Solomon Amendment dropped

Law made final aid recipients register

Washington, D.C. (AP) — The law that would have required school districts in the District of Columbia to enroll students and charge tuition fees for students who are not residents of the District of Columbia, has been dropped.

The law was designed to encourage school districts to enroll non-resident students and charge tuition fees, but it was criticized by some civil rights groups and others who argued that it would discriminate against non-resident students.

The law's sponsors, Senators Edward Brooke (R-Mass.) and Daniel Moynihan (D-N.Y.), announced the decision on Monday, saying that they had been convinced that the law would not be constitutional.

The decision was made after a series of legal challenges, including a lawsuit filed by a group of non-resident students who argued that the law violated their rights to equal protection under the Constitution.

The law had been signed by President Richard Nixon in 1978, but it had been challenged in court and was ultimately struck down by a federal court in 1980.

The decision to drop the law was announced by Senator Brooke, who had been a key sponsor of the legislation.
Washington — The Senate, considering major proposals to trim welfare rolls in the most sweeping action the nation's welfare system has seen since the New Deal, yesterday frustrated efforts to complete business during a one-day session.

The bill, before the Senate for the third time today, could be voted down, and the Senate indicated last night that it would not consider any other legislation today.

The other legislation that would be considered was the big welfare bill, which was on the agenda when the Senate adjourned yesterday.

The Senate adjourned yesterday evening, and debate was set to resume today.

The Senate could be voted down, but it was not ruled on today. The Senate adjourned this week for a two-week break.

Results of survey on harassment to be discussed

By JEFILI ALBERQUIETO
The University Council Steering Committee will review on Wednesday, September 14, the results of the survey conducted to identify the perceptions and concerns of the University community and how the results will be presented to the University community.

The state of the survey did not declare to comment currently on the results.

Barry Cooperman, who appeared the committee which conducted the survey, said he expected the figures 'to make public widely, with a new or two.'

The intent is to make the results public to those who had the decision to do so.

President Thomas Ellis, who received the survey on Wednesday, said to comment on comments and 'what exactly it means that' Ellis said. "It doesn’t address more clearly about the issues, and that will certainly be a question for discussion.'

The survey results may be published in the Annual Intercollegiate Educators' Peer Committee to which faculty and students are affiliated.

City Council votes down two school bills on AIDS

Choosing a long distance company is a lot like choosing a roommate.

It’s better to know what they’re like before you move in.

Living together with someone for the first time can be an "educational" experience. And living with a long distance company isn’t any different. Because some companies may not give you all the services you’re used to getting from AT&T.

For instance, with some companies you have to spend a certain amount before you qualify for their special volume discounts. With some others, voice quality may vary.

But when you choose AT&T, there won’t be any surprises when you move in. You’ll get the same high-quality, trouble-free service you’re used to.

With calls that sound as close as next door. Guaranteed 60% and 40% discounts off our Day Rate—if you can’t cut costs, you can’t control expenses—immediate credit for wrong numbers.

Operator assistance and collect calling.

So when you’re asked to choose a long distance company, choose AT&T. Because whether you’re into Mozart or metal, quality is the one thing you can’t live without.

Reach out and touch someone!

Renovations completed on City Hall clock tower

The scaffolding that surrounded City Hall's clock tower will be broken down today as part of a renovation that has been ongoing for almost 6 months.

Joseph Cruz, the engineer who oversaw the clock tower, said that wind, rain and snow contributed to the deterioration of the cast iron pieces that cover the clock twice.

The idea for renovating the tower arose during the Renennial in 1976, when city planners became concerned about the deteriorating structure. The architect responsible for the historical restoration of more than 60 buildings since the fifties was consulted in 1981.

The scaffolding was erected at the beginning of 1993 and was opened to the public last fall. It's expected that the scaffolding will be dismantled in one year.

Students in The Biddle Law Library.

“We're guessing on the extent of the repairs for the scaffolding, because we don’t know how many pieces are required. Because of the cost factor, the weather conditions and the number of pieces that are either missing or damaged, it could take a while to complete the repairs,” he said.

Even though the repairs are important, he said it will be a good job and it’s not like the scaffolding can be removed easily, rather than by a crew framework.

A great estimate that renovation of the tower should cost $5 million or more, but that figure may go up if workers have to deal with more problems than anticipated.

“We're happy on the inside of the building,” said O’Malley.

Jefferson U. to sponsor female Valley women's race at the Zoo

Women's Way is kicking off its annual fundraising campaign with the third annual 10-kilometer race at the Philadelphia Zoo.

Thomas Jefferson University Hospital will sponsor the race, which is scheduled for Saturday, September 29th, at Fairmount Park'sMonument Hall.

The race is the only match race in the Philadelphia area. Women's Way Director Jean Graci says that the race will foster awareness among women.

“One always wants to do something to get the support of the public,” she said.

However, the race will be followed by "The Big To Do At the Zoo" cancer kick-off party at the Philadelphia Zoo's new venue.

Each race consists of 300 participants and that the entry fee will be raised to $5 a year, he added by about 50 percent.

Several other fundraisers will be held, including a half marathon race and a 5-kilometer race.

Women are becoming more aware of breast cancer, she said.

“We are looking for more and more active on health issues,” she said.

Letter to the Editor

The Daily Pennsylvanian

The Independent Newpaper of the University of Pennsylvania

10th Year of Publication

Friday, September 13, 1985

I

Editor,

am writing to express my concern about the current political climate. In particular, I want to discuss the issue of apartheid in South Africa.

Apartheid is a system of racial segregation and discrimination that has been practiced in South Africa for many years. It is based on the idea of separate development, which means that each racial group is supposed to develop on its own and not interact with other groups.

I believe that apartheid is wrong and that it is time for the international community to take a stand against it. There are many ways in which we can do this, such as through economic sanctions or diplomatic pressure. I urge you to consider these options and to support efforts to bring about an end to apartheid.

Sincerely,

Amy Goldin

A First-Hand Perspective on the Problems of Apartheid

By Laura ErTEL

As I sat in the back of the car on my way to class, I couldn't help but think about the situation in South Africa. I knew that apartheid was wrong and that it needed to be stopped, but I didn't know how to do it.

My mom had given me a book about apartheid, and I had read it cover to cover. It was a very good book, but it didn't really explain what apartheid was or why it was important.

I decided to find out more about apartheid and to try to understand it better. I started by talking to my friends and family. I also did some research online and in the library.

As I learned more about apartheid, I realized that it was a lot more complicated than I thought. It wasn't just about race, but also about economics, politics, and culture.

I decided to write an article about what I had learned. I wanted to share my knowledge with others and to help them understand the importance of apartheid.

I hope that this article will help others to see the situation in South Africa for what it really is. I believe that we all have a responsibility to be aware of the problems that are facing the world today.

El Salvador troops search for kidnappers

El Salvador (AP) — Army troops and police raid ed 42 guerrilla "safe houses" throughout the capital early yesterday, capturing weapons, weapons and explosives in their search for the kidnappers of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's daughter.

One of the houses was about seven miles from Duarte's residence where police found an American-made deployable anti-aircraft machine gun, British and American-made automatic rifles, grenades, explosives and documents, armed forces spokesmans said.

Police said the documents as "important" but gave no further information about their content. Officials declined to say how many people were detained.

Soldiers at the same said women and children were among those living in the guerrilla safe house in the affluent Escazu neighborhood.

"Remember, this is a generalized search," one police official said. He explained that part of the search of the 12 houses was based on intelligence obtained about the kidnappers," Arizzi said. "One of the ways to eliminate in a base is to cover them up to convert yourself into an everyday village," the official said.

The raid was coordinated by the Embassy, which ordered it as a reward given by the government at about 2 a.m. and lasted about -i-hour. Arizzi refused to comment on the result of the search.

A U.S. law enforcement official said Wednesday that security agents had completed tests on blood samples searching for Duarte's daughter and a woman kidnapped with her last week. The samples were sent to the National Institutes of Health for analysis or communication from the individuals concerned.

My philosophy.
By Barry Leonard.

The best haircut I ever had was when I was in the Army and they shaved my head. It was great being bald because I didn’t have to do anything. (People who don’t have any hair are fortunate. That’s why I’m looking forward to being bald.) I’ve found that the less hair you have the more you need it because I stumbled on a way to make people with less hair look like they have more hair.

No, I don’t try to hide bald spots.

And yes, I charge people with practically no hair as much as I charge people with hair down to their waist. I don’t discriminate. Actually, I do. Children under 12 accompanied by an adult are charged half price.

Now, about style. I’m often questioned about the “in” cuts. Actually, nothing’s “in” if you don’t like it. You should wear what makes you comfortable. If you want a trendy cut, I’ll give you a trendy cut. If you want a classic look, I’ll give you a classic look.

If you want a younger look, I’ll give you a younger look. If you want to look older, I’ll add years. It’s all up to you.

I believe in giving you what you want. It’s your hair. You’re the one who has to be happy with it. If you don’t know what you want, I’ll give you some suggestions.

The important thing to do when you get a haircut is to be involved with it. Express yourself. If you have a question, speak it out. I want to hear what’s on your mind, and I’m sure other haircutter in other shops feel the same way.

So don’t sit back and read a novel while your hair is being cut because you could look up and wish you stayed in bed.

So much for how you should look. Now on to the way you should feel.

I like you to feel you’re coming into my shop. So in addition to making you feel welcomed we serve munchies and beverages. I want you to relax and enjoy the experience.

One of the things I do is videotape every haircut for future reference.

Let’s say you come back in a month, six months or a year and say, “I want the same haircut I had the last time.” By seeing your tape I can duplicate the cut. Or, you can show me what you didn’t like about your last haircut. I don’t like hearing complaints, but as I said, I want you to express yourself.

I guess that covers it.

I believe that if you get a good haircut, you’ll walk out with a smile on your face. People will tell you how good you look, your uplifting attitude will be infectious, and the world will be a better place to live.

That’s my philosophy.

Volleyball at Temple

By Neil Weinberger

Confident and versatile, the Temple volleyball team has its sights set on the Big East title as they prepare to open their 1983 season on the ivy 85 season in the Big Eight Tour-ament at Temple.

"If I think experience will make the difference," Penn coach Joe Sagula added, "we have a good mixture of experienced and young players, but even between eight and two, I think we're going to be competitive.

"I can see us being very close to each other, we're going to be competitive," the coach said.

On the team he envisions as the Quakers prepare to open the season, Sagula said, "I think experience will make the difference. Everything has been falling into place. We have a good mixture of experienced and young players, but even between eight and two, I think we're going to be competitive.

"If I think experience will make the difference," the coach said.

Expos down Phils, 6-3, on Brooks' grand slam

BY MICHAEL NARDI

The Philadelphia Phillies were shut out last night in a cold and windy Veterans Stadium as the Montreal Expos won 6-3 victory. Brooks, however, 11th of the year, broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth inning, it came on a 2-0 slider from Dave Stieb, who also lost his 1-0 lead in the seventh inning. The Expos jumped on the Red Sox in the first inning, taking a 1-0 lead over that of the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox scored one run on a walk, two on a first-pitch strikeout. The Phillies tied the score in the fourth when Mike Schmidt walked and scored on the double to left by Greg Luzinski. It was Luzinski's 88th RBI of the year, fourth best in the National League.

Quakers play Red and Blue Game

The Philadelphia football team has a few good players who played well throughout the year, according to the coach. "I think we had a few great players who played well this season," Stavru said. "In '83, we were just as ready as they are in each game." The chances of making the playoffs this year are slim, according to the coach. "The chances are better for us this year to make the playoffs," he said. "In '83, we played better than we expected." The coach also noted that the Quakers' number-one goal in the season was to improve their defense, which they did. Unfortunately for the Quakers, they were unable to stop the scoring by the Blue Game, which led to their loss.
