Princeton Game May Return To Palestira in '84

BOB ROY DE LA ROUSSE

The athletic director of Princeton University, Charles Harris, and a group of student leaders are promoting the return of Princeton-Palestira basketball games to the sport on campus next year. University officials have assured the students that they will continue to support the proposal and have expressed confidence that the games will be held.

"People who've been to the University of California at Berkeley," said Harris, "say that the athletic department at the University of California is one of the most powerful in the world. If we can get a group of students to support the idea, then maybe we can make it happen." Harris went on to say that he has been in contact with a number of other universities that have expressed interest in hosting the games.

"We are more than happy to support the idea," said Harris. "We believe in the power of sports to bring people together and promote understanding." Harris continued, "We are committed to making the games a success and are confident that they will be well-received by the community."

B. ROY ARE

The days if Thanksgiving break are upon us, and for many, it means a trip to one's family's home, far away from the hustle and bustle of campus life. But what does Thanksgiving mean to you? Do you spend it with your family, or do you prefer to travel and explore new places? Whatever your plans are, we've got you covered with our list of fun Thanksgiving break ideas.

Ward Pioneers Behind Them, and Students Look Forward to a Relaxing Afternoon

Many regard the Edinboro University summer session as a welcome respite from the rigors of school work, and are excited to take a break from the academic routine. Ward said, "I think I need a rest." College senior Kathy Marks said, "It's a good time for me to relax before heading back to school." "I'm looking forward to spending the holidays with my family and friends," she added.

Many Enjoy the Relaxation of Throwing off the Tension and Relaxing

"I'm not sure how I'll spend the break," college junior Karen Smith said. "I think I'll just relax and enjoy the peace and quiet of home." "I'm looking forward to spending time with my family," college sophomore Tom Johnson said. Talking Turkey

By John S. Marshall

At this time of year, when expectations are high and Abraham and Issac are being cut up, when the hens are on a peel and the roosters are doing their best to neither roost nor crow, it can be a difficult time. This is especially true for those of us who are not turkey-loving individuals.

But my wife, who is a turkey-lover, has a solution. She suggests that we start a turkey season, a time when we can enjoy the bird without feeling guilty about it. She suggests that we start by having a turkey dinner, which she believes is the only way to truly appreciate the bird.

I agree with her, because it's true. There is something magical about a turkey dinner. The aroma of the sage, the sound of the drum, the sight of the birds, all add up to a wonderful experience.

The turkey dinner is a time to reflect on the past and the future. It is a time to remember the good times and the bad times.

The turkey dinner is a time to be grateful. A time to be thankful for all that we have.

The turkey dinner is a time to be together. A time to be with family and friends.

The turkey dinner is a time to be relaxed. A time to enjoy the moment.

The turkey dinner is a time to be happy. A time to be free.

The turkey dinner is a time to be thankful. A time to be grateful.

"We've asked the coaches to get involved," he said. "We'd like to have a letter from them asking the fans to behave themselves."

According to Buchanan, one problem that has been a concern is the amount of drinking that goes on at games.

"When you're drunk, you're more likely to get involved in a fight or cause a problem," he said. "I think one of the symptoms is the fans who go around and around."
New Trustee Elected to Board

Linda White to Serve Three-Year Term

November 24, 1982

The American Indian Council for Community Development (AICCD), a non-profit Washington, D.C.-based, community development organization, has announced the election of Linda White to the board of directors. The election was held at the AICCD Annual Meeting held at American University.

Linda White, a native of Oklahoma, is the founder and President of Linda White Enterprises, a consulting firm specializing in Native American issues. She has been active in the community development field for over 15 years and has served on the boards of several Native American organizations, including the Oklahoma Indian Legal Services and the Native American Rights Fund.

White has been involved in numerous community development projects, including the development of affordable housing projects for Native American communities. She has also been a strong advocate for the rights of Native American women and has worked to increase access to education and employment opportunities for Native American youth.

White will join the AICCD board at a time when the organization is focused on expanding its work to include the development of affordable housing for Native American communities. She will bring a wealth of experience and knowledge to the board, and her background in community development and Native American issues makes her an ideal fit for the AICCD.

The AICCD is a non-profit organization dedicated to improving the lives of Native Americans through the development of affordable housing and community development projects. The organization has a long history of success in bringing about positive change in Native American communities, and White's election to the board is a significant milestone for the organization.

The AICCD is proud to welcome Linda White to the board of directors, and we look forward to working with her to continue the organization's mission of improving the lives of Native Americans through affordable housing and community development projects.
BADLY INJURED STUDENT IMPROVES

"Doing Well" After Three-Story Fall

Dr. KENNETH RUMIN

The condition of a University student who fell three stories was stoically improved yesterday. Pi Kappa Alpha brother Mark Kiel was listed in critical condition at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, where he was treated and made critical condition.

By last Friday, Kiel was listed in stable condition, and a HUP representative said yesterday that the student had improved. The spokesman said that Kiel was "talking and walking." The College senior is not of the injury and is currently in stable condition, the spokesman said.

"Student Health Director Samuel Day, who spoke at the special meeting of the pi Kappa Alpha fraternity last Wednesday night after celebrating his 20th birthday with his students. His fall in the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania was accidental and he is expected to make a complete recovery. The spokesman said that Kiel was "talking and walking." But then he called a time out.

I had to make a stop decision.

The PA announcer had called away, Coach Craig Little was making his point.

It was 23-14.

And then all came back in that awful moment of the first
