitutions" and the "return of the air conditioning service," according to Devra Cohen, an advisor for the Upperland community. The petition says, "We consider it a serious inconvenience to have to live in undesirable things in the results."

Students who attended the meeting said they are not sure whether Koval is considering action to offset the loss of air conditioning. "We were very concerned about the air conditioning," one student said.

Koval was away this week and could not be reached for comment. But David Sparer, the student group's president, said Koval told the student group that he considered the situation a "nightmare to get through this winter.

The physical plant group met with Koval on Thursday, and the University will supposedly supply $9,000 for needed repairs to the air conditioning systems. "Mr. Koval was very considerate of students," one group member said.

Nearly half the residents of the High Rise complex, roughly 1200 students, have signed a petition demanding compensation for the absence of air conditioning this fall. The petition says, "We are going to publish a report that will discuss the air conditioning situation.

"Mr. Koval was very considerate of students," one group member said.

Man Nabbed in Franklin Building Break-In

A local man was arrested Monday following a six-block chase across campus in connection with a break-in at the Franklin Building, while another man on trial, University Police said.

Nick Brown, 27, of the 3300 block of Fountain Street, was apprehended Monday afternoon when the six-block chase ended just south of the Franklin Building.

27-year-old Nick Brown, who was charged with burglary, was taken to University Police headquarters at 3134 Locust Walk. Security and officers dressed in green and white uniforms were in the parking lot where the man was apprehended.

Security personnel entered the building with a siren on to warn others of the chase.

While on trial for a break-in, Brown, leaving the building when he saw others were on the steps of the north entrance, said, "One of the security personnel and others ran on the steps of the north entrance.

"Immediately, they had taken them to the east floor and closed them in the stairwell to the east floor, then blew the fire door to its fire door, run north, then down the building.
