Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News

Columbia cancels aid under draft law

New York — Columbia University has pulled all financial aid from more than 200 students who have not registered under the Selective Service System. It is the first time Columbia has taken such a step.

The university said it made the decision in response to a legal challenge. A federal court had ruled earlier this year that Columbia was required to provide financial aid to all eligible students regardless of their registration status.

The university said it would begin the process of revoking aid to students who do not register.

"We are not making this decision lightly," said Columbia President Lee Bollinger. "We are doing it because we believe it is necessary to protect the interests of our students and our institution."

The university expects to revoke aid from about 200 students in the next few weeks.

New York Daily News
Overcrowding plagues public health facilities

The Pennmedicine system faces a pressing issue: the overburdening of its public health facilities due to a high volume of patients. The city's health centers are stretched thin, with many patients forced to wait long periods to receive care. As of late, the waiting lists have increased, and the centers are dealing with the shortage of resources to provide the necessary care.

Dr. Hicks, the director of the 43rd Street health center, discussed the situation. "We're dealing with a constant influx of patients," Dr. Hicks said. "There are patients who are waiting for weeks to get an appointment. It's a real strain on our staff and resources."

According to the city officials, the centers are functioning at or near capacity. "The only criteria for being eligible for the free care is that you are a resident of Philadelphia and that your income is below a certain threshold," said Mike Lucas, the city's family health services administrator. "However, we are giving it our best shot to accommodate as many patients as possible."

Patients often have to wait two to three hours to see a doctor at 43rd Street. A new patient may wait up to three weeks before obtaining an appointment. "The centers receive their funding from the city and the hospitals," Lucas said. "We do our best to provide care, but it's challenging with the current circumstances."

"The doctors here are on the city's payroll," Hicks said. "We're doing our best to accommodate as many patients as possible, but it's not easy."

"We collect third-party insurance if the patient has it. Otherwise, we charge them," Hicks added. "We're trying our best to serve a variety of family needs."

Patients often have to wait for weeks to get an appointment. 'It wasn't too bad,' she said. 'It's free, and the medicine is great. There are an opportunity. - I'm not going to say the waiting time is reasonable. '

"The doctors here are on the city's payroll," Hicks said. "The dental clinic is basically for children's prevention. It's not a full-service clinic."

"The city health centers were designed to serve a variety of family needs. They're better because they're more localized than the other services," Hicks said. "They work here three to four hours a day in addition to having other responsibilities."
The Correct Reaction

The Penn Union Council has this to show the movie, "Insatiable" on Friday. And everyone on campus has the right to stay away. Members of the student council plan to show their disapproval for films that, in the opinion of their members, contribute to what they call a "porno菲lic" culture. The films are an attempt, they say, to appeal to the "naughtier" side of human nature.

The students also say that these films are inappropriate for a university audience. They say that the theme of sexual violence is relevant to the campus climate, and that the screening of these films is an inappropriate form of entertainment.

The films in question are "Travesty of Justice" and "In the Heat of Lust," which both contain explicit violence against women. The students argue that these films are offensive and that they contribute to a culture of violence against women.

The screening is scheduled for Friday night, and is open to all students. The council has announced that it will block the showing of these films if the university administrators do not intervene.

Letters to the Editor

To Porn or Not To Porn...

To the Editor: I wonder how few of you realize that, for those against pornography, free speech is a red herring. Those who support censorship are not necessarily against freedom of speech. They are concerned about the content of the material being produced, rather than the right to produce it.

I believe that censorship is necessary in order to protect children from harmful material. Pornography has a negative impact on society, and it is important to prevent it from being distributed to those who are most vulnerable.

The First Amendment does not mean that anything can be said or done. There are limits to free speech, such as obscenity and defamation. Pornography is often classified as obscenity, and as such, it can be regulated.

I urge all of you to consider the impact of pornography on society, and to support measures that will help prevent it from reaching those who are most vulnerable.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

--

REQUhED COURSE/Gwendolyn Freyd

A Better Class

More than anything else, it was the "teaching" of the female which fascinated me. In the deep, dark world of sex education, we learned about reproduction, about the female body, about the menstrual cycle, and about the importance of birth control. We were also taught about the dangers of abortion and the importance of preserving one's family.

In school, we learned about the "normal" female reproductive cycle. We were told that menstruation was a natural process, and that it was important to keep the body clean. We were also taught about the importance of pregnancy, and the responsibilities that come with it.

But in the real world, we learned that things were not always as simple as they seemed. We learned about the complexities of fertility, and the challenges that women face when it comes to family planning.

We learned about the importance of considering one's values and desires when making decisions about reproduction. We were taught to be responsible and to make informed choices.

The answer was not as simple as the textbook answers, however. In the real world, there are many factors to consider. There are the financial considerations, and the emotional and spiritual considerations.

The decision to have a child is not just a matter of biology. It is a matter of values and priorities.

We were taught that the "right" decision is the one that is best for the person making the decision. We were taught to listen to our own hearts, and to make decisions that are in line with our values.

We were also taught about the importance of seeking support from others when making difficult decisions. We were taught that it is important to talk to friends and family members, and to seek guidance from others who have experience in similar situations.

On the day of the exam, I had a nervous breakdown. I was unable to concentrate, and I was unable to think clearly. I did not do well on the exam, and I was unable to complete the essay on the topic of contraception.

The experience of the exam was a difficult one for me. I was<ref>...</ref>...
German leader to speak at U.

BY ELIZABETH ROBERTS West German Foreign Minister Karl Carstens will make a two-day visit to the United States as part of the ongoing celebration of the 50th anniversary of German immigration to the United States.

The speech is part of a day-long conference at the University on German-American relations, politics and history.

Carstens, a professor of law by profession, will speak at 4 p.m. in the Zellerbach Theater in the Woodward-Detroit Center.

German Department Graduate Assistant Frank Trummler, co-organizer of the celebration, praised the content of the speech as "one of the most difficult to come before German education.

Creationism vs. Science

(Continued from page 3)

...and, under the influence of energy, it would seem to form molecules. For life to exist it requires a complicated control system.

He later said: "I never believe the earth is old... I do not share the same view of creationism that the newspapers talk about."

"The reason it is the source of energy, it is so-called creation. It is the source of energy, it is so-called natural cause, it could be strongly or superficially." Bradley said in naming an analogy for evolution: "You find the case of posts over here we are a member of the same family."

At present, Carstens is a strong supporter of German-American relations. In a speech in Havana West German Foreign Minister Karl Carstens said: "I never again turn away from America. I do it as I would mean nothing other than to allow ourselves for a third time to become astonished by the end of our most recent history and to understand the reasons for it."

In the same speech, Carstens spoke of Germany's efforts to be made aware of the country's relations with the United States.

"Like the young people in the United States, we are also interested in the opportunity of discovering more about the American special and vital elements on which the German-American friendship is based," he said.

Carstens was elected chairman of the Christian Democratic Union Party in 1973. In 1976, he was elected chairman of the Bundestag, the German Parliament, and two years later, Federal President, a position which is often considered to be "above politics" in West Germany.

National League Playoffs

7 Foot Screen

Phillies vs. Dodgers

PAGANO'S

(100) POINT LOUNGE

38th & Chestnut: 382-4105

• 2/$ Hot Dogs
• 5/$ Hugs
• Free Popcorn
• No Cover

Independent House

University City are at Pagano's.

Through October 9th Minimum Charge 25c

20% OFF FILM DEVELOPING

Minimum order 24 negatives. Not valid with other discounts or coupons. Expires 10/31/83

CENSORED

Create A New Impression

Student Special

Bedroom Pencils

tue., wed., sat. 8-4
tue., & thu. 8-6

Evening Appointments Available.

Style World

THE DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN — Wednesday, October 1, 1983
Year 103 program to mark black history

\textbf{B. Ames Alexander}\n
The University is planning a series of programs to mark the 103rd anniversary of the presence of blacks on the University campus and culture. Although none of the programs have yet been scheduled, Wade said that the theme for the programs will be to "continue to celebrate the presence of blacks at the University in terms of history and culture.

Various student groups and academic departments will participate in the program by sponsoring various programs and events. Wade said.

"We will try to do this on the third annual programs to continue educational activities designed to honor the 103rd anniversary of the presence of blacks on the campus," said Wade.

"The program will be particularly enlightening to non-black members of the University community," said Wade.

Following the 100th anniversary celebrations, the Office of the Vice President for University Life prepared a directory of programs on black history and culture.

\textbf{Jubilation! Dance Company}\n
"A unique blend of modern, ethnic, jazz and classical ballet techniques - rooted in traditional African dance."

Harrison Auditorium, University Museum

\textbf{Tix: $8 public, $6 with Penn I.D.}\n on Sale at Annenberg Box Office for more info, call 898-4444

\textbf{INTERESTED IN EARNING EXTRA CASH?}\n
Ivy Research Labs is Looking For Healthy Volunteers 18 Years of Age Or Older To Participate in Controlled Dermatology Research (Proaf Required)\n
Consumers Products Such as Perfumes, Bath Soaps, Shampoos, Cosmetics, Cloth and Paper Products Are Tested On Volunteers With Normal Healthy Skin.

If You Have Dandruff, Dry Skin, Acne or Athletes Feet, Stigmata of What Your Conditions Are At Various Times Of The Year.

For More Information Step In TEL 8-74400 Ivy Research Laboratories Inc. University City Science Center, 2nd. Floor Corner 34th and Market Streets
Philly guide

"He wants to find out about our issues of crime, transportation and housing — all Philadelphiaians are affected by this," Haddad said.

Schwartz said he planned to talk to Democratic candidates in last May's primary.

Haddad said that Schwartz will be available to help students in a personal basis. "He'll be shaking hands with students, meeting people and answering questions," he said.

Schwartz's campaign promises include a "neighborhood agenda" — a plan to revitalize Philadelphia neighborhoods by providing services of various civic sisterhoods provided by the city.

"We all knew it was a hot idea," said Haddad. "It's a real idea that would be nice to pursue when confronted with a $10 to $50 fee from the university when confronted with a $50 to $500 fee from the association of alumni and friends."
Starting salaries for Wharton MBA's rise

In mid-August, the job market appeared to take a turn for the worse, a situation that was borne out, according to companies that were hiring by September. Despite the downturn, the job market is still strong, and salaries, especially for top-tier schools, are not declining. According to most sources, Wharton MBA's are getting higher starting salaries than last year, although the specific numbers vary. In addition, a number of other MBA programs have also reported increases in starting salaries for their students.

One factor that may have contributed to the rise in starting salaries is the increase in the number of MBA graduates entering the job market. As more students complete their programs, there may be more competition among employers for their services, leading to higher starting salaries. Additionally, the overall economic climate may have played a role, as more companies are hiring and offering higher salaries to attract top talent.

For those interested in pursuing an MBA, it is important to research the starting salaries offered by different programs, as well as the placement rates and job opportunities available. This information can help individuals make informed decisions about which program to attend and what career path to pursue.

U. to offer seminar on teaching

The Graduate School of Education and the Sociology Department will host a seminar on teaching this fall. The seminar will be held in the Bishop White Room, Houston Hall, and will begin at 5:00 p.m. on Monday, September 1.

The seminar will focus on the importance of effective teaching strategies and how they can be applied to different educational contexts. Participants will have the opportunity to learn from experienced educators and to engage in discussions about best practices in teaching.

The seminar is open to all graduate students, as well as faculty and staff members. Refreshments will be served, and there will be a social hour following the seminar.

Wharton sophomore Mark Smith said that the seminar is a great opportunity for students to learn about teaching and to network with other educators. "I am really excited about this seminar," he said. "I think it will be very informative and provide a valuable opportunity for growth and learning."
Be a student representative on the

STUDENT HEALTH

DIRECTOR SEARCH

COMMITTEE

Sign up for interviews

Tomorrow, Oct. 6

in the UANE Office-

1st floor, Houston Hall

Amazing Breakthrough in Bong Entertalmen!!!

Music You Don't Have to Watch! On CBS Records & Cassettes!

FOR THOSE MOMENTS WHEN YOU CAN'T BE TIED TO A TV...

NOW YOU CAN ACTUALLY OWN THE MUSIC TO YOUR FAVORITE VIDEOS!

Imagine! Hit Music Wherever You Are! Whenever You Want It!

Available Right Now, on CBS Records and Cassettes!

now on SALE!

$5.99

Plastic Fantastic

a different kind of record store

220 S. 40th st.

(On the arcade level)

215-222-8088

open every day!

755 Lancaster Ave

byron, pa

215-529-5100

American Picture Framing

"Serving the Penn Community" Quality Custom Framing 5-Day Service

Satisfaction Guaranteed

4246 Market Street

382-9000

Hours: M-F 8:30 - 5:00

Sat. 9:00 - 2:00

WALSH'S TAVERN

on 4th St. between Walnut and Locust Streets. Rte. 2-3-8160

• Open 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

• Sunday Brunch 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

• Banquet and Special Occasion Room

• Reservations Requested

â€œHome of the Famous Walsh's 4246 Market Street Free & Easy Po' Boy City Sizzler 1983"

(Continued from back page)

worse and it is easier to play against weaker teams. Doyle's final comment: "The Quakers are a strong team no one can overlook.""
Ross Armstrong

(Continued from last page)

Armstrong, a former basketball standout at Morgan State and, for one year, with the Philadelphia Warriors, his brother Mike was a four-year bowl team standout at N.C. Another brother, Mike, is a senior at the University of Miami (Ohio).

Ross' athletic career won't limit him to basketball. In the spring, he competes in the long jump and high jump for the track team. Recently, he began training in high hurdles.

Armstrong, however, isn't just a physical specimen; he's an intelligent student. A junior who began in fifth grade, he has never been on a sports team, except for basketball, and has more than three games.

"I like playing the game," Armstrong said. "I'm not saying that I have the thousand hours of practice, but it's all worth it. You do all the work and you want to see results, so you just won't give up. After an ankle injury kept him out of the Delaware game,

Armstrong is healthy again — "I was an account person for awhile," he said. "But it doesn't hurt too."

"He's the key in the defense without a doubt," Chambers said. "If he were to go down for a season, we wouldn't be as good as we were last season."

Armstrong patrols secondary

ROBERTS

Of all the players that can change the flow of a football game, few are as diminutive as the receiver.

For the Penn football team, the responsibility of marking receivers happens frequently belongs to Ross Armstrong. In his second year as the Quakers' free safety, Armstrong knows his assignment.

"If you try to go for the interception, the five- to seven-yard pass doesn't work," he explained. "For the snap  He has several responsibilities, too. When the quarterback, completed just 15 of 41

The Rugby Club

The image of rugby as a bat- teric sport is another misconception. People associate never lose sight of the opportun- ity and circumstance which situation has ended in disasterous responsive and up-tempo. Several of Penn's 4-1 loss to the Lions misconception is the party which the actual beating you had

With the word rugby is associa-

buckling down and winning the mat-

The scene is a rain-drenched

... make the little things count

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

The Quakers made, there is still room for

For Volleyball, relief follows sweep on road

BILLS REID

The focus on the Penn bench spoke volumes. The Quakers were on the verge of beating Villanova, and the player-substituted Wildcats.
"That's a good sign for us," said Reid. "For the interception. It's the defensive muCh advantage ol the run-pass option. You have to get a sense of where he's going to

The Quakers look repeated adv.in the mulch. Penn took advantage of mental toughness that we've been everybody claps, yells and

We didn't hurl ourselves this lime."

Joe Saugea

A good one

blocker, frequently going to a powerful

Suisse Schuman, and Gail Silberthau for side

"I was happy with our play in the first game of the Winter

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

The Quakers made, there is still room for

The Quakers look repeated adv.in

the tradition hound game

"Rugby does have some

Stales.

At least 2-7, the Penn

"I always try to go for the interception. It's the defensive back's glory."

Ross Armstrong

Armstrong returns an interception in a game last year.