Pappas family withdraws grant

Mailer cancels remaining speeches, leaves for New York

B. ERICH SAVITZ

Norman Mailer will be the University’s last Pappas Visiting Fellow, it was announced yesterday. After a lengthy decision-making process, Mailer will learn with the Annenberg Center for Communication. The decision to invite Mailer was tied in Mailer’s honors; a luncheon planned for him is still to be held, but “it’s real going to be a helluva good one,” Helm said yesterday that the luncheon plan- ning committee was settling for a second-rate act instead. Mailer will be shocked at the news. “Of course,” Mailer said, “we’re very disappointed to hear this decision. We’d like to see a_TMP for the prestigious business school. He will be coming in at the departmental level, he said. “We’re very disappointed that Mailer is not going to lecture here. We will have to find another speaker, but it’s going to be a great loss to the University.”

Reagan: Smurfs are O.K. for lunch

WASHINGTON — President Reagan declared Friday that it was all right for the nation to eat smurfs this year for Passover. At a at a press conference at the White House, Mr. Reagan said: "I have been having them for a while and I recommend them."

Mr. Reagan said that he had been eating smurfs as a snack for quite some time, but that he had not told anyone about it until now. He said that he had tried to find the best smurf available, and had settled on the small blueberry-flavored variety.

Mr. Reagan said that he had not had any problems with them, and that he was looking forward to having more in the future. He added that he was sure that other people would enjoy them as well.

Mr. Reagan also said that he had been trying to find a way to incorporate smurfs into his diet, and had been successful in doing so. He said that he had been using smurfs in his salads, and that he had also been using them as a topping for his ice cream.

Mr. Reagan said that he had been told by his doctors that he was not eating too many smurfs, and that he was still able to maintain a healthy weight. He added that he was sure that others would be able to do the same if they followed his example.

‘Oh that this too solid building would melt, collapse and fall down into a heap’

By DAVID TISCHMAN

Zeta Beta Tau fraternity has announced a $15 million construction plan to tear down Harnwell House and erect tennis courts and a garage on the site.

Proponents of the project on the construction plan to place a new tennis court between the building and the remaining parts of Superblock became.

The demolition will cost $90 million, with $1 million to be set aside to build the tennis courts and the garage.

The land on which ZBT and Harnwell House stand is owned by ZBT member and former Philadelphia Correctional Facility head of security, Masson. The Philadelphia Palestra have expressed interest in the property for the past two years.

Masson said yesterday that he and his friends bought the land as a Chanceryhall property.

"I don't think of what to get the boys — their subscription to TV Guide was up — their money, but we're going to keep an eye on them. We can't think of what to give them — we only gave them a bagel at three in the morning."

Walter Annenberg, Bernard Gimbel and the remaining parts of Superblock began.

A Moral Outrage

Each spring, members of the University community are subject to a moral outrage occurring beneath their noses. This year, the problem is fraternities. This fraternalism, on campus College Grove, is indicative of the moral decay of our University. Is an indictment of our University. But it is more. For I blame that year a new political entity mock 's own News' frivolous style.

The situation was called, decided to liberate the traditionally in-chiefs dose of student nihilism. . .some things never change,

We would like to make it known that the University

1. We are going to have to start a nuclear war. And now is the right time. It's everywhere.

2. It would solve the overpopulation problem.

3. It would end the arms race.

4. It would end the recession.

5. It would end the fear of nuclear war.

6. It would solve the MX basing problem.

7. It would stabilize the world's economy.

We are going to have to start a nuclear war. And now is the right time. It's everywhere.

Oh my god, you know what? It makes me laugh, thinking how something as unlikely as a more meaningful and significant plot in a musical is possible. There are still some outstanding scenes with a lot of heart. Doubtless, it's the story of the Jewish people's relocation at the hands of their oppressors. Seren, as you correctly noted, is a strong character, but the music is somewhat predictable.

Passover Celebrates...

Passover celebrates the moment when God brought the Jewish people out of slavery from Egypt. The name PASSOVER is derived from the account in the Torah (Exodus Ch. 12) where God tells Moses to command the Jewish people to slaughter a pascal lamb and put its blood on the doorposts of each home to be a sign. When God passed over the homes of the Jewish people, He PASSED OVER the doorposts (mexusot) of each home to be a sign. When God passed over the homes of the Jewish people, He PASSED OVER the homes of the Jewish people.

Did God need a sign to know where the Jews lived? Really, WE needed to make a personal statement of our identity to God. In every generation, each Jew is obligated to view him or herself as if he or she personally was redeemed from bondage.

Drug abuse

Drug abuse is on the rise in college campuses, making it an important issue for both students and administrators. It is crucial for universities to implement policies that address this problem, such as increasing awareness through education and providing resources for students struggling with drug addiction.

Quaker band banned from variety shows

Musicians ordered to 'Giddy Up' by Athletic Department

By CARMEN SMITH-MUELLER

In a surprise announcement, Athletic Director Charles Harris said today that the Penn marching band will not be permitted to perform at University-sponsored athletic events.

The ban was met with shock and disappointment. The Penn marching band will not be permitted to perform at University-sponsored athletic events.

"This decision was made due to the fact that the band has been found guilty of several violations of the university's code of conduct," Harris said in the press conference.

Campus leaders reacted quickly and in a united front in response to the Harris announcement.

"We are totally disappointed and angry with this decision," said President Sheldon Hackney. "It is a clear violation of our students' rights and freedoms.

"We will fight this decision in every possible way," Harris said.

Gary Vura, a Wharton music major and former managing editor of GCN, the student newspaper, was one of the most vocal in his criticism of the ban.

"I have always been impressed with the Penn Marching Band," Vura said. "I've seen them perform at various events and I always enjoyed their music and spirit.

"I think it's a shame that they can't perform anymore," Vura said. "It's going to be a huge loss for the community.

"I'm sure we'll find a way to keep them going," Harris said. "We're already exploring options such as a new marching band or a retooled version of the current band.

"But for now, the ban is in effect," Harris said.
