Students Will Protest South African’s Speech

By STEFAN EATON
The SAU Steering Committee last night voted to support the drafting of a resolution on the speech that the Department of State under Secretary for Political Affairs Alan B. King will be giving tonight at the university. The SAU Steering Committee last night voted to support the drafting of a resolution on the speech that the Department of State under Secretary for Political Affairs Alan B. King will be giving tonight at the university.

"We know what our case is," he said. "We want to put our case on the line at least put something on the line in order to prove our case. This is the only way we think it can be done," King said.

The draft resolution, which was proposed by the SAU Steering Committee, would ask the university to support the drafting of a resolution condemning apartheid and theSAU Steering Committee's vote was seen as a sign of growing pressure on the university to take a stronger position on the issue of apartheid.

President Hackney and the SAU Steering Committee have both expressed concerns about the University's stance on apartheid, with Hackney stating that he believes the university has a moral obligation to take a stand against apartheid.

In response to the SAU Steering Committee's vote, Hackney stated that he would support the drafting of a resolution expressing the university's opposition to apartheid, but that the university would not be able to make a decision on the matter until after the speech had been given.

Hackney acknowledged that the university had a responsibility to speak out against apartheid, but he also noted that the university was not in a position to make a definitive statement on the issue until after the speech had been given.

"We have to be careful," he said. "We have to be careful not to make a decision that we might regret later on."

Chartered Airliner Crashes in Spain

MALAGA, Spain — A DC-10 operated by American Airlines crashed Wednesday night in the mountainous region of Malaga, killing at least 46 people and injuring dozens more. The plane left New York's JFK airport on September 16 and was bound for Madrid when it went down. The crash site was located near the town of Benalmadena, in the province of Malaga.

It is not yet known if any American passengers were on board. The plane was carrying 210 American citizens and 85 Spaniards residing in the United States. The United States and Spain are currently investigating the cause of the crash.

All passengers and crew members on board the plane were killed in the crash. The crash site is currently being investigated by authorities.

FORUM

As a newspaper, we always report what has happened on campus, and say what we think about different issues, events, trends, and people. Now, we'd like you to say to say what you think on a regular basis.

Beginning this Friday, forum will be appearing every week on this page to do just that. Each week we will choose an issue and publish as many of the letters as we receive from you about this topic.

Controversy about the Undergraduate Assembly is not a new topic of discussion. We've written on these pages extensively about the nuances and personalities that give the LA its idiosyncratic character.

With the new school year, we also have a new Assembly, and there has been an ongoing debate over what this new group should do. What would you like to see the UA do this year, and how do you think it can be most effective in representing student interests?

What's your opinion? A forum on this issue will appear on Friday. All contributions should be typed double-spaced and should include the author's phone number. Items must be received by 5 p.m. on Thursday.

West Philly Joggers Find Strength in Numbers

By DON SCHELIN

Assuming is again us. His signs are readily apparent in the darkening foliage, the clouded skies, and theTCterS of joggers who have taken to the streets.

Joggers are a varied breed. Some can be spotted glistening silently and gracefully over the pavement, others can be heard muttering to themselves. All are hardy, pushing steadily yet doggedly along. Although they run for many reasons, they all share the problem of pollution. Philadelphia, who has been jogging in the darkening streets for years, can be spoiled or silent. The gliding acoustic is readily apparent in the darkening streets.

"Running in the day, when the sun and the air are quiet, and the air is pleasant, is very good for the lung capacity," said Dr. Abramowitz yesterday, "because the air quality is better."

Although the rush hours are not as pleasant, students have run during the day to avoid the rush hours and the air is clearer." I was running in the dark, and the air was better," said Wharton sophomore Greg Abramowitz.

It was around nine o'clock, I was running in the dark, and the air was better. "I told him to go away and began to move to the sidewalk and into the shade of the road," she continued. "I told him to go away and began to move to the sidewalk and into the shade of the road," she continued.

When he saw me moving away he tried to grab me. I dodged, kept running, and never looked back." She said that a similar incident had occurred in the same area almost exactly one year before.

Although such events are rare, they do occur to runners who fail to exercise a little caution. University Police Lieutenant John Moskowitz said last week "It hurts when people like seeing someone in the dark, but this is only one of the things that happen in the dark."

"I can't deal with more prosaic problems, such as dog owners, or groups, never alone." The majority of runners usually deal with more prosaic problems, such as dog owners, or groups, never alone.

College Hall To Get Elevator

Displaced Persons Gain Access to Building

BY MARK BLAUSTEN

A College Hall elevator designed primarily to provide access to the building for handicapped students will be completed during the University’s academic year, officials said yesterday.

Deputy Provost Richard Clelland said yesterday that the elevator is "pursuing the University has been planning and is now delivering." He stressed the importance of the elevator for FAS students in wheelchairs, who are "unable to get to their own school offices."

Hewryk said it is being installed as part of the University’s plan to comply with a Federal law that requires updating of all facilities so that they are accessible to the disabled.

The College Hall elevator was on hold after the University at-Taubin attempted to find a location for the elevator for the fall of 1977, Taubin said yesterday. "It is certainly a very positive step," he said yesterday. "It is certainly something that not just disabled people will be able to use."

"It is a recognition on the part of the University of its need to make accessible to disabled individuals its campus offices which are now not open to those with physical handicaps."

Governning Board Guides WXPN Station To Up Student Involvement

De Stefanis

A newly named board of governors at campus radio station WXPN will meet this week to discuss ways to make the station more studentoriented and create a University focus for the off-campus student body.

The new governing structure is the result of a movement by the SCA to increase the number of undergraduate students on the board. With the SCA now including representatives from the student government, the ASC, the Graduate Student Council, the Women’s Coalition, the student senate, and the student body, the board is now a student-oriented one.

The SAC reduced the station’s allotment to $1000 a year in 1980 from about $20,000, claiming WXPN had too few students on its staff.

The station received $1000 from SAC for the two-week period during which the station was located on campus, and the board now seeks to create a two-week period during which the station will be located on campus.

The controversy over student involvement at WXPN arose last year after the University Council cancelled the station for a dedicated student board.

WXPN is presently staffed by four paid professionals, community volunteers—many of whom are University alumni—and University students.

The new board, a student and the College Council, will be formed if it can increase student participation, as the current report directs, “I think it’s an indirect pro,” he said.

The council report also noted the station’s desire to “inerease the cultural and intellectual wealth of the University.

The station was located on campus and the board’s managers were student leaders, and the board set out to increase student involvement in the station.

Applications • MCAT • LSAT • MAT • DAT • WREXOMES YOU TO PENN

Look for Newsweek On Campus in your copy of Newsweek and as a supplement to your campus newspaper.

It's a big game. Play to win.
Get out of the classroom and into the real world.

Join the DP.

Your college education will begin in a classroom. You will sit, listen, and take notes. At test time, you will regurgitate the scads of information you've memorized. It's that simple.

To really learn, though, you've got to take what you've absorbed out of the classroom, put it to work, and make things happen.

That's what The Daily Pennsylvanian is all about. We're the University's daily newspaper, one of the finest in the nation. And for 98 years this student-run organization has been a firm believer in the idea that the only way you really learn is through hands-on experience.

From the written word to the printed page, we've got endless ways for you to get involved. And have a good time at it, too.

WRITING: There is no journalism school at the University of Pennsylvania. No journalism department. And very few journalism courses. We can provide you with the journalism training you just can't find in a classroom.

Altogether, we give you six different departments to write for. Our beat reporters and general assignment writers on the news, features and city staffs cover the campus, the city and the nation. Our sports writers are there on the sidelines, following the action — wherever it is. Editorial columnists add their commentary on local and national issues. And with the DP's Thursday magazine, 34th Street, our writers provide complete information on Philadelphia arts and entertainment alongside the most thorough coverage of any Ivy League newspaper.

Unlike other college papers, we don't believe in special training programs for new writers. As a writer — for news, city, feature, sports, editorial or 34th Street, we'll show you all you need to know, right on the job.

SELLING: Our advertising department can teach you things about sales and marketing you'll never learn in a textbook. Our staff of sales representatives is constantly in touch with regular advertisers and always on the lookout for new prospects. And their efforts are well-rewarded with commissions. If you have sales experience, come join us. And if you don't we'll be more than happy to show you what it takes to become a successful member of the sales team.

MANAGING: Our financial and credit offices can provide you with the opportunity to learn accounting and financial management.

These two offices manage the DP's growing $450,000 budget. Introduce yourself to our microcomputer and get hands-on computing experience. As an independent organization, the newspaper's student staff makes all its decisions without outside control.

DESIGNING: Our production department can provide an outlet for your creative skills and imagination. Staff members are responsible for the layout and design of all the ads in each issue of the paper. And if you don't know the difference between a pica and a point, don't fret. We'll teach you all you need to know. On the job. We're also looking for qualified artists who can provide material for our advertisements and for our editorial pages.

Try one, try all. None requires prior experience. You can work as much or as little as you want — from a few hours when you have the time up to 40 hours a week or more. And our computerized newsroom and business office make the training you'll receive here a valuable commodity.

Your college education will begin in a classroom. Don't let it end there. Get out and into the real world. Join The Daily Pennsylvanian.

"We hope to bring to the UA an increased sense of responsibility, greater acceptance of the UA goals, more responsible student services and a slow-down on tuition increases," Wolski said. "My main goal is to make the UA a more responsible service to the student body."

UA Secretary Susan Keiffer's view of the assembly's goals for the upcoming year differs from Christophers or Wolski's. "I think the UA's biggest goal would be to have the administration live up to the same promises it has made on such issues as consultation with students," Keiffer said yesterday.

Wolski said he hopes to meet with administrators, but added that such plans are "still in the working stage.

This isn't UA Vice Chairman William, rather than just focus on its immediate concerns, will aim for improvements closer to home, Wolski said. An improvement in student services, particularly advising and career planning, is a major goal.

A UA committee will be looking into changes such as creating advising and career planning and making such offices more accessible to students.

"One special vehicle that the UA has in special access to meetings with administrators," he said. "Cooperation means having common, rational views on the function of the administration, Christopher offered even more specific program goals for the upcoming year. He said he hopes to conduct a program started last year in which the president and present and explain the budget in a presentation before University students.

Although Wolski says he hopes to work with administrators and obtain greater acceptance of the plan, he also echoed Wolski's comments on the need to improve student services, particularly advising and career planning, as connecting administrators to students.

A small, but talented, 1982 Penn soccer squad is in line for a NCAA tournament but not by one game. Actually, that one game might not have been an absolute guarantee, but it certainly would have made a strong case for the Quakers' inclusion in the national tournament. The Quakers have earned a spot in the NCAA's top-10 list, and have earned a 9-3-3 record, which has led to the top seed in the Ivy tournament. The Penn soccer team has not only secured a spot in the NCAA tournament, but has also been ranked in the top 10 in the nation. The team has demonstrated a strong work ethic and has continued to improve throughout the season. The team has maintained a high level of competitiveness and has achieved success in both home and away games. The team has shown resilience and has responded to challenges with determination, leading to their success in the NCAA tournament. Overall, the Penn soccer team has performed admirably, earning recognition and accolades for their efforts. The team's dedication and hard work have paid off in securing a spot in the NCAA tournament, highlighting their dedication and commitment to the sport.
