Music Security Report Could Result in System Improvements

By DONALD WATUCK

University President Dr. Albert B. Sobel announced last month a new report of the security procedures in the wake of a series of burglaries of the acting music department. Acting Music Director Robert Arenson said, "The report, prepared on all aspects of campus security and security needed today, was worked out by the University's Office of Finance and the University Council Steering Committee." He added that the report discusses the "dares and cares" of implementing several options, and the museum is currently evaluating various recommendations to determine which ones will work.

In August, the student's movement presented the proposal of looking at the campus' options.

Lack of Student Input Spurs WXPN Study

By ROBERT LAYNE

Lack of student input and questions about the governance structure and programming of WXPN have prompted the University Council Steering Committee to ask WXPN to take a "seriously" look at the station's role in its relationship with the campus. The committee is scheduled to submit a report to Council within the next few months.

"The main thrust put into Council was that the station seemed to have lost its identity," university Life Director Jerry Condon said last week. "We suspect that students are not getting involved in the numbers we would expect." Also, there is perhaps some question about the kind of programming that they do," Condon said. The committee will recommend a "new approach," Condon added, "and the station will be given a chance to look at the issue again." WXPN has 10,000 listeners, with 23 percent of those in the 18-24 age bracket.

Campus: Has Become Too Political

By JOSEPH TAYLOR

Trombone Chairman Paul Miller said that the Administrative Assembly has become so involved in the activities of the student body that it has become a political organization. "The student body is not a political organization," Miller said, "but the AA has taken on the role of a political organization." The Assembly has been involved in the activities of the student council for the past two years.

Inside Seminar Teaches Crime-Fighting

By RUDY ABRIL

Speaker at Saturday's Neighborhood Crime Prevention Conference told students that the part of the students would be crucial in making West Philadelphia safer.

"We've got to get the students involved," Trustee Chairman Paul Miller told an audience of about 50 that since the city's police department is no longer a student activity, it is up to students to become actively involved in crime prevention techniques.

Lerner, David Ossorio of the prison guards union, and Malcolm Covington, a police detective, were both present at the meeting. The police union has been extremely active in the security situation, and has expressed a desire to work with the university to improve security.

Gemini, which has just finished a successful run in New York City, is coming to Philadelphia - one of America's most prestigious universities. The play, written by G. O. Robert O'Brien, is a classic of modern drama. In this report, we look at the production at the University's Zellerbach Theater, and examine the reasons for the success of the play.

Seigfried stresses one of these differences — landlord-tenant relationships — as much more positive downtown. "The landlords are cool, they're not that complicated in West Philly," he said. "The high demand downtown makes it more of an investment, more potential to stick around. It becomes more of an investment, more positive than anywhere in West Philly," agreed Jane Omega, a member of Omega sorority for two years. During the three-year interim between graduation and now, Omega spent a year living at 42nd and Chester and the remainder in Center City.

Seigfried said he feels his "immediate neighborhood is more pleasant, more secure, more convenient, more positive than anywhere in West Philly." He lives off of 20th and South Streets with three fellow students, all his roommates the previous year and close friends, "beautiful bay windows" and a kitchen with formica tables. "It's huge." It has a dishwasher and garbage disposal, as well as utilities, but as the landlord said, "the place is "humongous."

To the Editor:

The topic of affection between people is too long overdue for serious public examination and discussion. The topic of affection is not a new one, but it is one that has been kept hidden from public view for far too long. The topic of affection is a complex one, and it is one that needs to be examined in order to understand it fully.

We have obtained a limited number of tickets for CAS seniors. We need a great number of tickets from private donors and donors that are in a position to give large amounts of money. We need to work very hard to raise funds for this project. The CAS seniors will be playing the leading roles in the production. We do it through the Congress or private.

Thorn Group Investigates Loan System

Koends said it is "too far back for banks to make student loans," as they have historically done with the Student Loan Program, in order to respond to the current system. "They know how banks behave," Koends Project Manager said last week. "They know how knowledge there’s a good now. If in that respect, it’s a promising effort."

The results will assess these major portions: a nationwide survey of participants in the programs, in-depth interviews with banks, and a good number of profitability simulation models that will evaluate bank responses to those incentives.

The study was the decision by the Fed last week. "We have a valid issue. We’re going to start righting the thing."

If compiled from page 1 (transcripts of taped sonic, with its fine balance of visual approach and verbal form), fully explains the situation’s core potential.

33-13 Victory Gives Dartmouth League Title as Quakers End 1-6, Tied for Last

By Peter Pfeiffer

The final score read Dartmouth, 33; Pennsylvania, 13. For all those people who were at the game, or watched it on television, it was a dramatic and exhilarating victory. For many others, it was a déjà vu experience. Dartmouth and Penn played each other earlier this season and the final score was the same. Dartmouth won, 33-13. But this time, it was a bit more dramatic. The game was a bit more intense. The players were a bit more athletic. But the result was the same. Dartmouth had the ball, and they had to punt it inside the 20-yard line. They did just that. The first time Dartmouth had the ball for the first time, they had to punt it.

"It's a very disappointing season," he summed. "We didn't accomplish anything near what we had hoped for this season. It's been frustrating. And I guess this whole thing that happened to the senior class, it's off and on a lot. But overall, I think we did have a very good season."

The State State Column said the championship, the "Perennials" Column finished a close one out of that with both teams in the national level at 96th place. One of those men, the one who said that the Dartmouth offense, did "It was the team. You know, the team, the team, the team."

It was an era of all star teams. The National Basketball Association (NBA) was formed in 1949 to provide a professional level of competition. The All-Star Game was introduced in 1950. The league was divided into two conferences, the Eastern and Western Conference. The season consisted of 82 games. The league had 16 teams, 8 in each conference. The playoff format was a best-of-seven series.

Bootsers Yawn It Out With Dartmouth 1-1

The Big Green forward scored the only goal of the game on a penalty kick. He said, "Well, the Dartmouth defense was good, but they couldn't stop us." Dartmouth's keeper Mike Moore got the tying goal on a penalty kick. He said, "Well, we couldn't get a goal, but we didn't deserve to lose." The Big Green offense was better than the Dartmouth defense. They had 14 shots on goal, while Dartmouth had 9. The Big Green had 11 corners, while Dartmouth had 7. The Big Green had the ball for 69% of the game, while Dartmouth had 31%.

And Finally, A Time To Reflect

It was a good season. We were able to compete with the best. We had some good chances. We learned what the Nationals were all about. We learned what it takes to beat them. We learned what it takes to win.

"It's not disappointing," said Henry Oetinger, who had scored the tying goal. "We played a very fine defensive game. We were as good as we had shown."

"We had some good chances in the second half. It was a tough field to play on," said Joe Smith, who had scored the winning goal in the first half. "But we played a little bit better in the first half."
