by WILLIAM MCCOLLUM

The General Assembly last week enacted two new state laws, groceries and tobacco, and approved a measure that would establish a "supermarket" for high-rise residents. The latter, according to the Senate, was passed in order to prevent the opening of an "inadequate" supermarket in the area of the "supermarket". The Senate has approved the measure, but the House has not.

Professors Ponder Legal Questions About Death

by CAROL NEWMARK

At the recent meeting of the American Bar Association, professors from the University of Pennsylvania presented a paper on the legal issues surrounding death and the meaning of death in society. The paper was well received, and the professors are planning to publish it in a forthcoming issue of their journal. "The question of what death means is a difficult one, but it is crucial to understanding the legal framework that surrounds it," said one professor. "We believe that the legal system should be able to accommodate the diversity of beliefs about death that exist in our society."

A Disappointing Decision

To the Editor:

Kappa Sigma, a powerful and principled organization, has let me down. When Kappa Sigma was founded in 1848, it was dedicated to "Leges Sine Moribus Vanae." That motto has been taken aback by Vice Provost Janis Somerville, whose many years on the Penn administration have been marked by extreme traumatic experience. We sincerely hope that they can still have a positive feeling towards Penn and all the good things which are represented.

A Loss of Trust in the Administration

To the Editor:

I have had the privilege and pleasure of living in the Kappa Sigma campus for a running semester and, I know from whence I speak. During the six weeks of my stay, there was not one incident of the type alleged. I stand by "I have a hare.

Kappa Sigma: A Proud Tradition

To the Editor:

I have had the privilege and pleasure of living in the Kappa Sigma campus as a running summer student. I again request that Miss Somerville's arbitrary decision be overruled and the Penn administration's decision be restored.

Kappa Sigma is proud.

A Justified Action

To the Editor:

We strongly support the administration's decision to revoke the Kappa Sigma fraternity's recognition. Given Kappa Sigma's discriminatory nature, the complaint that the fraternity was expelled for gross misconduct and their national organization failed to correct the situation is not "I have a hare.

Fond Memories of Kappa Sigma

To the Editor:

In 1974, the Kappa Sigma fraternity was in Beta Theta Pi. When BTP was finally thrown off campus in 1980 Olympic Team, I take this action because disbanding the fraternity was not severe enough to be vengeful. Let the Kappa Sigma is banished from our school. Kappa Sigma Alumnus
