AIDS: The city cope with the disease

By DAVID GOODHAUSE

Philadelphia

While over 2000 cases of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome have been reported nationwide, only 53 cases have occurred in the Philadelphia area. But city officials are aware that it is the world with a substantial number of residents.

The interest in the Philadelphia AIDS Task Force is that the city has focused on the mental and physical well-being of people who have AIDS. The task force was created to reduce the stigma and discrimination that people with AIDS face.

The AIDS Task Force has taken place on many fronts. Researchers throughout the city are combating the disease, doing research to understand what AIDS is, and trying to educate people to reduce the number of cases. The task force is working to reduce the number of cases by increasing awareness and providing support to those who are affected.

Philadelphia has been hard hit by the AIDS epidemic, with the city's health officials warning that the disease is here to stay. "We are not going to turn it around," said Dr. John E. Sharrar, director of the city's Department of Public Health.

The task force has been working to educate the public about AIDS, and to increase the number of people who are aware of the disease. The task force has been working to increase the number of people who are aware of the disease, and to increase the number of people who are aware of the disease.

AIDS sufferer Douglas James in his Center City apartment

Douglas James, a resident of Philadelphia, is one of the many people who have been affected by the AIDS epidemic. He has been receiving the care of the Philadelphia Task Force, and has been working with the city and local hospitals to provide support for people with AIDS and their families. The support includes housing, medical care, and counseling.

The group also includes people who are HIV-positive, and are currently receiving care. The task force has been working to increase the number of people who are aware of the disease, and to increase the number of people who are aware of the disease.

Blood Donor Club Deserves Credit

The Editor

I would like to commend the student body, faculty, and staff of Penn State for participating in the Blood Donor Club. This organization is a living example of how students can come together and work towards a common goal. The concept of blood donation is a vital one, and it is heartening to see it being promoted in such an effective manner. I am sure that the efforts of the Blood Donor Club will help to save many lives and contribute to the greater good.

Peter Neil Claire's jibe at the Israelis in his column on the Israeli attack on the USS Liberty was unjustified. The attack was a tragic event that resulted in the loss of American lives. It is not appropriate to use such a serious incident as a means of criticizing another country. Claire's words were insensitive and inappropriate.

Education official meets with students

By MARC HARRIS

Student leaders met yesterday with Undersecretary of Education Gary Jones to discuss the federal government’s position on legislation.

Ettelson’s meeting focused on the constitutional issues raised by the August 1983 Supreme Court decision that forbade colleges and universities from requiring students to sign contracts to avoid the decreased diversity on their campuses, which may result.

According to Ettelson, the amount of financial aid it can cost to increase Pell Grant money maximums from $1000 to $1200 or 40 percent of a student’s cost, said Ettelson, a College sophomore.

In general, the meeting was very straightforward, not antagonistic,” Ettelson said. “We got to see each other’s viewpoint.”

As hard as it is, the government docs make sense to Jones, said Jones to address the federal government’s position on abortion.

Israeli’s speech finds opposition

Pro-Palestinian Jew calls a ‘traitor’

The political activism compared the talks to the film about Israeli politics, saying that it must not be allowed to occur. "There is no place for this event on campus," he said.

The student leader who organized the event, Yiddish language student David Bibring, said he was disappointed by the university’s decision.

Bibring, a junior, said he was concerned about the decision to cancel the event because it could lead to a decrease in student participation.

The event was scheduled for Thursday night, but the decision to取消 the event was made on Wednesday afternoon.

Bibring said he was disappointed that the university did not give him a chance to present his views.

"I was looking forward to discussing this issue with students," he said.

The university, which is a public institution, has a policy of allowing students to express a range of views, but it does not support events that are deemed to be disruptive to the educational mission.

Bibring said he was worried that the decision would lead to a decrease in student participation.

In a statement, the university said it had "taken this action in order to protect the safety of our students and faculty."
VA Hospital opens new day-care center

BY JIMMY LA PANA

A day-care center for the children of University City parents opened yesterday at a child-care center run by Templeton and Marianne Kelly.

"The center, located in the hospital at 37th Street and Woodland Avenue, will be run by Templeton, who holds a degree in education from the University of Pennsylvania," said Raymond Lockwood, the center's director.

She will be assisted by teacher's aides from the nearby Van Pelt College House.

The center will be open from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. and will accommodate up to 15 children, with a maximum of 12 children in each group.

The center provides a safe and nurturing environment for children of all ages, from infants to toddlers.

Parents can register their children for the day-care center by contacting the Van Pelt College House at 444-5761.

Tuition payment plan

Under the plan, an account is set up for every future Penn student to cover the cost of tuition.

The University has estimated that approximately 12 months of the student's freshman year will be covered by the program.

The Guaranteed Financing Plan, which guarantees a fixed rate of interest for all four years, is designed for students who are confident in their ability to pay.

The Aided Financing Plan, which provides a lower rate of interest for the first two years, is designed for students who are uncertain about their ability to pay.

The Guaranteed Financing Plan guarantees a rate of interest that remains fixed throughout the student's college career.

The Aided Financing Plan offers a lower rate of interest for the first two years, but may be more expensive in the long run.

The plan includes the down payment, the student's monthly payments, and the University's monthly payments.

Undergraduate Assembly President Kenneth Thayer said the plan provides an opportunity to get the most out of their education for every future Penn student.

"The plan is designed to help students make the most of their education, and to have lunch with them," he said.

"WeeCare Regional Director Kathleen Thayer said that she believes the center will attract many parents who may not have considered day care before.

"WeeCare's parent/child interaction will accommodate the young children of any parent living or working in University City," she said.

"Parents don't have to worry about leaving their children in day care," she said. "Here, a mother can even breast-feed her child."

"Parents should feel free to suggest programs or activities for older children. WeeCare plans to match the needs of other parents," Thayer said.

"Programs are designed to foster cognitive growth as well as social and emotional development," she said.

"WeeCare is designed to be a convenient and flexible option for parents," Thayer said. "WeeCare's hours are designed to accommodate parents who work in University City."
Hersch: Korean plane was 'flying where it wanted'

By BORIS LIVNE

Korean Air Lines flight 007 was 'flying where it wanted to' and probably did not stray accidentally into Soviet airspace, the official said yesterday in reaction to reports that the jet had been shot down by Soviet fighters.

Hersch, author of the recent controversy-stirring book The Other Side: The Real War on Vietnam and editor of the New Times, said he had spoken directly to the president of the Soviet Union.

He claimed that the directions for KAL flight 007 which were prepared by Western officials were wrong.

"The situation was much more complex than it appears," he said. "I suggest, in fact, that the jet was not guilty of any act of aggression, but was something far more sinister."

Hersch added that it had been the United Nations who caused the confusion by not informing the world of the crash.

The situation was due to "many factors, not the least of which was the secret nature of the operation," he said.

He added that "the apparent simplicity of the situation was due to the fact that the United Nations had not been informed of the crash," and that "the world has not yet learned how to read and concentrate on current events."

On this night, the Wharton Campus was happy with the game in a whole. Coach Kage mentioned that he might have to take a penalty tonight, so I practiced penalty shots, but we also practiced the game. I just tried to be too precise to the killers, as they were very good at their jobs. We want to keep the ball out of our own territory, and we kept it out of our own territory. Our defense scored a bit at the end of the game. "But if our pressure grew at the end of the game, we wanted to keep the ball out of our own territory. They scored and the ball didn't come out on top."

Amy Wilkinson, the Blue Hen, begins to go in the game, scoring for the first time. "They scored and the ball didn't come out on top."

Field Hockey beats Delaware in overtime, 1-0

B. TEMPELHEART
(DP) Sports Editor

The Quakers were searching for a chance to get back into the game and hold on for an overtime victory.

But the Penn defense held firm and Penn goalie Nancy Meisinger who turned in her second straight shutout, didn't give Delaware an inch as the Quakers recovered to beat Delaware 1-0 in overtime at Franklin Field.

"It's just a phenomenal effort by the defense," said head coach Brian Nash. "Nancy Meisinger has been phenomenal and the whole defense was just magnificent."

Delaware had a few chances, but the Quakers were able to clear the ball out of the defense, and Penn goalie Nancy Meisinger kept the Penn end clean of the Delaware scoring threat in a game that Penn eventually lost. But it was Delaware that couldn't find its net.

With 1:36 remaining in overtime, Delaware took a corner shot, and, after a couple of deflections, Meisinger was able to get out of the way and save the Penn goal. It needed just that one save to get the victory.

"The defense is as strong as it's been in the first 2-0 loss to Delaware last season." Nash said. "This defense is really strong, carrying the play and putting pressure on the Penn defense."

Meisinger, who turned in her second straight shutout, didn't give Delaware an inch. The performance was no surprise to Quakers head coach Brian Nash. He said, "Our defense is very good, and when we play a good defense, we can win games."

"People give to specific sports for a reason. They don't recycle to another sport." Nash said. "The defense has proven that they can put the ball away and this is a strong defense."

The Quakers could set up to attack the Penn defense and press the pressure on the Penn defense, but the Penn defense held firm and Penn goalie Nancy Meisinger who turned in her second straight shutout, didn't give Delaware an inch as the Quakers recovered to beat Delaware 1-0 in overtime at Franklin Field.

He said he's happy to coniribute to the win. "I was happy to contribute to the win," Cook said. "I think that's what we're all here for."

"It was right there. He loves football." McHardy said. "He's intense and consistent," co-captain Bill Harris said. "But he's always there. He's always ready to go." "He's a wonderful guy," said assistant coach Doug Jackson. "And I'm taking on guards and guys up front." Cooky won't say anything unless you ask him, but I don't think that's true."}

After balls and be more aggressive — I know she'll be there to clear the defense cleaned every hour, and the Quakers held on.

Patty Kennedy had scoring opportunities, neither of them could find the net. With 11 minutes to play, Skudder replaced starter Jennifer Sandier, who was out of the game. But the Penn defense held firm, and Penn goalie Nancy Meisinger was able to save the Penn goal.

Late last night, in the second overtime half of field hockey at Franklin Field, Penn's defense took on the pressure of an American Delaware offense.
