SEPTA Cuts May Force Student-Run Bus Shuttle
By MICHAEL NADIR
In response to reports of possible service cuts on some SEPTA commuter rail lines, a group of college students has decided to work on a plan to create a cooperative bus shuttle.

Paul Brothers, KVW radio's transportation reporter, said recently that SEPTA had not yet decided on specific plans for the service cuts. Students can take the Red Arrow Division's Norristown Line to the Manayunk Line, which is the most severely affected.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor

To an Irresponsible Parent

Like most students at Penn, I rely on the University Post Office service, in particular the local branch at 30th and Market Street, to bring me mail from my parents. For the past three years, we have been receiving several letters from a parent of a teenager who seems to feel that the United States Post Office is under his control.

He starts off in the first letter by saying, "Dear Post Office administrators, I have been delayed several times these past three months" (as we have been receiving only three letters each month, this seems a bit odd). He goes on to say, "Many of my son's friends have had the same problem." We are not sure about his reasoning. Our Branford House is located in the neighborhood he describes. Is there something special about our zip code?

Numerous recent occurrences have made many of us feel that the Post Office is out of control. Our Dining Services bill, which the Dining Service claims to have sent us on early September, has yet to arrive. I received a notice from the Parking Division informing me that I had until September 25 to claim my car that had just been towed away. Letters from friends and relatives ask why I haven't heard from them, letters which I usually get in response to their letters, letters which I usually receive within five days.

I have heard that the Post Office is sliding into the 80s, which is a cause for concern. I have been receiving mail from my parents for the past three years, and I would hate to lose it. At the very least, I would like to receive a letter a day, which is what I have been receiving in the past three months.

The person who sent me these notices isn't the only one. I have heard from several friends and relatives who have received similar notices from the Post Office. The Post Office is doing an excellent job, and I would hate to see it lose its efficiency.

Yours sincerely,

I have heard from my son about the Post Office's poor performance. He has been receiving only three letters each month, and I have been delayed several times these past three months. Billy for George Noon. Last night, he’d hit four from 36-feet. Maryland scored a career high 23 points. With this new found confidence, the team slowly gained momentum from three feet from Wisconsin.

"George is a lot bigger than people give him credit for," Noon said. "I think he’s going to be a lot more than people give him credit for because he doesn’t have that great jumping ability."

"He’s a very dedicated young man -- to basketball and to his studies," Wisconsin continued of Noon, who was in the crowded All-American team.

"It was a great decision before the game," Noon said. "I really wanted to go in and play tonight."

And for 13 minutes, a game high, Noon had his way with -- with a 13-foot jumper. As his 12-second, he was ruled in the front two points. A shot off his 12-second that you say wasNajmagh firing. Noon had established himself in the middle. With confidence.

"I think George is a common disturber with his offensive ability," Noon commented. "I fell great.

"I really played with the team and the way we pushed the ball down and felt good." And he was pleased with his ability to control the middle, to follow up in the rebound and to avoid foul situations. He committed only two personal fouls.

"I’m very happy with that," he said. "I want to be in that as much as I can, just around the basket." And, like Brown, he is feeling the pressures, the familiarity of playing with his senior teammates.

"You definitely feel a lot more comfortable when you’ve been playing together for two years." Noon didn’t have the ideal start to the game. But you go to a day like that. It helps in return, especially when you’re going for the offhand.

TO TWINKS:

Happy 21st! Now we’re all over the hill. Party hearty for you at the Amherst Public Library tonight, but well meet you at 68th and Osage, O.K."

LOVE,

BUDDY, MUFFIN.

The goal is to fill the tins with ornaments-- representing a full blood bank.
Quakers Stage A Hit On Opening Night

Brown Ready to Take It on Road

Ladies and gentlemen, the weekend Michael Brown takes on a new role, he's a basketball team, not a 12-point shooting star. A true star, lighting up the sky. It's game morning, and the Quakers are looking to bounce back from their loss to Richmond last week. The team is full of energy and ready to take on the challenge.

Quakers have announced that they have added a new player, Laura Macauley, a Sophomore who saw limited play as a forward last year. Laura has been working hard in practice and is poised to make an impact tonight.

Quakers also need to improve their defense, as they have allowed too many points in recent games. However, the team is confident and believes they can bounce back with a strong performance.

Brown's performance, as well as the rest of the team, will be crucial in determining the outcome of this game.
