Faculty Seek End to Intervention
Coalition Protests Aid to El Salvador

STEVEN SWEENEY

In an unusual and rare move, students and faculty members of the National Center for the Study of AIDS have united to form a coalition to protest the United States' involvement in El Salvador. The coalition consists of several organizations, including the Progressive Student Alliance, the International Affairs Association, and the Latin American Studies Association. It is composed of scholars, politicians, and journalists who have been concerned with the effects of the United States' military assistance to El Salvador.

The coalition is seeking to draw attention to the human rights abuses committed by the Salvadoran government in its efforts to suppress rebel activity. Members of the coalition have been trained in commando tactics by the Salvadoran government, and more than 1000 soldiers have been sent to El Salvador to suppress rebel activity. The coalition is calling on the United States to halt its military assistance to El Salvador.

Law Dorms May Get 24-Hour Security Unit

AMES ALEXANDER

A consulting firm may be retained to install a 24-hour security system in Law dorms. Students and faculty members of the law center have expressed concern over the lack of security on the campus. The law center is one of the few centers on the campus that do not have 24-hour security personnel.

The new system will include a central control room, which will be staffed around the clock. It will also include smoke detectors and motion detectors, which will alert security personnel to any potential threats.

HACKNEY ASKS MORE AID FROM STATE LEGISLATURE

EVELYN FRANK

Pennsylvania Governor Jeremiah E. Knox has requested an increase in state funding for Penn. Knox said he will meet with Penn representatives to discuss the possibility of increased funding for the University.

The governor stressed the importance of realizing a surplus in the state budget. He added that he will keep close watch on the University's financial situation. The University had previously received support for the construction of the new science building.

Abscam-Scarred Sen. Williams Resigns

Sen. Frank R. Lautenberg (D-N.J.) said Thursday that he is resigning his seat, a post which was made famous by the 1981 Abscam sting operation.

"I have chosen to resign," Lautenberg said in a letter addressed to New Jersey Gov. Jim McGreevey. "I intend to resign at the close of the Senate session." Lautenberg, 70, was elected to the Senate in 1978 and served as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee from 1995 to January 2007.

Lautenberg is the senator who heads the Senate Appropriations Committee, which controls billions of dollars in federal funds. He is also the ranking Democrat on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Residents Fight Crime With U. City Townwatch

By ROBERT WELLS

Before settling in the Spruce Hill neighborhood Tuesday night, three men sat in an old car. They ventured these dark streets, through traffic, and planets spot a crime occurring, he can im-

O'Malley became upset over the rash of robberies in his neighborhood. He and his wife own a lovely corner home at 1046th Streets and south of Market Street. He made an immediate report to "base," where another rownwatch patroler had been burglarized repeatedly. It became evident that his grocer's store was just the tip of the iceberg.

The neighborhood lawyer has also donated a set of laws for the neighborhood. The usual reason members give up Saturday nights to go "patrolling" townwatch members, although a "slow" night, is quite satisfying. It makes people feel as though they are doing something to help their community.

Though O'Malley, in fact, calls the night "quiet." But spotting crimes is the glamour part of the job. It's a lot of responsibility, but it's worth it. The night's patrol turned out to be a successful one.

Several area businesses, circulars, and weekly meetings helped to increase the program's public with signs in "spots." The only excitement came from springing friends on the street or listening to other parts of the city.

A group of people who give up every Saturday night to go "patrolling" townwatch members, although a "slow" night, is quite satisfying. It makes people feel as though they are doing something to help their community.

CGS Plans Workshop on Aging Parents

By LAUREN COLEMAN

The problems of caring for an aging parent will be discussed at a College of General Studies workshop scheduled for April 1 in the McNeil Building. The workshop, sponsored by the Training Center Extension Department of the College of General Studies, will explore the different situations and circumstances in which these problems may be encountered. The workshop will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon and is open to anyone interested in these problems.

There are many factors to be considered in the preparation for an aging parent. One of these is the selection of the appropriate type of continuing care for the parent. There are several forms of care available, and these will be discussed during the workshop. The workshop will be held in the Center Extension Department of the College of General Studies. Following the workshop, there will be a forum on the care of the aging parent, and there will be a discussion of the issues involved.

The workshop will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon and is open to anyone interested in these problems.

The road to the Sweet Sixteen begins tonight when the St. John's Redmen face the George Washington University Colonials in the opening round of the NCAA Tournament. The Redmen are in the East Regional, which is one of the four regional tournaments that make up the NCAA Tournament. The Redmen enter the tournament as the second seed in their bracket and will face the winner of the first-round game between Villanova and Wake Forest.

The Redmen have had a successful season, winning 21 of their 30 regular-season games. They have a record of 17-6 in conference play. The Redmen are led by a strong core of experienced players, including junior forward Russell Hines, senior guard John Connolly, and sophomore guard Mike King. The Redmen have a balanced scoring attack, with five players averaging 10 or more points per game.

The Colonials are led by senior forward Chris Mullin, who is averaging 19.2 points per game. Mullin is a versatile player who can score from anywhere on the court. The Colonials have a balanced scoring attack, with six players averaging 10 or more points per game.

This will be the first meeting between the two teams. The Redmen are favored to win this game, but the Colonials are a tough team and will be looking to pull off an upset. The Redmen will need to play well defensively to limit the Colonials' scoring opportunities. The Redmen have a strong defense, with a record of 17-6 in conference play. They should be able to contain the Colonials' offense and advance to the Sweet Sixteen.
