Faculty Begins Search for Dean of Dental School

By STEFAN FASSIO

The Associated Students Alumni Society has appointed a committee to retain the services of the University's search firm for the position of dean of dental school. After several meetings, these areas have identified the need for a better qualified candidate. The committee is composed of: J. C. P. Cohen has been appointed, with a faculty to retain the services of the dental school's faculty representatives for the University-wide search committee being completed. Cohen officially announced his resignation, effective June 30, at the ASBU meeting in the fall. Cohen plans to retire in the spring of 1983. In the meantime, a search committee will be formed to interview the dean of dental school.

Dental School Associate Dean James W. Hall will serve as chair of the search committee, which will be composed of the dean of dental school, the dean of the arts and sciences, and the dean of the college of education. The committee will be responsible for selecting the dean of dental school. Cohen will continue to serve in an advisory role until a new dean is appointed.

Dental School Faculty Council Chairperson Mary Ann Henneman said that the goal of the search committee is to find a candidate who is committed to the University's mission and who is knowledgeable about dental education. The committee is also looking for a candidate who is committed to the advancement of dental education and who is able to lead the dental school in the future.

The search committee will begin its work immediately and will complete its work by the end of the spring semester. The committee will hold meetings on a regular basis and will provide regular updates on the progress of the search. The committee will also hold public meetings to allow students, faculty, and staff to provide input on the search process.

The University is committed to finding a candidate who is dedicated to the advancement of dental education and who is able to lead the dental school in the future. The University hopes to have a new dean appointed by the end of the spring semester.

Throng Attends IFC Unity Rally

By ANTHONY PELLENO

In a show of support for minority students, the Student Government of University held a rally yesterday. The rally was held on the steps of the Student Union, which was packed to capacity. The rally was organized by the Student Government and the Student Life Director.

The rally was attended by a large crowd of students, faculty, and staff. The Student Government and the Student Life Director gave speeches about the need for unity and the importance of diversity on campus. The rally was also attended by members of the Student Senate and the Student Government Council.

The rally was well-organized and well-attended. The Student Government and the Student Life Director did a great job in organizing the rally and in bringing together students, faculty, and staff. The rally was a great success and it showed the importance of diversity and unity on campus.

Priest Draws Masses to Smoke's

Although he says that his "call to order" was a decision made at the age of 15, inspired by a missionary who came to talk at his church, Avery didn't lead the typical boy scout life. "There's supposed to be a DJ here or something," teys Avery, "I said already no."

When he was assured it would be a closed party, and not a Wolfman Jack affair, Avery decided to give it a spin. By the end, Long John, he discovered that what works in a church basement can work in a campus bar, trading his more formal attire with students he other wise wouldn't have met. "I like to do activities that can reach people of any age," he says, as he logged his last spins as DJ Friday. "As far as I know, I am the Catholic priest. Although many of the families he works with were formed or strengthened ties with the church, Avery claims that his motivation not by the desire to convert, to raise the attendance at Mass, but to "help people in need."

"No color, and next figure into next," he says.

Father Edward Avery was in his church (above and spinning records at Smoke's) when he decided to add DJ to his portfolio. He says, "I have a way to gel people involved, whether it's here or at Mass on Sunday." Avery took pride in his relationship with University students, as well as with the West Philadelphia community. "I try to work with a cross-section of people," he says, noting that he is involved with blacks, same sex, and Catholics in University City. "I like to do activities that can reach people of any age," he says, as he logged his last spins as DJ Friday. "As far as I know, I am the Catholic priest."

Avery stopped the motors "no questions asked," yet added, "I'm so glad you hopped in."

When he saw Joe's, Avery decided to give it a spin. By the end, Long John, he discovered that what works in a church basement can work in a campus bar, trading his more formal attire with students he otherwise wouldn't have met. A Semester's Trials

Ever since the news of the Kappa Sigma incident broke at Temple University, many have been questioning the motives behind the actions of the fraternity. The incident, which has sparked a national debate, has raised concerns about the role of fraternity organizations in shaping campus culture.

Our administration, however, has been looking for an easy way to respond to these criticisms. They have been unable to find any way to reverse the negative publicity that has surrounded the fraternity.

I believe the fraternity itself provides a good example of how the media can be manipulated. In particular, I believe that Temple University's recent efforts to improve the image of the fraternity are under review.

The fraternity is currently facing a critical point in its history. The incident at Temple University has raised questions about the fraternity's future. It is important for the fraternity to respond to these criticisms in a constructive way, rather than simply relying on attempts to minimize the impact of the incident.

In conclusion, I believe that Temple University's recent efforts to improve the image of the fraternity are under review. It is important for the fraternity to respond to these criticisms in a constructive way, rather than simply relying on attempts to minimize the impact of the incident.
Cookie Man Visits Houston Hall

Author: Howard

When Howard "Amos" Amos began working as a baker in Houston Hall, he knew he was on to something special. "I think it's great," said College freshman Jennifer Irvine. "It's a great way to try them."

Amos, who is currently running his own business, Howard's Cookies, is well known for his friendly personality and delicious treats. "I used to bake cookies for two hours, were gone," Amos explained. "I'm in Houston Hall's cookie shop."

Amos acknowledged that his cookies were special, yet he couldn't say what made them so. "I just bake them," he said. "I'm in Houston Hall, we're gonna have run!"

The students who participated in the event were thrilled. However, some were concerned about the noise and activity. "I think it's great," said College freshman Jennifer Irvine. "I'm in Houston Hall, we're gonna have run!"

Amos was especially taken with the students who participated in the event. "I'm in Houston Hall, we're gonna have run!"

Amos also shared his business with the crowd. "I'm in Houston Hall, we're gonna have run!"

'Cabaret' Fails Due to Lack of Professionalism

By DAVID S. REIN

Amateur musical productions are often a list of firsts to watch. The enthusiastic yet amateurish productions are a mark of our times. One such production was the atypical presentation of Cabaret, which opened last night at St. Mary's Parish Hall, as a musical amateur production. It is a group of very professional and enthusiastic actors and actresses trying their hands to put on a show without many of the elements of what we call theater. It is done in a small room on a tiny platform stage with a make-shift curtain as background. It is an amateur production. Due to lack of time and resources, a large part of the show is forced to be done by amateurs. The effectiveness of these involved could make one forget that they are amateurs. But, if they are performing something other than a cabaret, they should be doing it as well as they can. One high point of the production is Gary Berne as the Emcee of the cabaret. Throughout the play, the cabaret seems to portray the enjoyment and prosperity which is depicted in the play. The Emcee is the personification of what the cabaret represents. He provides a stage for all the characters to appear in, and he is the one who directs the show and keeps the audience entertained. The enthusiasm of the cast and crew makes up for the shortcomings of the production. The Emcee provides a strong, sensitive, dramatic character who is depicted. He is a strong, sensitive, dramatic character who is depicted. Through his performance, he provides a strong, sensitive, dramatic character who is depicted. Annual Model U.N. Conference Seeks International Awareness

BODG POWELL
An international flavor tinged the annual student Model U.N. last night, as the 13th annual University of Pennsylvania Model United Nations Conference convened at the Houston Hall. The conference brings together a record 45 colleges, some from as far away as Michigan and Indiana, in the hopes of bringing awareness of international issues to college students.

"Citizens of a great country have an obligation beyond their own country, and they have to think of the whole world," Powell, a former U.N. delegate who covered the conference briefly last year, said. "Citizens have to think of where the world is going in the future." Powell, who has been a U.N. delegate for 15 years, commented that the delegates' ideas will influence the way the world will go in the future.

Another delegate, Marcia Harden, a senior, said she was impressed by the way the delegates participated in the conference. "I think the delegates brought in a lot of new and exciting ideas," Harden said.

The conference is designed to bring awareness to international issues, and to allow college students to take the place of diplomats and foreign leaders. "We have to be aware that there is a whole world out there," Harden said.

The conference is sponsored by the University's Department of Political Science, and is open to all students.

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"

Psalms 2:1 and Acts 420

"It is singular how long the river will hold together, provided you do not handle it roughly." Picture a molar apple hanging on a line, somewhat like a fish. The fruit will stay on the line as long as you do not handle it roughly. In this case, if you handle the fruit too roughly, it will be no more fruit then you have taken apple sauce. One meaning of "corruption" is to handle roughly. The earth beneath our feet is a river of corruption. The earth handles it rather roughly, it is filled with stones and even worse with the trees and roots. The earth bears this and does not loose its beauty.

There is much rotteness and corruption in the home and family life of our nation today. The family life is much more corrupt and corrupted by rotteness and corruption. The governmental life of our nation can be treated to rotteness and rotteness to corruption and to corruption. A person cannot eat a meal in the presence of rotteness or corruption. It is the same in the presence of rotteness and rotteness, "food together." Corruption cannot eat. Similarly, the Church refuses to eat with other corruption of unrighteous, apostasy, rebellion of Jude's Law and Word, and the reasons are very numerous. As a nation we will be saved by the Grace of God if we do not eat corruption.

I hope your church will have an excellent Christmas and that heavens will see our nation. May there be an end to rotteness and protection "food together." Why do the Heathen rage? Why do they rage? Why do they rage against each other? May their rage pass away and God's kingdom come! Amen!

During a recent interview, Hackney and his wife, who also enjoy a strong sense of humor, discussed their support for the school's athletic teams.

"You want the best for everybody," said Hackney's son, Dave. "We're in it for the long haul. We support the school on a regular basis."

"I think people need to know that the school is working hard to support its athletes," Hackney added. "We want everyone to know that we're in it for the long haul."

Bootees

"It's something we've been trying to do," Eddie remembers.

"We won four, and now we want to do that right now." He said.

"It's something we've been trying to do," Eddie remembers.

But he has developed confidence remaining alongside his older brother.

"I have his score in the nine games," he said. "He played two games - he played his and mine," Eddie remembers.

"It's a good defense is a good ol' offense," he said.

After wrapping up a share of a League title, tomorrow's game will mean little on paper. But there will be incentives to win.

"It wasn't as much physical as psychological," he said.

"It sounds like an old cliche," he said.

We're doing that right now. We gained momentum, and we're playing like a team."
