Law Student Meeting Focuses on Problems

By MICHAEL SCHEHERAZADE
First-year law students in a "town meeting" yesterday announced they will not ask the Law School to call a Faculty of Arts and Sciences meeting, as they had voted in a previous meeting.

The students said they will instead present a list of recommendations to the school on problems in physical plant and grading policy, and present a list of people responsible for each.

Following the meeting, said "the main purpose of the meeting was to give some guidance tonight."

Students also discussed the possibility of a sit-in."We want to get people interested and establish a 'coalition of conscience' to promote racial justice on our campus."

Students, Faculty Prepare For Pass-Fail Conference

By STEVEN FORBES
Students, faculty members and administrators will meet tonight to discuss the possible elimination of the pass-fail option.

FAS Associate Dean Peter Considine yesterday said the meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the gym.

"We want to get people interested and establish a 'coalition of conscience' to promote racial justice on our campus."

Students also discussed the possibility of a sit-in. "We want to get people interested and establish a 'coalition of conscience' to promote racial justice on our campus."
The Academic Planning and Budget Committee invites faculty, students, and staff to participate in an open forum, as part of a University-wide review of the strategic planning working papers that appeared in Almanac on January 15, 1982.

OPEN FORUM
ON THE
SIX WORKING PAPERS FOR STRATEGIC PLANNING

Friday, February 19
3:00 Undergraduate Education
4:00 Graduate Education

Friday, February 26
3:00 Minority Faculty and Students
4:00 Education Outreach

Friday, March 2
3:00 Research
4:00 Ties with the City

Each session will be held in Room 102, Chemistry Building, 33rd & Spruce Streets. Committee members will be present as long after 5:00 p.m. as individuals wish to make presentations.

In view of the time constraints of each session, groups and individuals who plan to make presentations should contact Ms. Jacqueline Akins, Office of the Provost, 106 College Hall, Ext. 6841. The Committee encourages written summaries of all presentations.

---

Modern Languages College House

is now accepting applications for staff positions (Graduate Fellowships)
in Maison Francaise and Casa Hispana

Applications available at front desk,
Class of 1925 House, 3940 Locust Walk

Deadline for applications: March 1st

---

The Struggle Continues

How Long Will It Last?

(Continued from page 1)

O'Connor said he will draw down the student body to 1,000 people. "At 1,000 you can just handle it. A lot of the people sterilize their own brains and they are my interpretations of other people," he said.

Jim Wilson of Howard Hall Room 123 said the student body could be cut to 700 people. "I don't think we can handle it at this level," he added that the college should take gradual steps to reduce the student body.

With the transition of getting the alumni back, O'Connor and his collaborators are trying to arrange a forum for the students to discuss the future of the college. He said that the group is the best of Electric Factory Coworkers, the association that represents the faculty at the school.

He added that the college is trying to do the right thing, but the university administration is not.

"I think it might really go anywhere, but one area of the concern that seems to be a sticking point is the student body," Conn said.

---

Engineering Musician

(Continued from page 1)

While flying is frustrating, the grade point average of people who are taking it is 1.75, Conn said. Conn added that only about half of the students who are taking the course are doing it for a grade. "It's hard to say how many people are taking it for a grade," he added.

Charlie Rich, a student representative to the Committee on Undergraduate Education, said, however, that a new, comprehensive, and detailed study of the course should be taken before the college makes any decisions.

He added that air coverage should be cut back to the alumni's reports.

With the transition of getting the alumni back, O'Connor and his collaborators are trying to arrange a forum for the students to discuss the future of the college. He said that the group is the best of Electric Factory Coworkers, the association that represents the faculty at the school.

He added that the college is trying to do the right thing, but the university administration is not.

"I think it might really go anywhere, but one area of the concern that seems to be a sticking point is the student body," Conn said.

---

Pass-Fail Meeting Preparations

---

Congressmen Support Budget Reform

WASHINGTON - Despite all the alienation among the members of the House of Representatives, a number of the members have expressed interest in the possibility of a budget reform bill. A number of the members have expressed interest in the possibility of a budget reform bill.

Several Republican leaders have expressed interest in the possibility of a budget reform bill. A number of the members have expressed interest in the possibility of a budget reform bill.

The House majority leader, John D. Anderson, expressed interest in the possibility of a budget reform bill. A number of the members have expressed interest in the possibility of a budget reform bill.

Other members have expressed interest in the possibility of a budget reform bill. A number of the members have expressed interest in the possibility of a budget reform bill.
"Number-One Enemy"

Speaker Calls for Elimination of Hazing

By NINA LUI
Calling hazing "the number-one enemy of the Greek world," Edwin Stevens signed over 50 fraternities at Stevens to stop within 10 years to his campaign. "I believe," he said, "that hazing is against the principles of friendship, trust, and honor."

The case was the death of Chuck Stenzel, 20, from alcohol poisoning in a hazing rite. His death was ruled an "accidental death from an alcoholic ingestion." The investigation was completed, and he said, "Ha/ing does not fit with those principles, and the case was not properly handled."

Stevens said that the threat of public exposure and potentially harmful publicity to fraternities was the motivation for his campaign. He added, "I believe it will take publicity to implement change." Stevens said that he was interested in bringing the issue into the open and said that he believed that it would help them gain a closer look at their own activities.

As she began to gain publicity through television, radio, and public appearances, Stevens said, "I believe it will help them gain a closer look at their own activities and that they are working seriously to change."

"For your added convenience..."

The School of Dental Medicine at 40th and Spruce now accepts Master Card and Visa for your dental care.

For more information, call 243-8965.

WISH SOMEONE SPECIAL HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY... WITH A DP VALENTINE

ON SALE NOW

2 Locations

Locust Walk across from Dietrich 4015 Walnut Street 11 am - 3 pm Rain Location: Houston Hall First Floor

- Only $4 per column inch - $3 additional charge for color.

Deadline: Wed., Feb. 10, 3 pm
Dear Editor:
The key factor in determining one's ability to process information is the extent to which we can concentrate on and retain information. In the process of learning, a new low was reached in the realm of capabilities, as the letter entitled "Hackney's First Year: A Job Well Done?" reveals.

The author begins by congratulating President Hackney on his first year at the university. His observations of Hackney's leadership are critical, highlighting a lack of productivity and initiative. The author suggests that Hackney's policies and actions have failed to meet the expectations set by his predecessor, President Rodriguez. The analysis is critical, urging the reader to consider the implications of Hackney's tenure on the university's future.

Regarding the decision to cut the budget, the author expresses concern, questioning the wisdom of such a move in light of Hackney's previous announcements. The author argues that the cuts may not be well-received by the students, who rely on the university for education and support. The author concludes by calling for more thoughtful and strategic decisions from the university administration.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
From sentimental . . .

to just plain silly . . .

THE BOOK STORE

has dozens of VALENTINE'S gift ideas . . .

Stationery and Cards

Candy

Tiny chocolate hearts to impressive imported sweets

Mugs

with a message

Cuddly stuffed animals

just to say . . .

THE BOOK STORE

3729 Locust Walk

(215) 243-7595

© University of Pennsylvania
By ROBERT SPEEL

The College Republicans and College Democrats will hold a debate tonight, focusing on economic issues and foreign policy. The debate, which will take place at 8 p.m. in room 306 of Houston Hall, is being sponsored by the two political organizations. The debate is part of a larger series of events in the United States and is in response to political awareness among University students.

College Republicans President Bruce Good said he hopes the debate will create interest in current political issues. This past week, the debate was canceled due to unforeseen circumstances, but the College Republicans were able to reschedule tonight.

Included in the debate will be a 10-15 minute discussion on the role of government in the U.S. with special emphasis on the role of the government in the Democratic and Republican programs.

Lowery, the event, will be an hour-long discussion on the role of government in the U.S. with special emphasis on the role of the government in the Democratic and Republican programs.

The debate will be held in Houston Hall, a 400-seat auditorium. The debate is open to the public and is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.

The debate is being held in Houston Hall because of its large capacity and its location in the center of campus. The debate is being advertised through college newspapers and bulletin boards.

Lowery, who is the College Republicans' national candidate, is running for the U.S. Senate. He is a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives and is currently a candidate for the Pennsylvania Senate. Lowery is running in a race against incumbent Republican Senator Arlen Specter.
Students Attend Graduation Speaker Choice

In Michael Nadler

Student leaders continue to resist University's attempts to base its choice of commencement speaker on student preferences. The students' attempts to have an input on the choice have been met with mixed results.

The current regulations require all schools to submit lists of possible candidates, and the administration's choice. The students, however, have not been involved in these processes, she added. Yesterday she also had not heard that the committee was reviewing their recommendation.

"The university, as far as we know, has not given students a choice to participate in the selection of their commencement speaker," she added.

The students also have sought to have more grades to make a more informed decision, to make the choice more democratic.

"I would think that the faculty club is more of a forum that is free from the constraints of the University," she added.

Yesterday, the administration asked the students for their suggestions on the choice of commencement speaker, but the students were not given a chance to participate.

"The students have not been involved in these processes," she added. "We are not sure how much of an input the students have had in this decision, but we are hoping that they are given a chance to have a say in the choice of commencement speaker."
THE DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN — Tuesday, February 9, 1982

PAGE 8

ONE DAY ONLY.

THURS., FEB. 11
1 PM: STUDENTS $3.50
GEN AD 15.00
8 PM: STUDENTS $5.00
GEN AD 17.00

ZELLERBACH THEATER

"A KISSIN', GRAPPIN', SMOKIN', AMBER BEAUTY"

A New Play by JACQUES BLONDEAU

$4.50

WALSH'S CAVERN

on 41st St., between Walnut and Locust Sts.

Bee a Part of University City Since 1903.

Presented By PUC in Conjunction With The

Anneberg Center As Part Of The Year 101 Celebration

Tick Tix On Sale At H.H. Tit and

The Anneberg Box Office

ANNENBERG CENTER

CALL 243-6971

Shoremaker-Rasko

lsat Gmat GRE®

PREPARATION

lntensive tutoring only.

6-8 hrs. of classroom instruction.

A 5-day course is available.

Our Guarantee

If you take the test and score better than your previous course, we will pay for the highest score we gave you.

For more info call 412-684-4367

OUR GUARANTEE

Excellent instruction and results. A proven winning team. Wheels turned to get the best results.

Offered by Zeuder, Inc., Pittsburgh.

A Biblical Forum

The Origin Of Evil

Ideas of Sun Myung Moon

Are Adam & Eve for real?

Why is there suffering?

Did God create evil?

Husky Hall, 8:30

Tuesday, Feb. 9, 7:30 pm

Head Resident Positions Available

The Office of Residential Living will have openings for Head Resident positions for academic year 1982-83. A Head Resident has responsibilities for shared supervision of the programming and operational activities of a residence unit, supervision of RA's and work with student groups.

Qualifications: Supervisory experience or previous residential advisor experience, administrative and human relations skills. Applicant must be at least prepared to enter senior year of undergraduate study, or graduate study. Applicants should also be full time students for 1982-83.

Applications available from area offices (Grad B, Homewood House). Quad office is the Office of Residential Living. High Rise North.

Application deadline: February 15, 1982

The Department of Residential Living is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.

Combining gifting, scholarships, and fellowships, the University's fellowship pool is worth $4 million, according to Dr. John Goddard, president of the University. Dr. Goddard said the University's fellowship pool is worth $4 million.

"The University fellowship pool has more than doubled in the last five or six years," Dr. Goddard said. "It would be an excellent thing if the University could add additional funding to support graduate study and research."

Aside from recommending an increase in fellowship funding, the report presented four other options for discussion by the University community: These include:

- Increasing the number of students involved in graduate courses to take graduate courses and fulfill requirements for graduate degree.

- Elimination of duplication of course for strong graduate groups.
- An increased reliance on the appreciation approach to graduate study.

"The consolidation of some graduate groups - to develop outstanding and unique programs." Although the report discussed this.

- "We are not a strong enough commitment to fellowship funding."

"Fellowship funding was "ironic." Dr. Goddard said. "We are not a strong enough commitment to fellowship funding, although we believe the report was valuable. Its emphasis on fellowship funding, although we believe the report was well intented, although we believe the report was well intented, although we believe the report was well intented."

"Everyone seems to recognize the level of fellowship funds is disappearing," Dr. Goddard said. "I haven't seen concrete steps to attract fellowship funds." "The working group recommendation was that we had a level of fellowship funding which belies Buck County Committee College and our University of Pennsylvania," he said.

Looking For a job in Paralegal Research?

Covington & Burling of Washington, D.C.

will be on campus in late February to interview for Paralegals

Interested students should hand in their resumes to the Corporate Placement Service at 4025 Chestnut Street.

Deadline for all resumes is February 15th

A detailed job description is available at Corporate Placement - 4025 Chestnut St. and Career Planning & Placement, Houston Hall.

How to impress a student body.

Valentine's Day is February 14. Impress him or her with an FTD Valentine Bud Vase. A beautiful bouquet set in an attractive heart-shaped vase. And at an affordable price. Stop by your nearest FTD. Vancouver. It's the perfect way to get that special student body to warm up to you.

Get ready for Valentine's Day

with special editions of the Card Shop

Houston Hall Card Shop

Downstairs Houston Hall

Mon. to Fri. 8:00-6:00 Sat. 11:00-4:00

Sun. Valentine's Day 10:00-5:00

Send it with special care.

Send it with special care.
Cagars—

- (Continued from page 16)

won two games in a row, and eight of always finds ways to neutralize the op-coach," Kevin Warren said. "He against city opponents and also leaves share of the city title. A Penn win overawed.

- (Continued from page 2)

something they will undoubtedly need long-term. "There's just no question about it," Ashe is in to stay. It is clear that Penn will not be something new, but the Quakers have that will greatly increase the team speed. Ethan Kahn, among others, had a Penn's slower set-up game.

The Quaker men had a difficult time keeping their heads above water in the last three games they were on.

H. Swimmers Clobbered, Wireless Skinin Eight

BY MARC ASHLEY

A combination of strong opponents is not a creative measure to apply to a losing streak. But the Penn swimming team is not a team that can continue losing, as the Quakers well know. The last three games will be the last three games for the Quakers, as the team will not be in action until February.

On Saturday, the Quakers had the last game of the season. The Pennsylvania game plan could just as easily be repeated as a Penn game. If the Quakers can win this game, they will not continue losing.

"We have been two years in a row," George Breen, referring to his expectations of a closer meet. "It (score) really keeps me down. Thank you for being able to fight fire with fire against them. It is a lot easier to
"The Quaker men had a difficult time keeping their heads above water in the last three games they were on.

The Quaker men had a difficult time keeping their heads above water in the last three games they were on.

The Quaker men had a difficult time keeping their heads above water in the last three games they were on.

The Quaker men had a difficult time keeping their heads above water in the last three games they were on.

The Quaker men had a difficult time keeping their heads above water in the last three games they were on.
Cagers Eye Victory

Winning Streaks On Line Against Soaring Owls

By Peter Fiedler

For all six people with memories, it's true. For a little over a month, Penn has been playing the game since Penn played in its Big Five first game, and you may have forgotten what that is like. You've never seen a team with so much confidence. Penn may have just come out of the most difficult part of its season. That, however, does not mean the Quakers are over.

"They have that kind of confidence," said Ashley's Head Coach Lois Ashley. "This team has been playing well for a long time, and they have a lot of tradition behind them."

The Quakers have come on strong, gelting- to an 8-2 record in the Ivy League. The women's team has won the last two Ivy games, and the men's team has won the last three Ivy games. The Quakers have had a lot of success this season, and they have some tough opponents coming up. The Quakers are currently on a four-game winning streak, and they are looking to continue their success.

The Quakers have been playing well for a long time, and they have a lot of tradition behind them. They have been playing well for a long time, and they have a lot of tradition behind them. They have been playing well for a long time, and they have a lot of tradition behind them. They have been playing well for a long time, and they have a lot of tradition behind them. The Quakers have been playing well for a long time, and they have a lot of tradition behind them. The Quakers have been playing well for a long time, and they have a lot of tradition behind them.