Governor Gains Slim Victory

By AMES IXANDER

A controversial Democratic incumbent, Governor Thornburgh, was easily re-elected last night in a contest that had the appearance of a near-runoff. The race was a close one, with the incumbent gaining a narrow lead of fewer than 5,000 votes over his Republican challenger, Michael Ehrlich.

Pope Blasts Spain's New Premier

MADRID: Spain - Pope John P. II attacked Spain's Socialist premier-designate yesterday, saying that he has little experience and is a "threat to freedom and democracy, and above all, to women's rights." The pontiff said his meeting with Felipe Gonzalez, whose Socialist Party won last week's general election by a landslide, should "encourage any doubts" that he was a "solid choice for the job of prime minister and leader of a new government.

...He called Gonzalez and other political and military leaders the church opposes "the imperial nature of things" but must make itself heard on matters that are dear to the hearts of children, to their parents and their future.

John Paul followed up with a long string of sentences on what he called "family issues" at a height, open an "Man for the Christian Family." Police estimated 1.5 to 2,000 people packed the courtyard of the 1-year-old Church of Santisima Trinidad as the pope made his address from the balcony of the palace. It was the pope's first public address since his recent return from Japan.

"I/to the pope's speech pleased him. He said Pope John Paul II's "reaction" to Spain's Socialist premier was "a clear indication of the pope's desire for Spain," he said. "I hope Spain will be a beacon for the rest of the world."

Biking It

Newcomers to the campus. Near the library and Benner Hall. In front of Hillel House and the Tightlugs. And there’s all over the city. Students like it as a one-to-one front of the galleries. Bikers just can’t be ignored anymore.

Mayor Green: No Re-election Attempt in 1983

By Gwendolyn Frye

Philadelphia Mayor William Green announced on Wednesday that he would not be running for a third term.

In a half-hour news conference following a meeting of his transition planning group, he decided to end his nearly seven-year tenure as mayor of the city.

The decision, announced without warning, caught many political leaders and observers by surprise.

Green seemed determined not to allow further speculation on the matter. He said he would continue to serve for the remainder of his term.

In a statement, Green said: "I have decided, after much reflection and careful consideration, to end my service as mayor of the City of Philadelphia."

He added: "I feel that it is now the time for a new leader to take the reins of government."

Wecth Admits Early Defeat to Sen. Heinz

By STEVE FISHER

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Things seemed to move in slow motion at Catholic University's homecoming last night. And as it was, the final outcome of the night was not quite as predictable as two weeks ago, when a Republican senator from Allegheny County was decisively defeated by a Democrat in the race for the Senate. The results of the night were never in doubt, but the night's events were very much a surprise.

Wecth made it clear that he was not going to make any excuses for his defeat, and he said that he was going to work hard to make sure that he lived up to the standards of the office he had held for the past 15 years.

Heinz, on the other hand, said that he was looking forward to working with Wecth in the Senate, and he said that he was going to work hard to make sure that he lived up to the standards of the office he had held for the past 15 years.

Doc Watson's Nixes Wet T-Shirt Contest

A representative of the newspaper's Activities Council, which has been cultivating the fund-raising effort for months, said last night that his group had failed to obtain the necessary funding yesterday. "We have been working on this project for several months, and now suddenly the door is closed on us," he said.

Watson, who is the president of Doc Watson's Bar and Grill, is a staunch supporter of the Wet T-Shirt Contest, which he believes is an important event for the university. However, he has been reluctant to allocate funds for the contest in the past, citing concerns about the potential for alcohol consumption and public disturbance.

The failure to obtain funding has led to disappointment among the contest organizers, who had been planning a large-scale event featuring live music and upscale refreshments. "We were really excited about this," said a member of the organizing committee. "Now we're just wondering what we're going to do.

Still, Watson has not ruled out the possibility of an allocation in the future. "I'm not saying that we won't consider it again," he said. "But it's going to take some convincing on our part.

Thornburgh Edges Ertel

First, who was virtually unknown a year ago, did not have nearly the campaign funding Thornburgh has enjoyed. The man who many called "the tortoise" showed that slow and steady efforts can pay off in a close election.

Rums, standing on the stage in front of the cheering throng, said his supporters have "done a lot of work and won the election.

The sounds of the Ukrainian band behind the governor's victory speech, evoked what seemed to be the symphonies of music to the ears of the crowd.

"I wasn't quite sure he was going to make it," she said. "But the crowd was really happy now. With him up there, we have new years, the state is in good shape.

Heinz Wins

Heinz, running as a Democrat, has been a consistent favorite in the polls. Heinz has managed to balance the state budget for four successive years and running 8000 jobs from the state treasury.

Despite these accomplishments, Thornburgh, who is running as a Republican, has been critical of Heinz's economic policies. "We need to cut taxes and reduce spending," he said.

The two candidates are expected to debate next week, and the race remains closely contested.

Daniele Harte wins

Daniele Harte, a former teacher, is running as an independent candidate. Harte has been critical of both major parties, and has promised to bring a fresh perspective to state politics.

"I believe that the time has come for a change," she said. "We need leaders who will listen to the people and work for the common good."

The election is expected to be close, and both candidates are expected to campaign vigorously in the coming weeks.
Ertel Nearly Gains Thornburgh Upset

BY RODNEY PAUL

A crowd of thousands gathered in downtown Philadelphia last night to eat, drink, and vote at the Second Story Club, where the election results were announced in a joint forum with the Pennsylvania State Republican Committee.

The night was filled with stories of victory and defeat, as the candidates for the First Congressional District of Pennsylvania were locked in a tight race.

At the time of the forum, the race was too close to call, with Thornburgh leading by just a few hundred votes. However, by the end of the night, Ertel had cut into Thornburgh's lead, making the race even more uncertain.

The forum was moderated by John Torre, a political reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer, and featured commentary from a panel of experts, including economists, political analysts, and former politicians.

The panelists discussed the implications of the election results for the country, and the impact it would have on the upcoming presidential election.

The forum was a lively and engaging event, with audience members asking questions and offering their own opinions on the race.

As the night drew to a close, the panelists urged the audience to continue following the story, and to stay informed on the latest developments.

The forum was a powerful reminder of the importance of civic engagement, and the role that each of us can play in shaping our future.
“He (Hurvitz) and I were pretty good friends at this time. Very similar positions between us, but by and large we got along. When I took back and thought there were four of us, I soon thought I'd be the only one on varsity. Dana was always the one I was going to block. And what a Hurwitz feeling now that Dana is a position to win the league (Gang's a great guy and I wouldn't have happy either without him).”

“Now I hope that we win the next game. I kind of wish coach would go for this, but the coach (Seror) must be a bit cautious. The experienced players are a bit tentative. Hurwitz transitions to a new coach and a new conference, of course, he's a small man. He did it all with weights and though weights. He's 190 pounds which is a great and he only weighs 190 pounds in 1978.”

“With all due respect to Hurwitz, I think he's helped us a whole lot by bringing his knowledge of countershooting to the fullback position. He was kind of a stand-by when they first moved him, but he's done a good job.”

—When he was here he was always rated the best in the Ivy league.”

—Hurwitz admitted to playing in front of numbers combined his running well with his pass. He was top ten, playing against bigger people, and usually did not combine his running well with his pass. What he did, however, is not any different. "Nothing against athletes in the Ivy League." Hurwitz admitted, "But we are a new breed, Big Ten, hitting against bigger people. It was hard to do. It was hard to do if there weren't 30 or 40 pounds on a number. We used to see that on TV.

“Academically, the schools are right there. The last time I went to the team here I was a little fish in a big sea, and wasn't quite sure how to fit in the university system. I was surprised. When I got here, I was even greater. "I wish everyone on the team the best of luck," Hurwitz passed along to his old teammates. "Who would be the one to be in the position to win it?"

Booted without warning about anything,” Hurwitz said at the time. And when two weeks later the Wildcats ripped through Minnesota for their first Big Ten win since the Spanish-American war, said fans took up songs and carried them through the streets cheering loudly before throwing them in the water. A new Minnesotan was already on the payroll who was the public thing to do. Ephraim in Evansville, and as many as two have explored in Philadelphia.

Plot Thickeners as Harvard, Yale Win

By DAVID GOLDSTEIN

At Harvard, where the Longfellow house is located in frame, and on the main campus, the football players looked like they were in the midst of a season crammed with extra-curricular activities. The Crimson was able to pull off a stunning 20-13 victory over the visiting Brown Bears, and Harvard's running back, junior Bill Sidwell, accounted for 168 yards and a touchdown in the game. The win raised Harvard's record to 3-1, and the Crimson remained in contention for an Ivy League title.

When coach Lizie Lynch released her lineup for the non-conference game, it was clear that the Quakers were looking to make a statement. The Penn women's volleyball team faced off against the University of Pennsylvania in a tight match that went down to the wire. Despite the loss, the Quakers showed their resilience and fought until the very end, earning the respect of their opponents.

What can you think about this sport that makes it so popular? What's its appeal? Why do people love it? What makes it so fun? Perhaps the most common answer is: the freedom it offers. Whether you're playing alone or with a team, you can choose where and when to play. The freedom to move around and express yourself is a major draw for many. Additionally, Ultimate Frisbee is often played casually, with friends or family, which can make it a great way to spend time with loved ones.

Like the anti-sport. The anti-sport of the sport. The anti-sport of the anti-sport. Nick, another of the co-captains, remarked, "We're just having a good time out there. We're not thinking about anything." Hurwitz added, "We're just having a good time out there. We're not thinking about anything." The game went on, and the Quakers continued to dominate the field, scoring goal after goal.
