Falwell packs Irvine for speech on conservatism

125 join in protest after controversial appearance

By ELLEN FLAX

Speaking to a packed crowd in Irvine, birthright preacher Jerry Falwell was jeered and applauded, Moral Majority co-founder Rev. Jerry Falwell Jr. also took his side in the dispute over the appearance of the nation's most controversial Christian Right group.

Falwell was met with a torrent of abuse and pro-Morals Majority chants. Several hundred people, riot police and the National Guard surrounded the administration building where the speech was to be held.

But Falwell was not deterred and he continued to speak.

"I'm telling you, Jerry Falwell is a pitiful little man," said one heckler, who was later escorted out

Falwell discussed his campaign to mobilize American citizens to support the values of the Christian Right.

"I'm here to tell you that Americans have a right to be offended," he said.

Falwell also spoke about the importance of the Moral Majority in the current political climate.

"We must stand together against the forces of moral decay," he said.

The speech was met with a mix of cheers and boos.

"It's unfortunate that we have to have these kinds of events," said one supporter.

"But it's good to see that people are taking a stand," said another.

The event was part of a national tour by the Moral Majority to promote their cause.

WASHINGTON - The annual Spring Supreme Court was held today with the Supreme Court justices addressing the nation on the state of our judicial system. It was a Thursday afternoon, and the justices were joined by several recent law graduates. The Supreme Court justices included Justice John Roberts and Justice Elena Kagan. The discussion centered around the importance of a fair and impartial judiciary. The justices emphasized the need for judges to remain independent and to be guided only by the law. They highlighted the role of the Supreme Court in ensuring that the Constitution is upheld and that the rule of law is respected. The justices also addressed the issue of judicial appointment and the importance of ensuring that the judiciary reflects the diversity of the American people.

Mind Reading Game

A mind reading game called "The Mind Reader" has been developed. The game allows players to guess what a person is thinking by analyzing their facial expressions and body language. The game is available for free on the website TheMindReader.com.
John Marshall, a senior at Duke University, has made this dream come true.

Although "D'Aleutien" has only been out for several days, a promising future for the record is in the offing.

"The record has already been heard on both the "House of Styles" and "The Trend Show,"" said John Marshall, "and it's been played on WXPN and at "The Kennel Club.""

He said that the final success of the record will depend on how it promotes itself.

"If they promote it right, a lot of people will show up on radio stations," he said. "But depending on the promotion, it could be a matter of years, or it might not catch on at all."

The Sundance Distribution Sales Manager for Columbia, who requested that her name not be mentioned, said: "There are a lot of records in the vaults. But if the record does catch on, we'll release it through our regular channels through metropolitans New York and New England, to coincide with the demand that the record will catch on.

"It's definitely some surprises. For "D'Aleutien," the Marshall brothers are planning future musical ventures."

"We have a lot of other songs we've written," said John Marshall, "but we're not sure yet which ones we'll use to open the package."

He added that he is also working on the video for "D'Aleutien" while at Duke.

"It should be done by the end of the week," said John Marshall, "but then we have to make sure that it's up to par with everything else that we're doing."

He said that he is not sure which week the single will be released.

"As for when the single will be released, that's all up to the label," he added. "But I think we're going to try to get it out as soon as possible."

"It's a very exciting time for us," he said. "We're really looking forward to see how people will respond to the record."

Pleading Support For Black Administrators

To the Editor:

In response to the article that appeared in the Daily Pennsylvanian on Friday, April 13, entitled “Unfairly Named Blue Ribbon,” I feel that the writer has missed the main point of the article. The writer claims that the Blue Ribbon Commission is biased and that its recommendations are not fair to the black community.

I believe that the writer is incorrect. The Blue Ribbon Commission was formed to address the issue of bias in the University of Pennsylvania. The commission was made up of people from all walks of life, including black administrators.

The commission’s recommendations were designed to eliminate bias in the University. The writer claims that the recommendations were not fair to the black community. However, the recommendations were designed to improve the University’s policies and procedures. The writer claims that the recommendations were not implemented.

I believe that the writer is incorrect. The University has implemented the recommendations of the Blue Ribbon Commission. The University has taken steps to address the issue of bias in the University.

I urge you to read the article carefully and to consider the writer’s claims. The writer’s claims are not accurate. The University is committed to addressing the issue of bias in the University. The writer’s claims are not accurate.

Yours sincerely,

In Commemoration of the Armenian Genocide

April 24, 1915

Under the bloodied shadow of Mt. Ararat, on April 24, 1915, the Armenian Genocide began.
Within three years, the Ottoman Turkish Government had massacred more than 1.5 million Armenians and had forced another million Armenians into exile.
To this day, the Turkish Government denies even the existence of the Armenian Genocide, a crime that has been recognized and condemned by every civilized nation in the world.
Armenians worldwide demand that the Turkish Government acknowledge its responsibility for the Genocide.
We, the survivors of the Genocide, solemnly commemorate the 69th anniversary of the attempted extermination of the Armenian people.

THE DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN - Tuesday, April 26, 1984

The Rev. Jerry Falwell addressing a packed Irvine auditorium crowd last night

Whichever Janice Vinik Grubbs said he felt Falwell's speech was "fatuous nonsense... a bundle of lies and money..."

"His speech was so transparent that I fail to see why the professors aren't spending his money more wisely to try to provide a more educational forum with substance," he said.

But entering new fields, such as directing, is only part of Jaffe's ambition for the unknown.

"I think you have to keep stretching," he says. "That's why I don't think I could ever do a nine to five job."

And three weeks later, the success of Godfather, Columbus, and.. and... the demand for my ideas..." says Jaffe. "I didn't realize the business, young president in the history of Paramount..."

For distinguished film making, he said, she found much of what she expected to do worthwhile.

Tigers edge lightweights by mere two inches

By MIKE GRUNDE

Last year the Penn men's lightweight crew won a heart- breaking race to Priory in a four-inch win. This year, the Quakers fell to Lake Carnegie in a close 0-500-meter race. "They drove to do it and they did," one Penn man said to his teammates.

Lake Carnegie beat Penn in the 2000-meter race, 50-0,10, in the Quaker's last race. The Quakers opened a slight lead early in the race and maintained it to the 1000-meter mark. The Quakers' coxswain, Beth Hankins, assured the team of a victory in the final stretch of the race.

Lake Carnegie came out in an effort to win the 1983-1984 season. Lake Carnegie's 1-9 margin over Penn in the 1983 season was a surprise to both teams. "We're more than satisfied," Lake Carnegie's coxswain said. "It was a good race, and we're looking forward to the next one."

Top-ranked Maryland hosts Quakers

BY GARY DREISEN

There are moments when a woman's heart breaks. Last week there were two of them in the country — with a large talon separating the two.

In February, the Quakers were voted into the National Women's Lacrosse League by the NLL for the current season. The team's presence in the NLL is a testament to the hard work and dedication of the players and coaches. But the price of entering the league is steep.

The Quakers will face Defenders and Titans in their first game of the season. Defenders are a national powerhouse, and Titans are another strong team. The Quakers will have to be at their best to have a chance against these opponents.

However, the Quakers have the talent and experience to compete at a high level. They have a strong core of returning players and a talented freshman class that will contribute to the team's success.

The season is off to a promising start, and the Quakers are looking forward to the challenges ahead. With hard work and determination, they will continue to push for success in the NLL.
