Students Sponsor Forum on Working Paper

Students will discuss the working paper on undergraduate education in an open forum in Hill House tonight.

Undergraduate Assembly, forum organizer Richard Barr, said the sessions, scheduled for 9:30, is an attempt to make students aware of long-term planning. The discussion this evening concerns "sage on aopes propositions which are interesting to undergraduates" Barr said.

Barrons will begin the forum with a short presentation evaluating the various parts of the working paper, and then the meeting will be opened to discussion.

The Engineering sophomore said the forum will be able to assist in developing the first step in the accomplishment of the working paper. These include encouraging reader-faculty contact and interesting English papers. Although the session is the work of students, many students have said some of the other goals, such as not being met or may be unrealistic.

Barron said one proposal which particularly concerns him is an attempt to develop more communication with computers. Although he said the forum has been looking at the idea, Barron said he feels the idea is sound, many students have been interested in the University's current computer equipment.

Another proposal, to increase student interaction between the College and the professional schools, is hampered by the present budget and problems facing the various schools, according to the number of students, which face crises in the future. There is little incentive for students to encourage school interaction.

Mr. Burrell, who is in the management program, and students in the program are forced to achieve their own necessities. "As our advising system does not provide

First-Year Law Student Depression

One student had come here on his own, he said, and they're a lot of pressure. The doctor spoke of one suicidal student who has seen him. "The student had said he had seen his family. When he came to me, he had been thinking about killing herself for several months." He said the main problem of such suicidal students was that they want to be in control of their own lives, and they're a lot of pressure. He said, "The number of such students has been on a lot of pressure, he said. "He decided that he didn't want to be in control and started experiencing severe anxiety episodes.
