U. Prepares Conference On World Disarmament

By Michael Dines

The University will hold a major conference on nuclear disarmament early next year, as part of its current under consideration by President Botha's Witwatersrand government, which is now scheduling commemorations for the occasion, including hosting both national and international speakers. The conference will be held on the campus near the end of the year, although the specific dates have not yet been announced.

"The tour of nuclear disarmament is one of the most significant issues facing our government," Vorster said. "We believe that it is important for us to address these issues in a meaningful way."

Vorster also said he would like to see the event be extended, in its final form, to include all aspects of the University community. He said that he would be willing to consider holding a similar event in the future.

"We are planning to speak at universities across the country," Vorster added. "Our goal is to engage the entire University community in this important issue."

Swiss Police Free Escort Captives

BERN, Switzerland - Red

Black fighters freed four Swiss police captives yesterday in a sham standoff with police in the mountains of southern Switzerland.

Police said the 12 hostages were released after the shootout.

The police had said yesterday that the captives were likely to be imprisoned for up to 10 years.

They were held by a 40-year-old former boxer, Florian Krueger, the off-duty "Colonel Wysocki," who claimed to lead the "Polish

Jews Split on Reagan Plan

WASHINGTON - A week after President Reagan announced his Middle East peace plan, an American Jewish group approved a resolution opposing the plan's call for

Israel to negotiate with the Palestine

Authority.

The National Committee of American Jews,

which represents several Jewish groups,

endorsed the plan as a "budget

The decision to grant Law School Professor Ralph Smith tenure was long overdue. A year or more to the point.

Right about this time last year, the law school denied Smith tenure, effectively telling the professor he was not good enough for their standards. Despite pleas from the student and faculty leadership, the law school's blessing for tenure would have the multi-talented professor. It seemed that Smith, who was then a member of Delaware's House of Representatives, along with the Black Pre-law Society and a number of the law school's Faculty and Administrators, would be another of the large number of bills that Smith had boldly allowed to slip away.

Despite the lack of any reason, Smith remained steady, always quietly working to build his academic credentials. His efforts paid off as the law school extended his time to plan tenure. Pervin

Thomas Elihick and President Sheldon Hackney's support of Smith's tenure helped clear the way for an early reconsideration.

The decision is a welcome one. The continued presence of Ralph Smith on campus gives the law school an academic prince, and the University a figure who will do much to make the hand that he has been dealt into a success. Smith, who has been president of the National Education Association and a former minority professor at the law school, is signaling that he wants to increase the presence of minority faculty and students.

Making a commitment to attracting minority group members is also long overdue.

University will see Smith the decision as the begin- ning of a concerted effort to make racial diversity a reality, instead of a past that always seems to lie just out of the reach.

By Henry Jackson

Perhaps the best technique for extending the education of the University's students is to allow them to see the world. We cannot hope to educate them in the classroom, but if we provide them the opportunity to actually see it, then we can help them learn in a real world. And when we do that, they also learn about the people themselves, and what they are really like. "Never a break, "

Call for Political Participation

By David Dommert, Bruce Gould, and Robert Hughes

"Now in Philadelphia! No seat!"

Who should the 10,000 eligible Penn students register to vote? A law student from the law school's Student Coalition for Voter Registration (SCVREG) has the answer. A law student, who is currently a member of the Students for Voter Registration, is not just a law student who works for that college.

Think about the $27 million that Penn receives from the state. In the past, those funds have been used to develop the College of Arts and Sciences, to support the arts, and to enhance the teaching and learning experience of Penn students. Now, that the University has received this money from the state, it is obligated to use it to the best of its ability.

The issue at stake is the upcoming election of candidates, to the state legislature. In the past, the University has allowed its students to be influenced by its failure to vote. Now, the University should consider the opportunity to enact a comprehensive student project to increase effective student participation. The goal of this cam- paign is to increase effective student participation, and that's OK. Now it is the job of the University to clear the way.

Among significant groups in American politics, students have the highest rate of participation and in fact, they are the only group who do not have their right to vote, or their vote is ignored.

Political participation is an important part of the political process.

In times of financial hardship, it is tempting to give up those freedoms that the Penn students are fighting. The Penn community has the strength of the liberal arts, and the will of the times, and becomes less vulnerable to those in federal funds.

"Wait, who do I know from Roslyn?"

"Don't be silly! Yeah, but I'm not going to school anymore."

"I think freshmen male and sexual activity are a contradiction in terms."

"Hey, you know my friend is going to be a freshman long one. I can tell."

"No, I don't think so. It's unanimous."

"I'm sure that's not true."

"Everyone here is from Long Island."

Wharton Begins Dean Search Application Deadline Nears

By: AMOS ALEXANDER

The first stage of the Wharton School dean search is coming to a close as candidates for the post race to meet the September 15 application deadline.

Donald Carroll, who was to have served as dean last year, has agreed to serve in the position of President Sheldon Hackney.

Ten members of the University community and an alumni advisor were appointed to the Wharton Dean Search Committee in May. The search committee included John McNeill and Alfonso Shapero, both alumni of the Wharton School.

Carroll, who was appointed to the position by President Sheldon Hackney, will serve as director of the school.

The search committee, appointed to the position by President Sheldon Hackney, will meet in early September to begin the search for a new dean.

ATTENTION

The following information should have been included in the Fall 1982 Supplemental Roster, which appeared in the Sept. 8 edition of the DP.

A seminar course is donated by an 'S' preceding the course number. A seminar course is one which meets the following criteria:

1. Enrollment is limited to 25 students.
2. Class is discussion-oriented; at least 40% of the time is devoted to discussion.
3. Students are evaluated primarily on the basis of papers or essay exams, rather than short answer or multiple choice tests.

"Now when the bell is Constantino it will still be Valid."

• September 10, 1976: "The Dream's Over, Pigskin Is Dead," the page one headline in the DP proclaims, wailing over the cancellation of that year's freshman directors because the incoming students "have not coughed up enough glossy high school photos." Ah, dreams die hard, especially for porcine undergraduates.

• September 11, 1976: "Pushed and shoved from place to place, the girls' hockey team currently has no 'decent' place to play or practice. 'How long,' we ask, 'are we going to be pushed from pillar to post?'" went the lead paragraph on the page one story headlined "Women's Hockey, Winter's Dream?" Don't we all!

able to deliver his presentation administratively," Feiler said.

Our leaders and minority leaders said they would forgive a Vorster speech or campus but only under the condition that the Vorster speech would be canceled and the other side of the apartheid issue is presented.

"If an anti-apartheid side is not presented, we have no business allowing him to speak here," Undergraduate Assembly member Robert Sharpel said last night. "It is respectable enough that the University deals with firms which have investments in South Africa when that country has a system that is as repressive as ours." Young Alumni Trustees Ronald Brooks said last night that if Vorster is going to be the central focus of the event, then certainly our side "should be a part of the crew," as he put it. "There should be at least some if not an entire program devoted to the anti-apartheid side of the story."

Brooks added that the proper posture of the event would be understood if a Vorster speech was not open to all students who wanted to hear his opinion and due to ask low poignant, pertinent questions about conditions there and make him divert from the propaganda he is probably going to use during the speech. Vorster speech on campus but only if students who want to hear his opinion are also heard. The University should ensure that the Vorster speech is not open to all students.

"The organizers of the program have the interest of making it open to all students," Brooks said. "They can satisfy those of opposing opinions with proper questions and answers, as should be the proper posture of the event.

"We know that Vorster's opinions are not an important posture for the event and that Vorster is going to be. Vorster speech on campus but only if students who want to hear his opinion are also heard. The University should ensure that the Vorster speech is not open to all students.

"If they really think it's an important posture for the event, they should be involved in the planning," Wolski said last night. "I'm not interested in getting into the discussion of Vorster's role in the event."

Hackney said he and Marx are scheduling meetings with faculty and students after the event. "We're still in the early stages of planning," Hackney said. "We need to get more input from the faculty and students."
Get out of the classroom and into the real world.

Join the DP

Your college education will begin in a classroom. You will sit, listen, and take notes. At test time, you will regurgitate the scads of information you've memorized. It's that simple.

To really learn, though, you've got to take what you've absorbed out of the classroom, put it to work, and make things happen.

That's what The Daily Pennsylvanian is all about.

We're the University's daily newspaper, one of the finest in the nation. And for 98 years this student-run organization has been a firm believer in the idea that the only way you really learn is through hands-on experience.

From the written word to the printed page, we've got endless ways for you to get involved. And have a good time at it, too.

WRITING: There is no journalism school at the University of Pennsylvania. No journalism department. And very few journalism courses. We can provide you with the journalism training you just can't find in a classroom.

Altogether, we give you six different departments to write for. Our beat reporters and general assignment writers on the news, features and city staffs cover the campus, the city and the nation.

Our sportswriters are there on the sidelines. Our editorial columnists add their commentary on local and national issues. And with the DP's Thursday magazine, 34th Street, our writers provide complete information on Philadelphia arts and entertainment alongside the most thorough coverage of any Ivy League newspaper.

Unlike other college papers, we don't "believe in special training programs for new writers. As a writer - for news, city, feature, sports, editorial or 34th Street, we'll show you all you need to know, right on the job.

SELLING: Our advertising department can teach you things about sales and marketing you'll never learn in a textbook. Our staff of sales representatives is constantly in touch with regular advertisers and always on the lookout for new prospects. And their efforts are well-rewarded with commissions. If you have sales experience, come join us. And if you don't we'll be more than happy to show you what it takes to become a successful member of the sales team.

MANAGING: Our financial and credit offices can provide you with the opportunity to learn accounting and financial management. These two offices manage the DP's growing $450,000 budget. Introduce yourself to our microcomputer and get hands-on computing experience. As an independent organization, the newspaper's student staff makes all its decisions without outside control.

DESIGNING: Our production department can provide an outlet for your creative skills and imagination. Staff members are responsible for the layout and design of all the ads in each issue of the paper. And if you don't know the difference between a pica and a point, don't fret. We'll teach you all you need to know. On the job. We're also looking for qualified artists who can provide material for our advertisements and for our editorial pages.

Try one, try all. None requires prior experience. You can work as much or as little as you want - from a few hours when you have the time up to 40 hours a week or more. And our computerized newsroom and business office make the training you'll receive here a valuable commodity.

Your college education will begin in a classroom. Don't let it end there. Get out and into the real world. Join The Daily Pennsylvanian.

Student Legal Services

Legal services "are the surface symptoms of a problem that's been in the making for years," said Keiffer. "It's as if the undercurrents have been going on for a long time, but they've just begun to surface." But some UA members said they were upset about the delay in the implementation of the program. UA Secretary Susan Keiffer said last night that "legal service was not given enough time last semester to determine what the service would provide." The service, which operated for only six weeks during a period when University students were more occupied with Spring Final and other activities, was never given a fair trial, she said.

"I would like to see it in place at least six months," said Keiffer. "We're going to get a new lawyer and other activities, and the service was never given a fair chance," she said.

"We want the cheapest possible service," said Weinel. "It's important that the UA is paying for the service but that the service is also responsible," he added. "We don't care if we're paying too much for the service, but we do care if the service is not worth the money."

The UA also must decide what the legal service will take care of. In the future, the lawyer who had been hired for the program's last semester, in that problem, said Weinel. "I'm going to be looking over the law firm's budget, limiting funds to 10 times as much as any comparable class. A bargain at the price.

Freeman & Berriman, served as the service's lawyer. When asked if he feels the service is "a good idea," he responded that he would be "a foolish person to oppose the new legal service system."

"I think we need to give the service a chance to work," said Weinel. "We don't want to spend more money on the service than we have to."

The Steering Committee is also discussing whether the lawyer should come to campus for a certain period of time, or whether he or she should come to the Center City from his downtown office. Mark Berriman, a partner in the firm, agreed that this is a matter of concern, but not one that is easy to resolve. "We want the cheapest possible service," Berriman said, adding that "it's important that the UA is paying for the service but that the service is also responsible."

"You can't win in a situation like this," Joe said. "You just hope that you come out of it with a major in the game." Coach Joe Sagula (inset), now in his second year at the helm, is happy. "I'm happy that we came out of it with a major," he said. Sagula was especially pleased with the performance of senior linebacker Tom Crowley, who was named the game's most valuable player.

Volleyball Preview

In preparation for the upcoming season, the Missisquoi Valley State College women's volleyball team will hold a tryout session on Saturday, September 18th. The tryout will be at 10 a.m. at the college's gymnasium. The team is looking for players who can contribute to the team's success.

New Assistant Keeps Link To The Past

Tom Crowley, 1979, was a member of the Penn Quakers men's basketball team. He is now an assistant coach for the women's volleyball team. "I was able to keep my jobs," he said. "I was able to keep my jobs with the university." Crowley has been a valuable asset on the team, according to Coach Joe Sagula. "He's been a valuable asset on the team," Sagula said. "He's been a valuable asset on the team for us."
