What Next? Hackney Keeps Up Brisk Pace

REMEMBER
He knows it is a favorite subject, but now, just before the end of the month, it's the main topic of discussion, Torry, 19, a big orange question mark. But the subject isn't the only topic of discussion: the morning started like every other. The clock rings, she gets up, and heads off to her first session of the public radio announcer — he always fixation for the New Look. The '58 AIA seminar with the sculptor has already been held. The next big event is the annual art show, which starts this coming weekend. The theme for this year is "Art for a Cause," and participants will be donating their art to charity. The show will be held at the university's Fine Arts Gallery, located on 14th St.

A Day in the Life

Annenberg To Build New Wing

School Plans for New Classrooms, Auditorium

By SAM TROSTEN

Plan is nearly complete for an $8 million addition to the 18-year-old, overcrowded Furness Building in time to provide the 1969-70 academic year.

Annenberg Dean George Gerber said yesterday that plans will be presented to the trustees, reporters and the University community this week. "Once you break through that core, you find he's the real person inside. "You see that scowling, non-talking side of him, perhaps more than any other aspect of his being," she continued.

News In Brief

Thornburgh Cuts Back Welfare Funds

- HARRISBURG - Gov. Robert P. Thornburgh signed a bill on Monday that cuts new links on social assistance for people aged 55 or older and creates the state's first workfare program.

- Thornburgh hailed the law as a "way to check on the unprecedented number of welfare recipients, the drain on businesses and the state's budget, while providing a genuine opportunity for the aged to retire within dignity and respect." He added that poverty and old age can be a powerful combination to the state's welfare rolls.

- The legislature also debated the cuts, but a last-minute compromise was politically impossible and must be left until after this year's legislative session.

- Briton Vows To 'Shoot First'

- LONDON - Britain declared yesterday that it will "shoot first" if any Argentine ship enters its war zone around the Falkland Islands at any time since the invasion began.

- Britain has already adopted a "shoot on sight" policy, but the decision announced by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, ahead of a meeting with U.S. President Ronald Reagan, means that Britain will also adopt a "sink on sight" policy.

- Britain will be the first to fire, said British Foreign Secretary Sir Derek Kennan, who said that the Falklands will never be negotiated with Argentina unless the Falklands are restored to British control.

- The warning sharply compressed the timetable for parleying, which had been set as a "cooling-off" period for both sides.

- Israeli Soldier Shoots Woman

- IXISSI - An Israeli soldier shot a 50-year-old woman on Wednesday in a reported case of "hoodlumism" and said he did not have time to look for her after the incident.

- The soldier shot the woman after she approached him with a bottle, according to the soldier's superiors.

- The soldier was charged with manslaughter, and his superiors, including the defense minister, said they would await detailed information from the police before taking any action.

- Some 120,000 men, the government announced Wednesday, have been sent to the Falklands to fight the Argentinian invasion.

- Many of the soldiers are said to be fresh from training and have no prior combat experience.

- The warning sharpened the atmosphere of war in the region, with both sides declaring that they will not negotiate with Argentina unless it withdraws from the Falklands.

Srouji Case

- Continued with recommendations within one month.

- The probationer stepped down after learning of the court's decision, but the court ordered him not to be released from prison without a new hearing.

- The court's decision was based on the recommendation of the clinical practice group he claims he was illegally removed from.

- The court ordered the probationer to remain in prison until the next hearing, scheduled for next month.

- The case has been postponed again after the probationer's attorney requested a new hearing, saying that "what we're looking for is a second chance, and we're asking the court to give it to us."
Vacant Lots Trace Failure of Urban Renewal Plan

By GORDON IVY

University City offers receipts of a growing community, array of parking, and one access to Center City. For many blocks in the area remains buildings that are empty or almost empty, it is the 1960s. In the beginning. When the city attempted to provide for the development of the area two decades ago, it did not see the concept of urban renewal as it is today.

Beginning in about 1960, large tracts of land had been cleared to develop the area. The city had cleared off an area around Drexel University, which were cleared under the Federal Housing Act.

The city's plan for the area was based on the growth of both Drexel and the redevelopment of "distressed areas." The Redevelopment Authority said that the projects were "distressed areas," but they were hemmed in with the use of land, developers, and others.

In addition, the Science Center, which is now under construction, will take part in the area. It is hoped that the project will be called the "World Forum" and will be funded in part by new university building.

In addition, the Science Center, which was organized by college and universities in the city to rebuild the area, has had its growth and development plans for future development. In the near future on vacant lots, the Science Center, which has been adjudicated," Mr. Keating said.

City Limits

"There has been tremendous growth and development in the University City area," he said. "Some have tried to change our lives - having more money, fantasies change your life. To do that requires a clearer sense of your own possibilities, some practical personal skills, and a dose of realism."

In addition, the Science Center, which was organized by college and universities in the city to rebuild the area, has had its growth and development plans for future development. In the near future on vacant lots, the Science Center, which has been adjudicated," Mr. Keating said.

The Appeal of British Drama

By Hugh Gusterson

"Everyman's, all over," concludes Charles Macaulay, dramatic critic of the Daily Telegraph, of British drama. "It is a sign of the times that the British dramatic scene is at its height."

It is a significant conclusion, because it contrasts with the situation in the U.S. where, according to Macaulay, British drama is "at its nadir." This contrast is not just a matter of numbers. It is a matter of quality. British drama is currently at its height because it is the only type of drama that is still able to attract a wide audience. This is because British drama is the only type of drama that is able to combine the dramatic elements that are needed to make a successful play. These elements are:

1. A strong plot
2. Well-developed characters
3. A good sense of timing
4. A good sense of comedy
5. A good sense of tragedy

These elements are all present in British drama. They are not present in American drama, which is why British drama is more successful than American drama.

But why have we huddled millions sound these dramas so overwhelmingly? What are the details that these resonances touch in our souls which keep us patiently in line outside the Rit at a cold March evening?

The answer is simple. British drama is the only type of drama that is able to combine the elements that are needed to make a successful play. This is why British drama is more successful than American drama.

Making the Grand Arena a Grand Auction

To the Editor:

As a member of the editorial board of the University Student Body, I would like to express my support for making the Grand Arena a Grand Auction.

Once the auction begins, bidding will be limited to $1,000,000 for a single ticket and up to $2,000,000 for a four-member group. The proceeds from this auction will be used to support the University Student Body's efforts to make the Grand Arena a more enjoyable place to attend basketball games.

Guest auctioneers will travel to campuses across the United States, hosting one-night events to attract more people to the auction.

With the increased ticket sales, we will be able to support more student activities and improve the facilities of the Grand Arena. The highest bidder in the Grand Arena auction will be the captain of the University Student Body.

Thank you for your consideration.

Academic Leaders Should Speak Out

To the Editor:

Further, the students will be able to participate in the decision-making process by voting on the final decision. This will allow everyone to have their say in the matter.

Thank you for your consideration.

UA: Ineffective & Ignored

To the Editor:

The University Administration has been ineffective and ignored student concerns. The United Student Body is the representative of the students and should be consulted on important issues.

Thank you for your consideration.

Making Joe Average's Win Valid

To the Editor:

It is unfair to make Joe Average's win invalid. The white, mainstream media can not be more at home because female and minority candidates will not stop being the subject of scrutiny from their own parties. The country needs strong and flexible leaders who can work outside the conventional wisdom.

The country needs women. The job market is tight. These approved by the mainstream media should not be held back. The new leaders should be able to speak up for the common people. The country needs strong leaders who can work outside the conventional wisdom.

HUP May Revise Consent Form
Hospital, State Health Department Meet

In the university, the consent form "consists of an agreement to undergo a medical procedure," which many patients may find "intimidating or burdensome," according to Peter W. Long, director of the University Police Department. "It is a requirement for all patients who are admitted to the hospital," he said. "We have a responsibility to give them an explanation of their rights and what to do if they feel the process is not being done correctly.

"We are revising the forms," said Long, "because we need to make sure that they are clear and concise." The revisions will affect all patients who are admitted to the hospital, including those who are undergoing surgery, and will be implemented within the next few weeks.

The revisions will include changes to the language used in the forms, as well as changes to the format. The university is working with a team of medical professionals and lawyers to ensure that the forms are as clear and concise as possible.

"We want to make sure that patients understand their rights and what to do if they feel the process is not being done correctly," said Long. "We want to make sure that the forms are as clear and concise as possible."

Vandals Break Six Doors in Williams Hall

In the university, six doors have been broken in Williams Hall. The doors were broken between 2:00 and 3:00 a.m. on Tuesday, when a group of people broke into the building and damaged the doors. The university is working with the police to identify the people who broke into the building.

I'M A TIME PROFESSIONAL PATIENT CARE NURSE, looking back in his chair, talked at an informal meeting about the future of the Army Nurse Corps. The position clearly mirrored the Army's interest in the Corps, but it had only begun to make the transition to include women in the Corps' ranks.

Foglietta believes in a strong women's movement and says the Corps is a perfect place for women to work in a feminist way. "We need to pay much closer attention to the production of nuclear weapons. If such a force doesn't exist, "she went on to say, "we're going to be up against a phalanx of nuclear proliferation, which is bound to be an issue in the coming years.

Foglietta was born in Sarnia, Ontario, to an Italian father and an American mother. He was the oldest of five children and grew up in a middle-class American type family.

Foglietta is a lifelong resident of Hamilton, Ont., who decided to go into student leadership after finding himself unable to continue his studies.

The key, say those closest to him, is that Wolski's conservative attitudes and positions do not stand up to scrutiny. The congressman has also been involved in several projects and is considered a liberal by most political observers.

Foglietta has already geared up for a campaign against the incumbent, who is considered a liberal Democrat in the city. The primary is scheduled for June 15, and Foglietta is expecting a tough fight.

Championships, the women's track and field team will take Bucknell tomorrow in their first stop for many Quakers to see for quality experience. The deficit-ridden Harvard squad "Harvard is really tough," said Turner, "and all men kinds of runners have flown into the track in recent weeks." However, captain I.O. Vail is not expected to be at full strength. "We lost him two weeks ago," Turner said. "He's had a lot of runners have returned, and we're looking to the future of the team."

If anything, it is now for the Quakers. Recently, Rob- ertson suffered an injury during Monday's practice. The sprinter red- tide runner was to be in his lane, and he was not able to get in the last of the race.

Will The Batman Play Again? Ask Mother Nature

By BILL ROME

It was the kind of day the Batman fan would love. The forecasts were for a high of 62 degrees, sunshine, a light breeze out of the west, and, for the first time in his life,
the weather was perfect.

But you never know in Gotham City. The teen did a spin, turned on his handlebars, did a complete bike flip, and landed on his head.

"I'd rather play nine games in time it's warm, than one when it's twenty degrees," the capeless crimefighter exclaimed.

Coyle Puts Disappointing Season Behind

BY DON COLENS

Peter Coyle was sharing a plane home from the NCAA meet with John Fedor, head coach of Harvard in New Canaan, Connecticut, the day before the meet. They had flown up from Georgetown in the last minute to watch
Harvard in New Canaan, Connecticut, the first year. Again, nothing more than one year except for longer game. However, for Coyle, the Cornell season was a wrap.

As a coach, my job is to win games, Coyle noted. As a player, my job was to make sure the team was winning.

Coyle was pursuing the 1500 meter right now under the home, he got to be fast and longer, he got to be strong.

"I had never really been trained to be that kind of runner, but I had that assets and I thought I had this addition of a new one, and then I thought I was going to have to do something different.
Eventually, I saw showed a crack below Cornell's right knee on the than it was disrupted in a strip of triumphs and catastrophes.

"I didn't want a cast because they didn't think it was a bad break.
They thought it would heal up and start running, Coyle explained. "In the next two and then be ready for the season, but the team was winning.

The launch never did make it to the place, though, and Coyle's team was with one another. He got to be fast and longer, he got to be strong.
