"We are upset by the decision to close the program," said Ehrlich if we should go ahead and move forward.

"Then we ask [Provost Thomas] in his letter to administrators, that the administration's handling of the decision to close the program was "the issue," "I only take them if they won't cost the University anything and can be sold quickly,'"

"We seriously question the administration's handling of the decision," the letter begins. "First we ask [Deputy Provost] breaking," he said. "I only take them if they won't cost any administrative delays the University anything and can be sold quickly.'

"SciT has requested that we look at the syllabus and consider the remaining board members. The former facility of Arts and Science did not discuss the program, but it is not sure the students could be moved to other facilities."

"Now there are many expensive developments being built nearby and the land has increased in value," says the University anything and can be sold quickly,'"

BEIRUT, Lebanon—The Lebanese army arrested hundreds of people in Beirut yesterday—largely in a broad crackdown on students, activists, and others suspected of being linked to the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) in Lebanon.

The arrests, which took place in various neighborhoods throughout the city, are the latest in a string of similar operations that have targeted suspected PLO members in recent weeks. The Lebanese government has been mounting a crackdown on the PLO in recent months, following a series of terrorist attacks in the country.

The arrests, which followed an early morning raid on a student residence, resulted in the seizure of several individuals suspected of being involved in PLO activities. The individuals were taken to the Central Security Bureau (CSB) for questioning, and some were subsequently arrested.

The Lebanese government has been under increasing pressure from the United States and other Western governments to crack down on the PLO in Lebanon, following a series of terrorist attacks in the country.

The arrests are the latest in a series of measures taken by the Lebanese government to clamp down on the PLO in recent months. In September, the government announced a ban on the PLO in Lebanon, following a series of terrorist attacks in the country.

The show is going to be very different from last year's, though," Marmorstein, along with Anne, the University Museum, 12:30 p.m. IMPROV show. I'm sure, "they are planning to do a more varied and interesting program."

The group has its own television set and plans to watch the show. "It's a bad neighborhood, and we're in a rut of classes and homework," Wharton junior Adam added. "We need to have a good time and enjoy ourselves.""We need to have a good time and enjoy ourselves," he said.

While the members of the co-op express their pride in the success of the show, they are also aware of the negative aspects of living in a house situation. Maimon said, "We're a bunch of diverse people, but it's fun to share the experience and cooperate. I think we're more cooperative than many other groups are."
I think that for the organization to be a success, a certain level of cooperation is necessary.

New Evidence

The latest report about the recent rape case on campus has been released, providing new evidence that suggests the perpetrator was not the individual initially identified by the victim. The investigation is ongoing, and the University is working with law enforcement to ensure the safety and well-being of all students.

Hackney Hosts Student Gathering

By ROBERT OPIE

A new University group is aiming to solicit contact between students and administration, Hackney's group is comprised of seven members, two members of the Student Congress on Undergraduate Education and representatives from the task force. Hackney, the group's advisor, said yesterday's "meeting [of the task force] was favorable" to having students meet with administration.

MILLER TIME! Let the people of the UA hear the voice of the Unified Students Party. There is a great need for a student government that can speak for all of the students of the University. The miller who is running for the UA is Karen Miller. She is a member of the students interest party. She has been a member of the student body for four years. She is a fourth-year student and has been involved in a number of university activities. She is a member of the student body government and has been active in the Student Action Committee. She is the only candidate who can be trusted to represent the students of the University. She is the only candidate who can be trusted to represent the students of the University.

2. Cathleen Bachman

The UA should work to serve the interests of the student body. This is the only way the UA can continue to be effective. The UA should work to serve the interests of the student body. TWO YEARS AGO PENN WAS A CENTER OF RADICALISM! WE ARE STILL TRYING TO GET OVER THE EXPERIENCE! THE UNIVERSITY HAS A RESPONSIBILITY TO FOSTER A CAMPUS ENVIRONMENT WHERE STUDENTS CAN HAVE THEIR PHILOSOPHIES. THE UA MUST BE A FACILITATOR OF THOUGHT AND DISCUSSION. WE WILL NOT LET WORK TOGETHER.

5. David Conway

In order to become the UA, it is necessary to be elected. There are several reasons why I believe I am the best candidate for the UA. First, I have a clear understanding of the responsibilities of the UA. Second, I have a proven track record of success in the past. Third, I have a strong desire to make the UA a better organization. Fourth, I have a deep understanding of the needs of the student body. I have been a member of the student body for four years. I have been involved in a number of university activities. I have been a member of the Student Action Committee. I have been a member of the Student Government. I have been a member of the Student Action Committee. Student Life Search To Begin
Committee Will Seek New Director

By STEFAN FATSIS

A search for a new student life director should begin in about a month, Acting Vice Provost for University Life George Koval said Monday.

The office has been without a director since early March, when then-director Janis Somerville resigned from the post to become assistant director of annual giving in the Office of Development and University Relations.

Koval said he hopes a new director can be in office by the beginning of

Spring Semester, which begins

February 9.

Koval added that the University must decide whether to include requiring a new associate director for Student Life. "It's not that something is missing, we're doing all these things, but there is no one person at the top," he said.

But the University has not yet named a replacement for Somerville, who resigned in March. "I think we have done a magnificent job and nobody, as far as students go, has missed anything," she said.

PRIME Trains Future Engineers—

PRIME Executive Director Barry McLaughlin said this week the program aims to increase the number of minorities in engineering. "We've brought together all the elements needed to improve education," he said. "No longer are minorities seen as second-class citizens in the educational system. Industries, universities and parent groups are all working together for the first time."

PRIME has been the model for the establishment of 13 similar regional engineering programs across the nation, he said, adding that the only way the program can flourish is by "increasing the number of minorities preparing engineering schools."

"In 1974 you could count the number of minorities in engineering at Penn on two hands," he said. "Today we've increased that to eight or nine today.

McLaughlin said the students had been taken on field trips to, among other places, the Michell intricate rocket building and nuclear facilities of the Philadelphia Electric Company. Students in the program at Dobbin School are building a other house while others in Great High School are building a rocket. Last year, a PRIME group built a rocket which was used in the Lowell High School's "Not Just Rocketry" program. Students who talked about the chemicals could not rocket propulsion, each PRIME student at Beaver alternative school had his own rocket. They then attended in the classroom, each rocket's height, as time and PRIME student Volanda Fox said her rocket "didn't come out right. I think I did the engine wrong." But she said she did the best job of the week. The summer program has given her an advantage over other students in her school, she said. "I especially have the edge in math," she said. "They put me in an advanced class now."

"They don't teach engineering in school," she said. "I never would have known what an engineer does and how a factory really works until PRIME."

"I was interested in Law, but the program has probably made me change my mind about that," she continued. "It's looking toward red."

Engineering School Dean Joseph Rodriquez, who was one of the founders of PRIME, said the program was very pleased with the results it had seen. "It's fulfilling an obvious need in the city, the public school system isn't doing its job — it's a disaster," Ber- dogna said. "We're trying to make sure that the kids who do not have the advantage get a chance."

The Red and Blue also needs feature writers who enjoy exploring the city. What makes Philadelphia sparkle? Or is Ben Franklin's town just a place for people who dig gritty city life?

JOIN THE MOST SUCCESSFUL COLLEGIATE CAMPAIGN IN THE COUNTRY

THE RED AND BLUE

New Journal of Politics

The Red and Blue will begin publication shortly, and needs writers, business people, artists and photographers to join its staff. The Red and Blue will analyze significant campus, national and international political issues, and will offer the University community nationally syndicated columnist, book reviews, political cartoons and interviews with government officials. We need individuals with an interest in any aspect of newspaper production.

Writers:

There is more to reporting news than the stringing together of quotes. We want writers who can probe beyond superficial explanations, and who can provide insight into complex happenings. Should the United States negotiate an arms reduction treaty with the Soviet Union? What should be the status of the Backfire bomber, or the SS-18 ICBM? Just a place for people who dig gritty city life?

Sales:

Don't learn about advertising from a textbook! The Red and Blue needs hardworking individuals who want practical business experience as well as additional income. Earn money as you get "hands-on" training. If you do not have sales experience, our business managers will teach you everything you need to know.

Production:

Do you know the difference between a T-square and a paste-up board? Even if you don't, help us design The Red and Blue, a 16 page, bi-weekly broadsheet! We'll teach you how to use a computer, how to typeset, and how to translate artistic ideas into graphic reality.

Photographers and artists:

Staff photographers will accompany our writers across the city and nation. Use our darkroom facilities to develop your pictures. We will help you to develop as a photographer. Artists are needed too, to design advertising copy, assist with layout and draw cartoons.

Goldstein Resigns as IFC President

In a move that surprised many, Mark Coogan, president of the Interfraternity Council, announced his resignation at the council's meeting Wednesday night. Coogan cited a lack of communication and consultation as the reasons for his decision.

"I've been very disappointed in the way things have been going," Coogan said. "I feel like the council has not been operating under the rules that we've set forth for ourselves." Coogan said he was especially concerned about the recent series of events, including the proposed additional bursar's fee and the lack of fraternity and sorority participation in Greek Week activities.

Coogan said he was unable to get any answers from the council's executive committee and was not interested in continuing as president. He said he hoped his resignation would encourage the council to improve its communication and consultation processes.

Goldstein added that he believes the "creative quick print system" is a symptom of a larger problem. He said he is not surprised that there's anger, but it's important to realize that the Office of Fraternity and Sorority Affairs is responsible for the spike in students expressing anger at the IFC.

Thomas added that he views the lack of transparency and consistency in announcing upcoming fundraisers and events as a concern to the personal members.

Frischman added that the $10,000 loss was a "nonexistent concern" resulting from "poor management," adding that if Greek members were given more of a say in the council's planning, they would not raise money.

Frischman said he was confident that the council would meet opposition if they attempted to impose an additional bursar's fee.

Schlossberg added that a major problem was the lack of fraternity and sorority participation in Greek Week activities. He said he hopes to increase communication and consultation in the future.

IFC constitution committee members agreed that fraternity officials "shouldn't have a lot of trusts," but added they were willing to help the council improve its communication and consultation processes.

The committee is working to create the IFC constitution, outlining the council's structure and responsibilities. The committee said they hoped to improve communication and consultation processes for the November 1 deadline for completion of the document.

The committee faces some problems in that something is wrong," committee member Jim Chapman said last week. "I'm nervous to spend that kind of money without representation and votes. Goldstein's resignation is a symptom of a larger problem."
BULIMIA

Thousands of people struggle with a little-known problem called bulimia, a continuous, involuntary hunger often involving frequent or habitual use of locavores and irrational vomiting and accompanied by feelings of depression.

If you're suffering from any of these symptoms and would like to discuss them contact EBC Health Systems Inc. (215) 664-5463 or 667-6888.

Inquiries remain confidential.
