Money Games

Quizmaster Barry talks on TV scandal

BY ERIC ROBERTS

One evening in May, two years ago, a group of scholastic-minded Americans tuned into an episode of "Twenty-One" - a popular game show at the time. The quiz show featured intellectual contests between contestants on various academic topics. The show was hosted by Bob Barker and was broadcast on NBC.

The episode that aired was particularly memorable because it was one of the first instances where a contestant was accused of cheating. The contestant in question, Charles Van Doren, was a former student at Columbia University and a well-known author. He was accused of reading the questions in advance and providing the contestants with the answers.

The scandal sparked a national debate about the ethics of quiz shows and the integrity of the media. It also led to increased scrutiny of the quiz show format and resulted in the implementation of safeguards to prevent cheating.

The scandal garnered much attention and was front-page news for more than a year. It caused a major shift in viewers' expectations of quiz shows, leading to their eventual decline in popularity.
Campus Events

The March Hare

A taste of what's happening this month...

BRUNCH & CRUNCH
LISTEN TO WILL-AM ABOUT "BRUNCH AND CRUNCH."

News In Brief

OPEC leaders delay summit meeting

LONDON—OPEC leaders delayed their meeting for 24 hours, apparently in a last-ditch effort to persuade the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to hold talks at a price cut and save the world oil cartel from collapse.

Venezuelan Oil Minister Humberto Caldener Bert and Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki al-Yamani set off today for a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' Joint Ministerial Committee to review progress towards a price cut. The meeting was to last until Tuesday, but is now scheduled for Thursday.

Quomaster speaks on TV scandals

"Continued from page 10

UA supports Law School army ban

The proposal would move the first date of classes to Thursday, September 3, at 7:30 am. But students who wish to change classes must do so by the second day of class because of Rush Hashana.

Students were told that they could attend a rally on campus or that they could vote on the issue. "I think that the three people who were involved in the decision to come to class and reputable institutions, but not at the University of Pennsylvania," said one student.

"I think that the three people who were involved in the decision to come to class and reputable institutions, but not at the University of Pennsylvania," said one student.

By Barry and Enright Productions, the series is hosted by the late David Hartman, a Philadelphia-based broadcast journalist. The series is produced by the Community Relations Council of Philadelphia, which sponsors the program.

"Continued from page 10"

By the University while fighting for a non-discrimination lawsuit on campus.

The campaign was launched in March this year by the Women's Political Action Committee, which is run by student groups on campus.

"Continued from page 10"

"I think that the three people who were involved in the decision to come to class and reputable institutions, but not at the University of Pennsylvania," said one student.

"I think that the three people who were involved in the decision to come to class and reputable institutions, but not at the University of Pennsylvania," said one student.

"I think that the three people who were involved in the decision to come to class and reputable institutions, but not at the University of Pennsylvania," said one student.

"I think that the three people who were involved in the decision to come to class and reputable institutions, but not at the University of Pennsylvania," said one student.
U. City planners aim to further high-tech boom

By KEVIN PALL

As the growth of high technology in West Philadelphia, Mariner of Development, looks to the future, a project for high technology is being planned in the area.

Looking north from 36th Street, a high-rise development is being planned to add to the technology boom in West Philadelphia. The project is being planned by the University City Science Center, the Institute for Scientific Information, the Chemical Sciences Corporation, the offices of Urban Development, and the City of Philadelphia.

The West Philadelphia project is an impressive achievement for a community which still suffers from urban blight and underdevelopment. The area, which once was a center for heavy industry, has seen its industry disappear, leaving the area empty of jobs and hope.

The project is aimed at bringing high technology to the area. The planners hope to attract high technology firms to the area, providing a glimpse of the brighter future that is possible.

One of the key elements of the project is to create an area where high technology firms can thrive. The planners have identified several areas in the city where high technology firms are already located, and they hope to attract others to these areas.

The planners are also working to attract high technology firms from outside the city. They hope to attract firms from other parts of the country, as well as from other countries around the world.

The planners are working with local universities to provide the necessary support for the project. They hope to attract high technology firms that are interested in working with the universities to develop new technologies and research.

The project is expected to create thousands of jobs, both for the people who work at the high technology firms and for the people who work in the support industries.

The planners hope that the project will also attract new residents to the area, who will help to revitalize the community.

The West Philadelphia High-Tech Project is a significant step in the right direction for the area. The planners hope that it will be the beginning of a new era for West Philadelphia, one in which the community is once again a center of economic activity.
The Daily Pennsylvanian
The Newspaper of the Pennsylvania State University

letters to the editor

Some Disturbing Incidents
By Gordon Whitman

Why did the University propose a calendar which scheduled the first two days of school on Rosh Hashanah? It is true that the University community did protest the plan but their rallies were completely ignored. We have been bombed repeatedly in the past.

This is a reaction to the question of an attack on this University. No one in Wharton. No one in the Administration. Not too many people would qualify. None of our world leaders would be responsible for it.

The answer to the first question is that we all live in an insecure world which is only made more insecure by the United Nations. This is one of the factors which we are trying to work out.

The answer to the second question is that we are all living in an insecure world which is only made more insecure by the United Nations. This is one of the factors which we are trying to work out.

The answer to the third question is that we all live in an insecure world which is only made more insecure by the United Nations. This is one of the factors which we are trying to work out.

I am sure that this answer will not be accepted. We are all living in an insecure world which is only made more insecure by the United Nations. This is one of the factors which we are trying to work out.

The only solution I can think of now is that I would get to decide who would get bombs. Each bomb would get a kick out of the fact that they were the ones who would get bombs. There are obviously a lot of people in the world who do not think this is a good idea. Picture a U.S. Undersecretary of Armageddon, or other high level official, faced with a vote on whether to drop or not to drop a bomb. He is going to hold responsible for the decision to launch a nuclear bomb, which becomes more and more dangerous as the number of bombs increases.

After the bombs were up, the president would come on

Not too many people would qualify. None of our world leaders would be responsible for it.

And the proposed calendar has one more feature which is not mentioned in the Daily Pennsylvanian. But Is It Art?

"Don't Put Policy Ahead of People"

By Frank Untz

People who like bombs should not, under any circumstances, be revolutionaries, or officials, or anything else. The Daily Pennsylvanian in its editorial today correctly points out that we have a problem with this.

The Daily Pennsylvanian in its editorial today correctly points out that we have a problem with this. The problem is that we all live in an insecure world which is only made more insecure by the United Nations. This is one of the factors which we are trying to work out.

The answer to the second question is that we all live in an insecure world which is only made more insecure by the United Nations. This is one of the factors which we are trying to work out.

I am sure that this answer will not be accepted. We are all living in an insecure world which is only made more insecure by the United Nations. This is one of the factors which we are trying to work out.

The only solution I can think of now is that I would get to decide who would get bombs. Each bomb would get a kick out of the fact that they were the ones who would get bombs. There are obviously a lot of people in the world who do not think this is a good idea. Picture a U.S. Undersecretary of Armageddon, or other high level official, faced with a vote on whether to drop or not to drop a bomb. He is going to hold responsible for the decision to launch a nuclear bomb, which becomes more and more dangerous as the number of bombs increases.

After the bombs were up, the president would come on
U. to expand Superblock parking

Larger barriers to restrict traffic

By OWEN EDMONDSON

The University is planning to add new parking facilities in Superblock that the aim is to restrict parking and through-traffic in the area.

The project, which is expected to cost around $10 million, involves the construction of new parking lots — with a capacity for around 500 vehicles — near Hamilton and Harnwell Halls and to widen, improve and upgrade a number of roads and traffic barriers there to restrict parking this summer and 10 install new traffic barriers. The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

"The aim is to restrict parking and through-traffic in the area. With this in mind, the University is planning to add new parking lots near Hamilton and Harnwell Halls and to widen, improve and upgrade a number of roads and traffic barriers near these lots to restrict parking this summer and 10 install new traffic barriers," said University President David H. McClinton.

"We're trying to keep traffic on the periphery of the walkways," he said. "The Student Senate is working closely with the University to ensure that the project is completed on time and that the University is able to meet the needs of the students and faculty.

"They're not only beautiful, but they're also functional." The Student Senate, which is responsible for managing the University's parking system, said that the new lots will be located near the periphery of the walkways, where they will be less likely to be used by through-traffic.

"We're trying to keep traffic on the periphery of the walkways," he said. "The Student Senate is working closely with the University to ensure that the project is completed on time and that the University is able to meet the needs of the students and faculty.

"They're not only beautiful, but they're also functional," the Student Senate said. "The new lots will be located near the periphery of the walkways, where they will be less likely to be used by through-traffic.

"The Student Senate, which is responsible for managing the University's parking system, said that the new lots will be located near the periphery of the walkways, where they will be less likely to be used by through-traffic."
See you TONIGHT at CSBG for their Skeever & Caesar Salad Dinner Special only $4.50. .

All Sales Representatives!!

There will be a Super Important sales meeting TODAY, at 5 P.M. in the DP business office. Be there!

(Assignment checks will be handed out)

Money Management

Center City conference to aid businesswomen

By KIM CHILD

The Center City Chamber of Commerce is hosting the Center City Council Chambers conference to aid businesswomen. About 250 to 300 people are expected, organizers said. The event is titled "Women Managing Your Business." Conference organizers hope the focus of the event is to provide business owners with contracts, and information to which they otherwise might not have access.

The conference is being conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Two sessions are located in the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Those sessions are conducted by the Philadelphia Economic Development Construction Corporation. The second session is conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center.

Diana Lingard, a speaker for the conference, said that the two primary drivers of the conference are the opportunity to network and provide practical information.

"There's a lack of the 'old boy' network," Lingard said.

By ERIC ROBERTS

Catherine Marshall, an assistant manager at the Annenberg Center, has been named to the NEC panel to examine UA members.

Marshall will attend the National Showman of Performing Arts for Young Artists, or NSPA, in Syracuse, N.Y., as a selected member of the NEC panel. NEC members have been meeting for the past five years, as requested by the Professional Council of Arts New York, according to the National Showman of Performing Arts. The center as a whole is a member of the national organization, by which theaters can sample performances from around the country. The conference committee is expected to expand its offerings in the future, providing business owners with a variety of speakers, helping children chaperon programs. The conference is being conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Those sessions are conducted by the Philadelphia Economic Development Construction Corporation. The second session is conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center.

"There's a lack of the 'old boy' network," Lingard said.

By KIM CHILD

The Center City Chamber of Commerce is hosting the Center City Council Chambers conference to aid businesswomen. About 250 to 300 people are expected, organizers said. The event is titled "Women Managing Your Business." Conference organizers hope the focus of the event is to provide business owners with contracts, and information to which they otherwise might not have access.

The conference is being conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Two sessions are located in the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Those sessions are conducted by the Philadelphia Economic Development Construction Corporation. The second session is conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center.

Diana Lingard, a speaker for the conference, said that the two primary drivers of the conference are the opportunity to network and provide practical information.

"There's a lack of the 'old boy' network," Lingard said.

By KIM CHILD

The Center City Chamber of Commerce is hosting the Center City Council Chambers conference to aid businesswomen. About 250 to 300 people are expected, organizers said. The event is titled "Women Managing Your Business." Conference organizers hope the focus of the event is to provide business owners with contracts, and information to which they otherwise might not have access.

The conference is being conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Two sessions are located in the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Those sessions are conducted by the Philadelphia Economic Development Construction Corporation. The second session is conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center.

Diana Lingard, a speaker for the conference, said that the two primary drivers of the conference are the opportunity to network and provide practical information.

"There's a lack of the 'old boy' network," Lingard said.

By KIM CHILD

The Center City Chamber of Commerce is hosting the Center City Council Chambers conference to aid businesswomen. About 250 to 300 people are expected, organizers said. The event is titled "Women Managing Your Business." Conference organizers hope the focus of the event is to provide business owners with contracts, and information to which they otherwise might not have access.

The conference is being conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Two sessions are located in the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Those sessions are conducted by the Philadelphia Economic Development Construction Corporation. The second session is conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center.

Diana Lingard, a speaker for the conference, said that the two primary drivers of the conference are the opportunity to network and provide practical information.

"There's a lack of the 'old boy' network," Lingard said.

By KIM CHILD

The Center City Chamber of Commerce is hosting the Center City Council Chambers conference to aid businesswomen. About 250 to 300 people are expected, organizers said. The event is titled "Women Managing Your Business." Conference organizers hope the focus of the event is to provide business owners with contracts, and information to which they otherwise might not have access.

The conference is being conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Two sessions are located in the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center. Those sessions are conducted by the Philadelphia Economic Development Construction Corporation. The second session is conducted by the Pennsylvania Small Business Development Center.

Diana Lingard, a speaker for the conference, said that the two primary drivers of the conference are the opportunity to network and provide practical information.

"There's a lack of the 'old boy' network," Lingard said.
M. Fencing

"Close enough to Columbia to prevent while breezing." He slogged through the snow. "I'm Leung." The singles, winning all of his bouts on the C strip but failed to qualify for the individual tournament by one heat. "I'm happy with the way I'm doing," he said. Wilson received lessons in the style of his father from his uncle, "Uncle Jose," former coach of the "Man of the Match." Michael said, "I'm more for the type of competition and the bigger the better." He's thinking about majoring in chemistry. "I'm happy with the way I'm doing," he said. Wilson received lessons in the style of his father from his uncle, "Uncle Jose," former coach of the "Man of the Match." Michael said, "I'm more for the type of competition and the bigger the better." He's thinking about majoring in chemistry.

M. Squash

"Close enough to Columbia to prevent while breezing." He slogged through the snow. "I'm Leung." The singles, winning all of his bouts on the C strip but failed to qualify for the individual tournament by one heat. "I'm happy with the way I'm doing," he said. Wilson received lessons in the style of his father from his uncle, "Uncle Jose," former coach of the "Man of the Match." Michael said, "I'm more for the type of competition and the bigger the better." He's thinking about majoring in chemistry. "I'm happy with the way I'm doing," he said. Wilson received lessons in the style of his father from his uncle, "Uncle Jose," former coach of the "Man of the Match." Michael said, "I'm more for the type of competition and the bigger the better." He's thinking about majoring in chemistry.

W. Track

"Close enough to Columbia to prevent while breezing." He slogged through the snow. "I'm Leung." The singles, winning all of his bouts on the C strip but failed to qualify for the individual tournament by one heat. "I'm happy with the way I'm doing," he said. Wilson received lessons in the style of his father from his uncle, "Uncle Jose," former coach of the "Man of the Match." Michael said, "I'm more for the type of competition and the bigger the better." He's thinking about majoring in chemistry. "I'm happy with the way I'm doing," he said. Wilson received lessons in the style of his father from his uncle, "Uncle Jose," former coach of the "Man of the Match." Michael said, "I'm more for the type of competition and the bigger the better." He's thinking about majoring in chemistry.
M. Squash finishes sixth in 30-team ISA tournay

By STEFANIE KRAJNOW

The University has met the most particularly friendly environment for the typical Penn athlete. This past weekend, however, the men's squash team won a tournament that was to be quite receptive, as the Quakers were seeded eight in the American Intercollegiate Scottish Championships. Competing against 30 teams from across the nation, the Quakers led by 10 points in the first round and were able to defeat seven of their final six opponents.

"We were really happy with the way we played," said Penn head coach Steve Holman. "We had a goodorganized team and were able to top a few of our opponents.

The men's team played brilliantly, particularly in the third round, when they were able to put up a strong fight against some of their toughest competitors. In their final match, the Quakers were able to defeat the Harvard Crimson, 3-2, to finish in sixth place.

The women's team also performed well, finishing in ninth place overall.

W. Track struggles at Easterns

Tied team scores just four points

By MIKE HEYRING

Several Panamericans are expected to make up the track and field team that will represent the United States at the Pan American Games in 1983. The PanAmerican Games are a multi-sport event that takes place every four years.

The PanAmerican Games were first held in 1954 and have since been held every four years. The games feature a wide range of sports, including athletics, swimming, and track and field.

The PanAmerican Games have been held in various locations, including Mexico City, Havana, Rio de Janeiro, and Buenos Aires. The games are considered one of the largest multi-sport events in the world.

The PanAmerican Games are open to athletes from the Americas, and the competition features the best athletes from each country. The games are known for their lively atmosphere and friendly spirit.

In addition to the track and field events, the PanAmerican Games also feature a variety of other sports and activities, such as music, dance, and cultural displays. The games are a great opportunity for athletes to compete against their peers and to experience the rich culture of the Americas.

The PanAmerican Games are also an important event for promoting unity and cooperation among the nations of the Americas. The games provide a platform for athletes to come together and to compete in a spirit of friendship and sportsmanship.

The PanAmerican Games are an important event for promoting the ideals of the Americas, and the games are considered a cornerstone of the PanAmerican Movement. The games have a long and rich history, and they continue to be an important event for athletes and fans alike.

The PanAmerican Games are also an important event for promoting the ideals of the Americas, and the games are considered a cornerstone of the PanAmerican Movement. The games have a long and rich history, and they continue to be an important event for athletes and fans alike.

The PanAmerican Games are also an important event for promoting the ideals of the Americas, and the games are considered a cornerstone of the PanAmerican Movement. The games have a long and rich history, and they continue to be an important event for athletes and fans alike.

The PanAmerican Games are also an important event for promoting the ideals of the Americas, and the games are considered a cornerstone of the PanAmerican Movement. The games have a long and rich history, and they continue to be an important event for athletes and fans alike.

The PanAmerican Games are also an important event for promoting the ideals of the Americas, and the games are considered a cornerstone of the PanAmerican Movement. The games have a long and rich history, and they continue to be an important event for athletes and fans alike.