Dental School planned cuts in developing new curriculum

By LINDA GREENE

The Board of Dean's announced the size of a new dental school class is only a part of the cutbacks the administration pronounced "Pennsylvania Plan." — a program introducing a four-year denial experiment.

The Dental School will now reduce 10 percent of the usual 1,200 students, or 120, to less than half of its former level of 600.

Dental School Dean Jan Linsbord, outlining the reasons for the changes being made as part of the Pennsylvania Plan, and was planned to begin in the fall of 1984, said the reduction is part of the number of dental school applicants.

The class reduction was made "to reduce in order to have a proper (sic) "dentistry experiment," Linsbord said, adding that it was a direct result of the Pennsylvania Plan. The Pennsylvania Plan officially began in January 1984, in the form of a grant to the dental school through October 1982. It was an experimental program that involved the reorganization, on a new level of education, in which the University would try out the practice of professionals.

"We're going to use the professional model was successful," former Dental School Dean John L. Linsbord, said.

Cohen said that the program would not have been successful had it been started earlier than the old model because it involved a complete change in a school that was operating with a tight eight-year fixed budget.

"If we had initiated the plan in 1974, half the hall, but the Board of Trustees would have had to respond," Cohen said, explaining that the Board would not have considered a new plan that was a total change in the Board's idea of what education was.

"Model A," the plan last year, Cohen explained, made the work of the task of their four-year teaching program, and the plan was working relatively better between students and preparing the student for a profession by synthesizing a smaller class size with the larger class size.

The present experiment also comprised a five-year program that was an integral part of the core four-year education of the University's educational agenda.

The University also plans to eventually move to a different campus.

(Continued on page 5)

The numbers game

SAT's, grades crucial in admissions decisions

By GREG LAHMAN

The numbers Game is an evaluation of that one in three, the one selected by students, that one in three on the standardized tests. The scores for that one in three, the test that the college board says that the student gets the test that they want to take, and that the admissions officials say that the scores alone are overestimated.

Admissions Officers (Continued On Page 6)
Students, Bordogna meet on computers

Dean says Univac may be restored

By BERNIE KLEINMAN

Engineering Professor John Bordogna said a group of students last night at the University plans to reconstruct the recently shut down Univac-1000 computer processor and that the machine would be "only an expensive system." Bordogna said the time last night thai the Univac processor may be restored.

Bordogna gave a specific date when the Univac would be restored last night. He said that only "the processor will go back on line, thus it won't be restored.

The event was staged in the wake of the shutdown to investigate the extent of the damage and to measure the effect of the shutdown on the Engineering School's computing facilities. But several students said thai the plans failed to succeed in generating any serious awareness about the Univac crash.

"The experiment didn't go the way (Broadhead) envisioned," Bordogna said last night, adding that he believes the system should be restored.

"The experiment didn't go the way (Broadhead) envisioned," Bordogna said last night, adding that he believes the system should be restored.

But the students have been working for months on computer-related problems in the engineering school.

"We have been working for months on computer-related problems in the engineering school for the past year," Bordogna said last night.

Students plan moves to another campus

By ALISON FELDMAN

The University plans to move to another campus in addition to tackling her new responsibilities at the University, student trustee Carol Tracy, who has served as a 27th Ward leader of the Democratic leader of the 27th Ward, was made with her political experience and will be a powerful voice for the city's License and Inspection Board. For example, many zoning issues she faces daily.

She has been more than amply acknowledged for her leadership in the City of Philadelphia, overseeing the 27th Ward, for some time in the past year.

But many politicians say that the School District's efforts in the city schools have been met with political resistance in the past.

But the students have been working for months on computer-related problems in the engineering school for the past year.

The students have been working for months on computer-related problems in the engineering school for the past year.

Four students propose plan for Houston Hall

The proposal calls for the refurbishing of all meeting rooms in the older Student Union building. It will take place on campus.

The proposal calls for the refurbishing of all meeting rooms in the older Student Union building. It will take place on campus.

"The basic thrust of the plan is that the group 'helps elementary school children with academic skills while helping them build new itemotions and friendships,'" Smead, an Elementary Education major, said at the University last night.

"The tutoring program was started two years ago by Wharton junior Leo Killackey, and consists of helping students with seminars at the Law School, while the student volunteers work in the centers of campus activity," she said.

"The tutoring program was started two years ago by Wharton junior Leo Killackey, and consists of helping students with seminars at the Law School, while the student volunteers work in the centers of campus activity," she said.

"The tutoring program was started two years ago by Wharton junior Leo Killackey, and consists of helping students with seminars at the Law School, while the student volunteers work in the centers of campus activity," she said.

"The tutoring program was started two years ago by Wharton junior Leo Killackey, and consists of helping students with seminars at the Law School, while the student volunteers work in the centers of campus activity," she said.

But several students said the plans failed to succeed in generating any serious awareness about the Univac crash.

"The experiment didn't go the way (Broadhead) envisioned," Bordogna said last night, adding that he believes the system should be restored.

But several students said the plans failed to succeed in generating any serious awareness about the Univac crash.

But several students said the plans failed to succeed in generating any serious awareness about the Univac crash.
Soviet Union buries Yuri Andropov

MOSCOW – The Soviet Union buried Yuri Andropov at the Kremlin Wednesday morning. Andropov served as general secretary of the Communist Party for a record nine years before his death on Jan. 17. The funeral was attended by top officials and friends of Andropov, who was a管理中心 of the KGB and a key figure in Soviet foreign policy.

Andropov was buried in a simple ceremony after a service that lasted about an hour. His body was carried into the Kremlin by a group of 100 men, including Andropov's former colleagues and associates.

Andropov's death was announced on Jan. 17, and his funeral was scheduled for Jan. 23. The ceremony was held in the Moscow Cathedral of Christ the Saviour, where Andropov had worked as a bureaucrat for many years.

Andropov was born on July 25, 1916, in a small village in the Ukraine. He joined the Communist Party in 1937 and rose through the ranks to become a管理中心 of the KGB in the 1960s.

As the leader of the KGB, Andropov oversaw the agency's operations in the Soviet Union and internationally. He was known for his strict control and his ability to keep secrets.

Andropov was succeeded by Mikhail Gorbachev, who became the head of the Soviet Union in 1985. Gorbachev's policies of glasnost and perestroika led to the collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991.

Today's Campus Events

Campus Events

List of University news and events

Today's TV Coverage

ABC Channel 6

6:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m.

孔子, a popular Chinese television host, will be the guest host on Good Morning America.

Sports

The University of Pennsylvania men's basketball team will face the University of Maryland in the NCAA Tournament on Friday.

Olympics Roundup

Compiled from Associated Press dispatches

British skaters are perfect for gold

Soviet skaters are perfect for gold

Andrei Bukin, who won his second medal in four days.

On Monday, Debbie Armstrong led a 1-2 U.S. finish in the women's figure skating. Armstrong finished first, while Michelle Kwan was second. The pair will compete in the free skate on Friday.

Survey: 78 percent of students cheat

According to a new poll, 78 percent of college students admitted to cheating at least once. The survey was conducted by the National Center for Academic Studies.

Elderly offered free courses

The University of Pennsylvania has offered free courses to elderly people as part of a nationwide program. The courses are designed to improve the quality of life for senior citizens.

Wesleyan opts for divestment

The Wesleyan University Board of Trustees has voted to divestment its holdings in South Africa. The decision was made in response to the South African government's policies of apartheid.

Local dehy animal research

The Michigan State University research center on the campus of the University of Michigan.

Elm 20

Professor Jeff Cohen said that the university is working to improve its relationships with the student community.

Loyola

The Loyola University Maryland women's basketball team will face the University of Dayton in the NCAA Tournament.

Northwestern

The Northwestern University women's basketball team will face the University of Notre Dame in the NCAA Tournament.

Merrimack

The Merrimack College women's basketball team will face the University of New Hampshire in the NCAA Tournament.

Rhode Island

The Rhode Island University women's basketball team will face the University of Connecticut in the NCAA Tournament.

Survey: 78 percent of students cheat

Wesleyan University has voted to divest the institution's $12 million in investments in South Africa. The decision was made in response to the South African government's policies of apartheid.

The survey conducted by the National Center for Academic Studies found that 78 percent of college students admitted to cheating at least once. The survey was conducted among 1,000 students at 50 institutions.

The results of the survey are being used to support a new initiative by the National Center for Academic Studies to improve academic integrity on college campuses.

Elm 20

Professor Jeff Cohen said that the university is working to improve its relationships with the student community.

Loyola

The Loyola University Maryland women's basketball team will face the University of Dayton in the NCAA Tournament.

Northwestern

The Northwestern University women's basketball team will face the University of Notre Dame in the NCAA Tournament.

Merrimack

The Merrimack College women's basketball team will face the University of New Hampshire in the NCAA Tournament.

Rhode Island

The Rhode Island University women's basketball team will face the University of Connecticut in the NCAA Tournament.
Real estate near 30th St. Station to be developed

By DAVID CONWAY

City officials and developers say the possibility of major construction projects on land adjacent to the station, plans are ready for expansion of the West Rail at the Schuylkill River.

A $52,000 grant from the Urban Mass Transit Authority will fund a Philadelphia Planning Commission study of future uses and development possibilities near the station.

The city has been interested in the area for some time, said Deborah Schafle, Transportation Planner for the Planning Commission.

"It's an area that looks like it's time for the city to take another look at it," she said. "We're really just starting to think about the possibilities for the area beyond the studies and the project.""...the city’s land development firm, Rouse and Associates, which is a concern of the same name in the Philadelphia region, has been interested in that area since the '70s, she said.

The site is between the University City and Center City. Private developers are expected to come in and work to revitalize the area.

The area being considered for development is bounded by the Schuylkill River on the East, 32nd Street on the West and Market Street on the North and South.

A member of the developing firm, Rouse and Associates, who is a consultant to the firm, said he expects the company to be interested in the area in the near future.

"Deborah, Schafle, Transportation Planner for the Planning Commission, said last week that the city's land development firm, Rouse and Associates, is interested in the area.

"We're very much interested in improving the transportation and the pedestrian and cycling systems," she said.

"The area has a high density of jobs, as well as a high density of residents, she added.

"We believe the city will be interested in this area in the future," she said.

"...the city’s land development firm, Rouse and Associates, which is a concern of the same name in the Philadelphia region, has been interested in that area since the '70s, she said.

The site is between the University City and Center City. Private developers are expected to come in and work to revitalize the area.

The area being considered for development is bounded by the Schuylkill River on the East, 32nd Street on the West and Market Street on the North and South.

A member of the developing firm, Rouse and Associates, who is a consultant to the firm, said he expects the company to be interested in the area in the near future.

"Deborah, Schafle, Transportation Planner for the Planning Commission, said last week that the city's land development firm, Rouse and Associates, is interested in the area.

"We're very much interested in improving the transportation and the pedestrian and cycling systems," she said.

"The area has a high density of jobs, as well as a high density of residents, she added.

"We believe the city will be interested in this area in the future," she said.

"...the city’s land development firm, Rouse and Associates, which is a concern of the same name in the Philadelphia region, has been interested in that area since the '70s, she said.

The site is between the University City and Center City. Private developers are expected to come in and work to revitalize the area.

The area being considered for development is bounded by the Schuylkill River on the East, 32nd Street on the West and Market Street on the North and South.

A member of the developing firm, Rouse and Associates, who is a consultant to the firm, said he expects the company to be interested in the area in the near future.

"Deborah, Schafle, Transportation Planner for the Planning Commission, said last week that the city's land development firm, Rouse and Associates, is interested in the area.

"We're very much interested in improving the transportation and the pedestrian and cycling systems," she said.

"The area has a high density of jobs, as well as a high density of residents, she added.

"We believe the city will be interested in this area in the future," she said.
Some Thoughts on Work-study Fraud

To the Editor:

As I read Henry Kingman's article on Friday about the "fraud and abuse" Penn work-study program, I wasn't sure whether to react more strongly to the invasion of the article, or to the distortions in the story. As the general manager of a student organization at a demonstration over 200 work-study students, I can state without hesitation that the University’s claim that Kingman reported, is flimsy, and our student managers have, in effect, outmaneuvered the administration's misrepresentations.

We at Dining Service take great pride in the efficiency and financial management of the program — a program that has been running on the University for 20 years. In fact, we have not been subjected to any form of financial mismanagement.

As we have said before, work-study students are the backbone of the University's Dining Service. We are not interested in grades, but in getting the job done. We are working people, and we are getting the job done.

Dining Service students are dedicated to the well-being of the University community. We are proud of our hard work and our commitment to providing excellent service.

We believe that Kingman's article has been biased and inaccurate. We strongly object to the way the University has handled this issue. We are committed to working with the administration to ensure that the work-study program operates efficiently and fairly.

In conclusion, we believe that Kingman's article has been misleading and unfair. We are committed to working with the administration to ensure that the work-study program operates efficiently and fairly.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Assistant Director

Student Managers
Furniture dropped down elevator shaft

U. seeks sadness in weekend Harrington House incident

By MARK HAMMOND

A Harrington House resident is not sure what furniture was dropped down the shaft of the Horstmann Elevator on the building's upper floors.

"I was standing outside the door when I heard a loud noise," said the resident, a student in the College of Arts and Sciences.

"On Tuesday, April 13, the desk for the Horstmann Elevator number two, Ken, was able to go past the door with an open frame," said the resident.

Leftist attacks Reagan foreign programs

Ronald Reagan's foreign programs, which the president's economic recovery plan is based on "shaping" the nation's economic policies, have been the subject of recent attacks.

"Regan is correct when he says that the best policy is to discriminate against the nation's economic policies," Harrington said.

"And just because the nation's economic policies are influenced by Reagan, we must do all within our ability to shape the nation's economic policies," Harrington added.

Harrington, who spoke at the discussion, has received a great deal of attention for his views on the president's economic policies.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

"I believe that the president's economic policies are not in the best interest of the nation," Harrington said.

Urgent

Washington Lobby for Soviet Jewry

Thursday, Feb. 23, 1984

Buses Leave 4:30 pm Wed. Return 8 pm Thurs.

$15 includes transportation & lodging

For more info: call SSSJ 698-6265

Keynote Speakers: Rep. Jack Kemp
Sen. Orrin Hatch

Israeli Ambassador to US, Meir Rosnene.
Ass't. Sec. of Policy for Affairs.

Larry Egelberger
McNamara, U. professor blast government economic policies

U. applicants play a numbers game

Klein warned that "sometimes there are good reasons for students with high potential to get that grade. Sometimes we can give credit for that essay, that might not have been part of the grade. Sometimes there are good reasons for someone who saw the application, the teacher recommendations, the student's academic record, the test scores, that there might be this person who saw the student's record and they're willing, to a certain extent, to disregard that."

"We like to have the commentary of the teacher," Brown said. "We're looking for that. In our present system, we don't see that kind of criticism of the student."
Women set details of ATO rally

Women's Alliance members will be holding a rally on campus tomorrow night to mark the first anniversary of the alleged gang rape allegedly leveled against the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house. The rally, which will be held at 8 p.m. in front of the fraternity house, will动员 of trees reading and signs intended to convey support to the victim of the incident. Alliance member Vicki Bernstein said last night that although he strongly sympathizes with the victim, the incident was not just a one-night experience. "It will be a show of unity in support of the women," Bernstein said. "We also sympathize with the victim, although it may not be the same thing - her pain has not been lessened in the slightest." Alliance members will be distributing bumper stickers on Locust Street in the Penn Women's Center tomorrow and Thursday in support of the victim. "We are going to be reading the victim's words and singing songs to women which accurately express the sorrow and pain that a fifty year old victim of the closet is likely to," Bernstein said. "This is not just a show of support, but rather it is intended to be a condemnation rather than a show of support."

Alliance member Vicki Bernstein said last night that the rally is not intended to be a condemnation rather than a show of support. "It's an important thing that people are generally supportive of the victim.Screenshot."

But many seem to feel that the case is not just a one-night experience. "We must not forget that the victim has suffered throughout this entire process," Moss said. "However, we must also remember that the case is closed and not open for discussion."

The rally will be held at 8 p.m. in front of the fraternity house. It will be attended by the woman who went through this ordeal. "When people realize that there was a victim, that somebody was hurt," Schreiber, a college senior, said last week. "I think that on the whole we will manage with a moralized denial education."

"I think that on the whole we will manage with a moralized denial education." Goldman said. "I think that on the whole we will manage with a moralized denial education." Goldman said. "I think that on the whole we will manage with a moralized denial education." Goldman said. "I think that on the whole we will manage with a moralized denial education." Goldman said.

The rally will be held at 8 p.m. in front of the fraternity house. It will be attended by the woman who went through this ordeal. "When people realize that there was a victim, that somebody was hurt," Schreiber, a college senior, said last week. "I think that on the whole we will manage with a moralized denial education."

Tonight

Smokie Joe's

"Serving the Penn Community"

Quality Custom Framing

5-Day Service

Satisfaction Guaranteed

4246 Market Street

Hours: M-F 8:30 - 5:00

Sat. 9:00 - 2:00

15% Discount on Framed Posters

In Stock! With This Coupon!

American Picture Framing

"Serving the Penn Community"

Quality Custom Framing

5-Day Service

Satisfaction Guaranteed

4246 Market Street

Hours: M-F 8:30 - 5:00

Sat. 9:00 - 2:00

15% Discount on Framed Posters

In Stock! With This Coupon!

American Picture Framing

"Serving the Penn Community"

Quality Custom Framing

5-Day Service

Satisfaction Guaranteed

4246 Market Street

Hours: M-F 8:30 - 5:00

Sat. 9:00 - 2:00

15% Discount on Framed Posters

In Stock! With This Coupon!

American Picture Framing

"Serving the Penn Community"

Quality Custom Framing

5-Day Service

Satisfaction Guaranteed

4246 Market Street

Hours: M-F 8:30 - 5:00

Sat. 9:00 - 2:00

15% Discount on Framed Posters

In Stock! With This Coupon!

American Picture Framing

"Serving the Penn Community"

Quality Custom Framing

5-Day Service

Satisfaction Guaranteed

4246 Market Street

Hours: M-F 8:30 - 5:00

Sat. 9:00 - 2:00

15% Discount on Framed Posters

In Stock! With This Coupon!
Penn's College Houses and the Pappas Endowment

present

DAVID POWERS

Special Assistant to President John F. Kennedy
Curator of the John F. Kennedy Museum

Co-author of Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye

"THE KENNEDY YEARS" A CAMPUS DISCUSSION

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 2 PM

HILL COLLEGE HOUSE

UPPER EAST LOUNGE

---

PACE Faculty Club

Wed., Feb. 15

The camp discussion was well attended, and the discussion was lively and engaged. The participants expressed their views on various topics, and the moderator facilitated the conversation effectively. The event was a great opportunity for the students to engage in meaningful discussions and exchange ideas.

---

Shaw Library

As the game progressed, Princeton's offense remained unresponsive, while Penn's defense continued to pressure them. The Tigers' defense forced turnovers and turnovers, which led to easy baskets for Penn. Despite a few promising moments, the Quakers were able to maintain their lead throughout the game.

---

The Daily Pennsylvanian

The crowd suddenly came to life when Mullin, who scored on a layup and foul, got the crowd involved. The Quakers took advantage of Penn's mistakes and scored several baskets in transition. Despite being down, Penn fought back and cut the lead to one. However, Mullin made a three-pointer at the end of the first half to give the Quakers a 22-17 lead at halftime.

---

The Daily Pennsylvanian

The Quakers were able to hold off Penn's comeback attempts in the second half, as they continued to make baskets and force turnovers. The game was a battle of wills, and both teams played hard throughout. In the end, the Quakers emerged victorious, with a final score of 45-41.
Ideas for Traveling in Europe: Overseas Jobs, Musician Opportunities, Find a Roommate, and More...
Princeton's Bill Ksan (22) looks up for a shot as Isaac Carter, 6-11 was working beautifully.

The Quakers lost the tournament.

The Quakers lost by the thin margin of two games. The Quakers came up short in both.

First, the scene at Jadwin Gym was a heartbreak for the Princeton fans.

In the second half, the Princeton Tigers held two points. But in the final seconds of the game, the Tigers were unable to hold on to the lead. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and tie the game.

Second, the Quakers lost in overtime to the Princeton Tigers. The Quakers led for most of the game, but were unable to hold on to the lead. The Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and tie the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

The loss was a blow to the Quakers' Ivy League title hopes. But the team remained hopeful.

This time Penn was in position to catch Tigers

S. TONY FEHRLETT

PRINCETON, N.J. - There is a reason for the slight of last night's Penn-Princeton basketball game. The reason was on the other side of the court, in the stand, in the stands.

The Quakers lost.

The Quakers lost by two points. The Quakers were unable to hold on to the lead. The Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

First, the scene at Jadwin Gym was a heartbreak for the Princeton fans.

In the second half, the Princeton Tigers held two points. But in the final seconds of the game, the Tigers were unable to hold on to the lead. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and tie the game.

Second, the Quakers lost in overtime to the Princeton Tigers. The Quakers led for most of the game, but were unable to hold on to the lead. The Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

The loss was a blow to the Quakers' Ivy League title hopes. But the team remained hopeful.

Ivy League title hopes are slight after Penn's setback

PRINCETON, N.J. - The Princeton basketball team is not out of the tournament yet. But the team is in a difficult position.

The team has struggled to stay close in many games this season. In the previous Penn-Princeton game, center Howard Okorodudu and Bruce Lefkowitz, who was incessantly following Bill Ksan, were able to maintain their lead without the benefit of another basket. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

The team has struggled to stay close in many games this season. In the previous Penn-Princeton game, center Howard Okorodudu and Bruce Lefkowitz, who was incessantly following Bill Ksan, were able to maintain their lead without the benefit of another basket. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

The team has struggled to stay close in many games this season. In the previous Penn-Princeton game, center Howard Okorodudu and Bruce Lefkowitz, who was incessantly following Bill Ksan, were able to maintain their lead without the benefit of another basket. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

The team has struggled to stay close in many games this season. In the previous Penn-Princeton game, center Howard Okorodudu and Bruce Lefkowitz, who was incessantly following Bill Ksan, were able to maintain their lead without the benefit of another basket. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

The team has struggled to stay close in many games this season. In the previous Penn-Princeton game, center Howard Okorodudu and Bruce Lefkowitz, who was incessantly following Bill Ksan, were able to maintain their lead without the benefit of another basket. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

The team has struggled to stay close in many games this season. In the previous Penn-Princeton game, center Howard Okorodudu and Bruce Lefkowitz, who was incessantly following Bill Ksan, were able to maintain their lead without the benefit of another basket. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.

The team has struggled to stay close in many games this season. In the previous Penn-Princeton game, center Howard Okorodudu and Bruce Lefkowitz, who was incessantly following Bill Ksan, were able to maintain their lead without the benefit of another basket. The Quakers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game. In overtime, the Tigers were able to make a shot from beyond the three-point line and win the game.