Hired Security Force Helps Guard Campus

B. NINA LIU

President Sheldon Hackney announced yesterday his decision to hire an expanded Handicapped Coordinator Assistant, three positions that have had to be taken care of by the security force, SpectacGuard, for the past two years. SpectacGuard, a security force, is responsible for maintaining the security of the University. The security force has been working on the campus for over two years, and was recently joined by the Handsicapped Coordinator Assistant.

The decision was prompted by a number of factors, including the fact that the campus has seen an increase in the number of incidents that require intervention by the security force. The handsicapped coordinator assistant is responsible for coordinating and implementing programs to address the needs of the handicapped on campus.

The new position will be filled by a qualified candidate who will have experience in coordinating and implementing programs for the handicapped. The position will be advertised soon.

The security force will continue to provide security for the campus, and will work closely with the handsicapped coordinator assistant to ensure that the needs of the handicapped are met.

U. Restores Student Status Prompt Return to Full-Time Status

By BRAD GROSS

Several universities have made changes to their financial aid policies in response to the financial crisis. One university that has taken steps to address the crisis is the University of Pennsylvania. The University of Pennsylvania has announced plans to return to full-time status for its students.

Reaganomics Forces New Fin Aid Policy

By N. ALLEN HARRIS

Law was the government's main focus during the Reagan administration. One of the main focuses was on cutting financial aid to students. Reagan, a former federal congressman, had a goal to reduce the amount of financial aid provided to students. He believed that tuition costs were too high and that students should be responsible for paying more of their own expenses.

Imagine consulting 50 government and community leaders to sit down voluntarily and discuss the problems and future of Philadelphia. Dr. whirlwind Congress created plans which radically shape the face of the city.

Finally, imagine those projects being implemented, the benefit of thousands.

This unlikely scenario has already occurred during the last three years an extensive study entitled Philadelphia: Past Present and Future. This report concluded that something was once considered impossible a reality.

With six paid staff members, years of effort, and a relatively small budget, PPPF has managed to formulate a lot of proposals to influence the face of Philadelphia, hopefully for the better.

The impact of this project, initiated and directed by University Associate History and Public Policy Professor Theodore Hershberg, has already been felt. The PPPF has reviewed an economic efficiency plan that could save many citizens a great deal of money. The project has also or in some fashion introduced aspects of West Philadelphia, opening new issues and economic enterprises.

We have discovered that there is a basis for broad base support of many ideas, and a possibility for numerous proposals in Philadelphia," Hershberg said recently.

According to Hershberg, Philadelphia is a "sleeping giant" with "opportunities for change". For years, the federal government has been working on a project designed to meet the city's transition into a "new era.

"When we finished the project, we were not greeted with open arms," Hershberg said. "We were viewed in the black community as the establishment,' in the universities as performing a useful community service, but programs were viewed in the black community as the establishment,' in the univer-

Support the Quakers

To the Editor,

We lose to Princeton 17-14! But this Penn team and their coaches should not lose support from the fans. They have brought back a winning tradition to the Quaker nation. It is the duty of all Quaker fans to stand behind our team and support them on their way back to primes.

RICHARD K. ALLEN

Wharton '83

Editor's note: As you see in your letter, and supported by Coates, these Quaker fans truly have heart. Hope to see you on the Saturdays when we beat Harvard. And last year in the Block of B, when the student of the year, Randal Land, found himselfでしょう at the student section.

THe Army Must Go

The Army discriminates deliberately and specifically, and this is a sad situation. It is a situation which should be changed. However, there is no easy way to bring about such changes, and it is up to the actions of the administration committee as an attempt to do so. Rather, it is an attempt by some members of the University to keep the agenda consistent with its policies, which oppose discrimination in any form. The discrimination aspect of the controversy is clear, though many other aspects may cloud the picture. The Army discriminates, and the moves that should be changed, however, are not as drastic as portrayed by Ms. Sneakman in the Quad.

"What I need is someone like Barney Rubble." I have seen this statement before, and it is not original. However, it is the best answer to your question. Women are not the only sex that has a sense of humor. Men do not have a sense of humor. But then it is a matter of perspective. If you see a man as funny, then he is.

U. To Refurbish Locust Walk
Plan Spruces Up Lunch Truck Area

The intersection of Locust and 17th Streets will begin as usual at the Foundation Development Office's desk today.

Lunch Truck

Locust Walk between 17th and 18th Streets. Lunch Truck is a West End Mainstay, as well as a West End Mainstay for West End's lunchtime crowd. The Lunch Truck has been in operation for a couple of years now, and it's really been quite popular with the students. The Development Office staff is really looking forward to seeing the Lunch Truck again this year.

The Lunch Truck provides a convenient and affordable meal option for students and staff alike. It's a great way to support local businesses and enjoy a delicious meal on the go.

Plan Spruces Up Lunch Truck Area

The University has plans to refurbish the Lunch Truck area. This will involve improving the landscaping and making adjustments to the area to create a more pleasant environment for those who choose to eat there.

The University hopes to convert Spruce and Walnut Streets into a more walkable area. The Facilities Development Office is responsible for this project.

The area will be landscaped and beautified, with new trees and plants added to create a more aesthetically pleasing environment. This will make the area more inviting and enjoyable for those who choose to eat there.

The University is seeking donations to help fund this project. Any amount, no matter how small, will be greatly appreciated. Donations can be made through the Facilities Development Office or the University Development Office.

We encourage all members of the University community to support this project and help create a more beautiful and enjoyable area for all to enjoy.

The Lunch Truck area will be a great addition to the University community, offering a convenient and delicious meal option for all.

PPU To Sponsor Debate on '82 Elections

By DAVID GODFREY
President Ronald Reagan's former campaign manager, after last week's bruising election victories return in an informal interview.

The event will occur at 3:30 p.m. on the roof of the High Rise. Roger Stone, the Black, Maroon, and White consulting firm will meet Terry Horne of the NEA, in a discussion hosted by the National Small College, a campus organization.

PPU chairman Andy Keller said yesterday that both national parties are anxious to provide viable explanations of the election. "Each party has an opportunity to present a new point of view," he said.

"Our senior officials are equally moved by the increased interest," he said. Yesterday.

"All of us are convinced that this is an opportunity for the nation to put to bed the bitter divisions that have characterized our political life," the chairman continued. "Our goal is to bring the people together in a spirit of cooperation and understanding, and to work toward a more peaceful and prosperous future." he said.

"It is a difficult task, but I believe we can achieve it," he concluded. "We are determined to make every effort to fulfill our promise."...

Chinese Dramatists Speak at the Cultural Revolution

By GEORGE NEWMAN

Ying Ruocheng, one of China's most famous actors, attended a lunchtime seminar in Washington Hall yesterday to discuss China's theater. The seminar was sponsored by the China Center.

"Human nature is the root of all plays," he explained. "It is the reason why we have theater. The plays that we produce are always rooted in human nature." he said.

"We believe that our plays should reflect the values of the Chinese people," he continued. "We want to create a theater that is true to the Chinese culture and spirit." he said.

"Nothing ever happened to me like what happened to him," said Buehler, who has made 15 deals for 3.5 vars since his season. "That's why it was so strange. You look at other football players and you can't miss the size and you can't believe he had it. That never happened to me."

"When he gets the ball, defenders give him room because they're afraid of getting hurt." Morris said.

Of course the sweater's role requires much more than physical prowess. Instinct and intelligence are also vital to the position. Defense wary for neither. "He reads the game really well. And he anticipates and plays the angles well," Seiden said.

"He's just a natural for us," Garnet coach Seddon said. Here we fear, Quaker fans, he'll be around for years.

Bad conditions take a lot of the athletes, but this was only one of Penn's concerns, according to Cohen.

"Some of the other schools are located close to Kings Point," a sailor said. "We're very used to being out there in the elements."

So while it could have been better for the sailors, the Red and Blue likely would not have fared a better.

"It was thinking," Warren Buehler said. "I just had 10 PUI and out right there."
