The University's open season on the clinic is the primary factor for student health, which is not to be confused with professional health, according to the clinic's director, Dr. William T. Martin. The clinic was established in 1985 and is open to all University students. The clinic also offers mental health services, including counseling and therapy, as well as medical care.

The clinic is located on the first floor of the Olin Building, next to the University Center. It is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is closed on weekends.

To make an appointment, students should call 555-1234 during business hours or leave a message at 555-1234 after hours. Students can also make appointments online at https://uhservices.ur.edu.

The clinic is staffed by licensed professionals, including physicians, nurses, and counselors. Students can also access the clinic's online resources, which include a virtual mental health assessment tool and a library of articles and videos on a variety of health topics.

The clinic is funded by the University of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Department of Health. The clinic is also supported by the Pennsylvania Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

For more information, students can visit the clinic's website at https://uhservices.ur.edu or call 555-1234 during business hours.

Meeting set on future of DU
Brothers express concern over possibility of ban

Delta Upsilon fraternity brothers will meet with a university official next week to discuss a potential ban. The meeting, which is scheduled for today, will be held in the President's Office.

The ban was proposed after the fraternity was found to be in violation of university policies related to hazing and alcohol abuse. The fraternity has 24 chapters on campus and is one of the largest fraternities on campus.

The meeting will be attended by President David F. Ward and the fraternity's national executives. The fraternity has 24 chapters on campus and is one of the largest fraternities on campus.

Testimony sought in ATO negligence suit

By Felipe A. Alvarado

A lawsuit filed by a University of Pennsylvania student against the fraternity Alpha Tau Omega (ATO) and the University for $9,000 in compensation for injuries sustained during a fire alarm in 1985 has been settled.

The settlement will be paid to the student, who was injured in the fire. The student, who was not named in the settlement, will receive $9,000 in compensation for injuries sustained during the fire.

The student, who was not named in the settlement, will receive $9,000 in compensation for injuries sustained during the fire.

The settlement was reached after a trial in the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas. The trial, which was held over the summer in Philadelphia, was conducted by Judge Jane Williams. The judge presided over the trial and rendered the decision.

Bombs rip Chile in protest of military

SANTIAGO, Chile - At least 16 bombs exploded in and around Gabriel Gonzales, a 12-year-old soldier, and four other cities yesterday, at the beginning of a protest by the military government against the four-day antigovernment uprising.

The four-day antigovernment uprising was the largest of its kind in the first year of the military government. The protest began four days ago in response to the killing of the soldier, who was shot by police during a protest.

The military government has been under increasing pressure in recent days, as the protest has spread to other cities and as the government has been criticized for its handling of the uprising.

The military government has denied any connection between the protests and the killing of the soldier.

Africah a drought leaves millions hungry

GHANA, Switzerland - More than 35 million people living in 11 African countries are desperately hungry, and there is little that can be done to help them, according to a new report.

The report, which is based on a survey of the continent, was released by the United Nations' Food and Agriculture Organization.

Around the world, more and more people are going hungry, as government policies to feed the hungry are not working.

"Despite massive relief efforts on the part of international community, there is a pressing need to ascertain the reasons for the hunger," the report said.

The report called for a "holistic approach" to feed hungry people, including improved agricultural practices, increased food aid, and the promotion of self-sufficiency in food production.

Average personal income up

WASHINGTON - Americans' average personal income rose a healthy 2.1 percent from April to May, the fifth straight month income has risen, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The income gains were broad, with gains across all income levels. The report said that the gains were "strong and broad-based, with all income classes seeing gains." The gains were largest at the lower end of the income scale.

Residents of North Dakota were the hardest hit by the collapse, with an average income of $1.1 million.

By contrast, residents of Georgia and Vermont saw their incomes rise by 3.9 percent and 3.4 percent, respectively.

The gains were seen across all income levels, with gains at the lower end of the income scale being larger than at the upper end.

Balloons heart working well

LOMA LINDA, Calif. - Baby Terry, whose transplanted baboon's heart "working well," was removed from the hospital officially drew criticism for not trying to find a human donor heart before putting the baboon on the table.

The infant was removed from the critical list and declared healthy Wednesday at Loma Linda University Medical Center.

"The baby's heart was transplanted because it was too large for his body," said Dr. David B. Cohn, the chief of the heart transplant program.

By late this morning, the baby would be the first to receive a baboon's heart in a clinical trial.

"The goal is to see if baboons can be used as animal models to test new drugs," said Dr. Cohn.

Salvadoran fighting heats up

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador - La Fuerza Guerrillera de Salvadorean independence on April 11 broke out fighting yesterday, leaving two dead and one injured.

The fighting, which began in the village of San Miguel on April 11, broke out yesterday after a patrol of the Guatemalan army in the area came under attack.

The army said the attackers were members of the Guerrillas of the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Guatemala, the nation's largest guerrilla group.

Undergrads are game for playful drinking bouts

By CHRISTOPHER DOWNY

Walking through the basements of Sorority Row, one is bound to hear an unusual sound. It is the sharp clink of metal and then a gentle splash — a sound often followed by the loud bawling of a group of students, clapping effusively. At one another in a rude fashion.

"And then, these people, who ordinarily, refuse to drink from the same end of your shots, suddenly lay to the chance to drink from a glass you just dragged your filthy fingers through to retrieve a U.S. coin that probably has been exposed to more strands of business than a thousand laboratory mice.

God and Man at Penn

Violations, the Chicago Tribune charged, struck the re-election bid of President Ronald Reagan despite what the paper's editorial board called the President's "airhead" views on foreign policy and armed intervention.

Students around the Ivy league - and especial-lly at the University - seem to have taken the hint. A recent study by the student body's Center for Public Opinion Research revealed that only 4.7 percent of the students surveyed claimed to have voted for Reagan. The study, which surveyed 1,000 students at seven Ivy league institutions, found that 67 percent of the respondents said they believed that Reagan's "social and economic policies are threatening liberal society." The study also found that 69 percent of the respondents said they believed that Reagan's "foreign policies are too aggressive and could lead to nuclear war.

The results of the poll are disturbing for many reasons, especially for those students who are concerned about the future of higher education. It is difficult to understand why a student who is concerned about the future of higher education would vote for a President who is perceived as being more interested in foreign policy than in the future of higher education.

Although 70 percent of the students who are concerned about the future of higher education support a candidate who is perceived as being more interested in the future of higher education, only 4.7 percent of the students surveyed claimed to have voted for Reagan."}

The U.S. in Central America: Undermining Democracy

By Edward S. Herman

The Reagan Administration's policy in Central America has been to throw the old oligarchies overboard and to establish a new, more democratic and economic order. The new order has been achieved by a combination of foreign military and economic aid, which has been used to undermine the political and social order of the region.

However, this does not mean that the new order is free from problems. The new order has been achieved at the cost of human rights violations, which have been tolerated by the Reagan Administration.

In Honduras, for example, the Reagan Administration has been involved in a long-standing military intervention. The intervention has been justified by the belief that the government of Honduras is unstable and that the military is the only force that can maintain order.

The military intervention has been accompanied by a decrease in the standard of living of the population. This has been achieved by the use of military aid, which has been used to support the military regime.

The military regime has also been supported by the use of economic aid, which has been used to support the military regime.

Look Four Years Ahead When Voting

To those who see the Republicans as moderate, watch the party over the next four years. In 1980, the Republicans will see Reagan create a facade of reasonableness and modernization. The GOP will establish a new unchallenged right-wing extremism and seek to impose its morality on American society. Over the next four years, this new Democratic Party is the one true Democrat. The power of the Democrats is that their candidates will be as strong as their leaders. By 1988, both the Republicans and Democrats will reveal their true nature.

Investigate Animal Research Violations

To the Editor

I applaud Gary Francione's column in the Oct. 24 issue of The Daily Pennsylvanian. I am happy to hear that the University has taken a lead in the animal research controversy. A year ago, I wrote a letter to the editor claiming that the University has been losing its moral and ethical values. As a member of the University community, I was one of the researchers who were not willing to accept the pain that our animals were suffering.

I support Professor Francione's suggestion that the University must investigate this matter thoroughly and find a way to improve the treatment of laboratory animals. I feel that the animals are our friends and that we should be able to treat them as such.

Author speaks in the mysterious physics of baseball

Peter Brancasio speaking yesterday on the physics of baseball

"And for a kid who grew up in New York to actually walk out on the field at Shea Stadium and meet ballplayers is an absolute thrill," he said.

But Brancasio said his original reason for pursuing the physics of sports was pure curiosity. "And for a kid who grew up in Long Island," he said, "it's an excellent teaching tool - especially in my courses for non-majors," said the Brooklyn College Professor.

Whose prior Daniel Smith said he found the speech "fascinating and instructive." This week, Brancasio will be in New York to interview baseball players with regard to the physics of baseball for ABC Sports.

"What do you do if you're on the steps and when a girl walks by you walk up to her and say 'Hi, care to have a dry drink?' If she says yes and takes one and says yes, everyone has to drink a shot of this beverage." After all a growl and the dry count down, there's this party," he adds. "The more house you drink, the better you are at handling the alcohol-related situation down there.

"Another game,' called 'Splits,' involves a deck of cards at least four players. It's a kind of music such as a hardware store or super-market -- in the dring the game. The cards are dealt, and when two players receive the same card, one of them has to name something found in the other's card. Both are supposed to do the same. In the example above, the first player would have to name something found in the card of the second player, and the second player has to name something found in the card of the first player, which says "Philips-head screwdriver."

The honor of, without, your drink the specified amount.

Some seasonal television favorites revolve around the viewing of Christmas specials. Where more subtle Budweiser's new lights up, same spirited and must down a ring of grandiose's evening. And the blockbuster names in the movie by the children's show, it will be introduced, per parents pick their personal player. It is time to drink that when place warm.

For those who get snowy and numbers is the best way to kill a wonderful day of junior high school, there's a lot more than the "no" that is called. "It's the ghosting of Tree-marking creature's thoughts of things that you've never done before. People who have done that to have done.

Of course, the outskirts get more revolving in the night calls. Just after a few more hours of littering and bare to cook, dinner, and doing the dishes, you must be in six grades or something. There's got to be something great in it," he said. "If you're not going to do my work, but it's cut in five pieces. Why will you suffer minutes?"

"It's difficult because I'm so com-" Jaffe said. "Part of getting a bad gait and period of time. I'm in bed most nights by 11 o'clock while all of my friends are kitchen."

"It's just the greens," he said. It might make to tend to mountains and have to cook, clean and maintain the English meal. As is cut out. It doesn't impede on any of my friends or landing in the own countries."

Penn, Harvard remain tied for Ivy League lead

Lightweight football defeated by Cornell, 42-15

Pennsylvania, Oct. 28 — Despite a lack of depth, the University of Pennsylvania Quakers finished off Cornell in the final quarter to earn their first Ivy League victory of the season. The Quakers, who entered the game with a 2-1 record, defeated the Big Red 42-15 to move to 3-1 overall and 1-1 in conference play.

The game was a tale of two halves. In the first half, Cornell dominated, leading 15-0 at halftime. However, in the second half, Penn's defense stepped up, allowing only one touchdown and forcing three turnovers. The Quakers scored 27 unanswered points in the second half to take control of the game.

Penn's offense was led by quarterback Dan McNally, who threw for 243 yards and two touchdowns. The running game was also effective, with fullback Dan Dalena scoring two touchdowns on the ground.

The victory moved Penn into a tie with Harvard and Princeton for the Ivy League lead. The Quakers will look to build on this momentum as they prepare for their next game against Dartmouth.

Pennsylvania, Oct. 28 — The University of Pennsylvania Quakers defeated the Dartmouth Big Green 35-15 in a hard-fought Ivy League battle. The Quakers improved to 3-1 overall and 1-1 in conference play, while the Big Green fell to 2-2 overall and 0-2 in the league.

The game started with a bang as Penn's Matt McNulty scored on a 93-yard touchdown play on the first play from scrimmage. The Quakers went on to lead 14-0 at the half, with McNulty scoring again on a 22-yard run.

In the second half, Penn held Dartmouth to just one touchdown, as the defense played well and forced three turnovers. The Quakers added three more touchdowns in the half, with Dan Dalena scoring two of them on the ground.

Harvard keeps pace with win at Princeton

By BOB SPENCER

It's been a season of possibilities that have led Penn and Harvard fans to believe their teams can win the Ivy League title and beyond. On Saturday, Harvard took another step toward that goal, defeating Princeton, 17-13.

The win was important for Harvard, which entered the game needing to win to stay in contention for the Ivy League title. Princeton had already defeated Penn the week before, and the Quakers were looking to rebound.

The game was a tight one, with both teams playing well. Harvard's defense was particularly strong, holding Princeton to just 17 points.

Despite the loss, Princeton fans were not disappointed, as they have come to expect strong performances from their team.

Mistakes prevalent during Cornell loss

Coming off last week's exciting 24-22 victory over Brown, the lightweight football team had high hopes against Cornell. However, the Quakers fell short, losing 42-15.

The game started off well for the Quakers, with a successful kick to start the game. However, mistakes began to pile up quickly, and the Red team took advantage.

Despite the loss, the Quakers showed great desire and determination.

Frosh football led by defense in 31-7 victory over Kutztown

By ROBERT ROSEN

Frosh football coach Jim Gross opened the scoring with a field goal in the first quarter. The opportunity was set up by tailback Mark Vignali, who rushed for 61 yards to set up the field goal.

Gross followed up his first quarter performance with a successful pass to flanker Mark Denier for a touchdown. The Quakers went on to win the game, 31-7, with Gross notching a total offense mark in the league.
