Complaints, Accusations Engulf Analysis Center

In October, 1985, faculty member Cal Harris wrote an anonymous letter to the editor of the student newspaper, The Daily Pennsylvanian, claiming she had been unfairly dismissed from her research project at the Wharton Center. Then she notified the university about the incident, and an internal review was conducted.

A Center of Controversy

A five-part look at the Analysis Center Case

The charges, from unproven to serious, compelled University Provost Lawrence L. S. Finger to conduct a formal inquiry into the matter. The review was completed in mid-August, and it was announced in fall that the university would not pursue any further action against Harris.

The faculty also had its say in the matter, and a group of faculty members, including those who had worked with Harris, wrote an open letter to the Daily Pennsylvanian expressing their concern about the incident and the way it was handled.

The case illustrates the complex nature of academic freedom and the challenges faced in maintaining a fair and open environment for all members of the university community. It also raises questions about the role of the university administration in addressing such issues.

Nine U. Professors Win Guggenheim Fellowships

A total of 80 fellows were named this year, including 40 jewelers, 10 architects, 20 photographers and 10 dancers. The fellowships are given to outstanding artists, scholars and scientists who are at the peak of their careers.

The fellowship is designed to provide time and freedom for fellows to pursue their work without the pressures of teaching or other obligations. It is a chance to focus solely on their art or research.

The recipients include some of the most respected figures in their fields, with a wide range of backgrounds and interests. They represent a diverse array of disciplines, from the arts to the sciences.

This year's class includes 13 artists, 15 writers, 10 musicians, 10 dancers, 10 architects, 10 jewelers and 10 photographers.

The fellowship is funded by the Guggenheim Foundation, which was established in 1925 by A. Alfred Guggenheim, a mining engineer and philanthropist.

Married Undergraduates Divorce College Lifestyle

Monday Feature

Buckley married during his junior year in high school, and as a result, did not even attend his senior prom. "It was all about doing what everyone else was doing," he said. "I was 17, my life was a party, and I was just being petty." Buckley said he had "no room for guilt" and that he was focusing on his career.

"I like to think that things have improved since then," he said. "I've learned to be more responsible, and I've learned to put my family first." Buckley said he was now developing a strong interest in marriage and family studies, and he was looking into the possibility of pursuing a master's degree in the field.

"I'm not exactly sure what I want to do with my life," he said. "But I do know that I want to be with someone who will support me and love me for who I am." Buckley said he was hoping to find someone who would be a good match for him, and he was looking forward to the future.

A New Locale

Sweeten Alumni Center To Open by May

By participating in a semester-long study abroad program, students have the opportunity to gain international experience and exposure to different cultures.

The back of the center has a picture of alumni, staff, and faculty members. The center also includes a newsletter for alumni and important events. The alumni have been invited to attend the opening event, and they are excited about the new facility.

The center will be located at the heart of the campus, which is the best location for alumni gatherings and events.

Probes Continue into Analysis Center

The probes continue into the analysis center, and the investigation is ongoing. The panel members are working to resolve this mess.

The experience at other universities has been helpful in understanding the situation at Sweeten. The alumni association is working closely with the administration to ensure a smooth transition.

The location is great, and the alumni are looking forward to a successful opening.

FAS Deanship Search

The FAS Deanship Search committee is working on identifying the ideal candidate for the position. The search process is ongoing, and the committee is evaluating candidates based on their qualifications and experience.

The experience at other universities has been helpful in the search process. The committee is committed to finding the best candidate for the position.

Laxmen Fall To Red, 6-5
Sudden-Death Score Halts Quaker Comeback

BRYAN HARRIS

The Quakers'controls didn't exactly run up the score, but certainly halted the Fordham comeback in time. The Fordham faucet was turned off in the final seconds of the game when Fordham's promise was frustrated by Penn's sudden-death score with only .53 seconds remaining on the clock.

The Quakers' rate was sealed when Sandy Phillips knocked in the winning goal, her second of the day, tying the score at 6-6. Cornell's game-winner, an insurance score, came in the only remaining time of the game.

The Quakers overcame a 4-2 deficit to seize the lead on a pair of goals late in the fourth quarter. With only 2:54 left on the clock, Sandy Phillips tied the game at 6-6 with a goal on the penalty shot. Cornell'sprestashoping defense thwarted the Quakers' attempts to extend the lead.

Quakers' best chances in the game came in the first half when the big men of the Red's defense helped the Quakers in the second half. The Quakers' defense held firm in the final seconds, preventing Fordham from scoring.

Despite the loss, the Quakers' offense remained strong, outscoring the Redmen 27-15. Fordham's Bobby Smith led all scorers with 6 goals, while Quakers' John Smolokofsky had 5 goals.

Quakers' goalie Bill Faller faced 11 shots in the Quaker goal during the Quaker's 6-5 heartbreaking loss to the Red in their 6-5 victory.

April Is Just Plain Rotten, So Let's Turn to Football

April's the month of progress. The students of the University of Pennsylvania, during the coldest months, may have had a bad attitude. However, April is supposedly the month of renewal, and we hope this is the month that Penn Stadium will be filled.

The Spring Football Season is here! And the Penn football team has already been back at it for several weeks, working hard to prepare for the upcoming season. The team has been practicing in the open air, and the players are looking forward to the new season.

Netmen Drop 6-3 Decisions To Army, Red

By BOICE CALDER

The Penn Netmen dropped both of their weekend matches last weekend, the first to Pennsylvania's watchful eye, the second to the aggressive Redmen.

"We were not as good today, but we were better than the Redmen," said head coach Fred L. Smith.

In the Penn net, the game was played at a fast pace. The Redmen's routine was disrupted by the speed of the Penn players, and the Redmen were unable to maintain control of the game.

The Redmen, on the other hand, struggled to keep up with the pace set by the Penn players. They were unable to contain the Penn players, and the Penn players were able to make easy goals.

The Penn Netmen will be looking to bounce back this weekend against Yale and Harvard. Good luck, Netmen!
