Broken Homes

Off-Campus Landlords: Let the Tenant Beware

By JENNY FROH

When College junior Warren Stewart and his companions entered their house on Baltimore Avenue last semester, they were not prepared for the abundance of problems which confronted them. They found broken windows, and a cellar filled with garbage. “Stewart said. “We didn’t know there were problems, but we were not prepared for the extent of them.

Although there may be problems with their houses or apartments, most students do not know the legal steps they may have available to them. Other options feel legal and may not work successfully.

Because they continued to be dissatisfied, Stewart and his companions to newspaper advertisements to find other students in the same situation who were interested in complaints they might file.

Stewart said few students responded to his advertisement. He attributed the low response to students’ belief that action against landlords was an impossible procedure.

“We were surprised, from what the newspaper reported,” Stewart said. “Trying to get other tenants involved really was a waste of time.”

Stewart continued, “We were surprised, from what the newspaper reported, that there were so few tenants interested in complaining about their landlords.

Stewart said few students responded to his advertisement. He attributed the low response to students’ belief that action against landlords was an impossible procedure.

“Everyone feels legal actions are impossible because of the cost and time involved,” Stewart said.

However, not all complaints may be impossible to file. If complaints are exaggerated, “Major repairs may be necessary,” Green said.

The Daily Pennsylvanian
The Newspaper of the University of Pennsylvania

By Lee Schalop

For the last year, announcements have come to the Press of a frequency and a tenor that are new to the country. The deaths of The Bulletin and The Daily Pennsylvanian, both recent events, foreshadow the possibility of other papers with the financial strength of those two. For newspapers to sit back and wait for news to come to them is to ensure their own demise. The Bulletin and The Daily Pennsylvanian will run the story sooner or better. I know what I'm talking about. Local newspapers that are not a substitute for hard-hitting print journalism.

They realized that the Pennsylvania is one of the most respected in the nation...

Get a new slant on math.

"The Texas Instruments new TI-40 and TI-55-II calculators have angled displays for easier-to-see answers.

The slanted display makes these calculators easy to work with at arm's length and that's just the beginning. The economical TI-40, with built-in functions like e-ring, stat, hyp, round, and more, will help you through math and science classes, especially since it comes with the informative book, Understanding Calculator Math.

The book explains how to use the TI-40 to work through, and understand, common problems. If you're an advanced math or science major, you'll be more interested in the TI-55-II, which is equipped with the Calculus Derivative-Making Featurebook. The TI-55-II features 56-step programmability, multiple memories, scientific and statistical operations, and much more - a total of 12 functions. An extremely powerful calculator, at an excellent price. Both calculators have LCD displays, long battery life, and a three-year warranty.

Big Five Title At Stake For Shorthanded W. Thincalcs

By ALAN MILLER

Coach Betty Costanza and co-captains Leya Meserio and Lori Vaud lead the women's track team into a battle which will determine bragging rights for the Ivy League in Cross Country this season.

Although she plans to use the Big Five meet as a gauge of how her time will be spent there's no reason why we shouldn't win both games.

W. Cagers—

Coach Mike Packer said after the Gaels lost to St. John's, "You can't win all the time. Anything can happen. We will be prepared, and we will show up on the floor, and we will play tough basketball."

The first team is expected to do in the future, she expects. "The measure of how her time is spent will also be first in the league."

Margie Bernard, Mary Pat Stein, and Kathy Carter.

"We hope to use the second squad just as much as we can," Ashley said. "We need good play out of them. When they go in there and play even or play even, we play our game and are able to win. If we can keep the players evenly distributed there are no "why shouldn't win both games."

W. Gymnasts Optimistic About Weekend Tri-Meet

By JEFF BRENLOW

Locals are getting ready for what might be their first ever weekend tri-meet. The Quakers' 16-1 lost Longwood and Glenrose last meet and are looking to reverse that mark this weekend.

The tri-meet consists of five meets: the first will be against the Longwood with the next against Glenrose and the final against Penn.- Ohio State. The Quakers are optimistic about the meet.

"It's our first ever tri-meet and we're very optimistic," said coach Janet Davis. "We've been working very hard and the team is very eager to get into this tri-meet." She feels that the up-and-coming sport thai a lot of people are not aware of, is gymnastics.

Davis Does Not Expect To Be In The Way

"I'm not really expecting to do too much," said Davis. "I don't think I'll be in the way and be a spoiler." She went on to say that she believes she will be a threat together than individually.

The Quaker's next game, the Ivy League opener against Penn, scheduled for this Saturday, is an important one. It is the final home game of the season for Penn, and the Quakers will be looking to make a statement in their final meeting of the season. With both teams fighting for positioning in the Ivy League, this game will be crucial for both sides. Penn is currently in third place with a record of 3-2-1, while the Quakers are in fifth place with a record of 2-3-0.

The game promises to be a high-scoring affair, with both teams having strong offenses. The Quakers have scored 33 goals in their previous six games, while Penn has scored 29 goals in their last five games. Both teams have also been strong defensively, with the Quakers allowing 24 goals and Penn allowing 26 goals in their respective six-game and five-game spans.

The Quakers will be led by senior goalkeeper Adam Blank, who has been a key cog in the team's defense this season. Blank has a .723 save percentage, which is among the best in the conference. The Penn offense, led by senior attackman John Smith, will be a tough challenge for the Quakers to contain. Smith has scored 18 goals and added 17 assists in 10 games this season.

On the other side, the Penn defense, led by senior defenseman Tom Halpin, will need to be at their best to limit the Quakers' scoring opportunities. Halpin has 16 caused turnovers and 12 ground balls this season, and his leadership will be crucial in holding back the Quakers' high-scoring offense.

The Quakers will also need to be mindful of the Penn attack, led by senior attackman Charlie Cuchin, who has scored 12 goals and added 11 assists in 10 games this season. Cuchin has been a key player for the Quakers, and his ability to create scoring opportunities will need to be contained.

The Quakers will be looking to continue their strong play on the road, where they have a 3-0-0 record this season. They have scored 22 goals and allowed 15 goals in their three road games.

The Penn defense, led by senior goalie Michael Mengel, will be a tough challenge for the Quakers to overcome. Mengel has a .671 save percentage, which is one of the best in the conference. The Penn offense, led by senior attackman Alex Duer, will need to be at their best to score against the Quakers' strong defense.
