UMC aims for greater visibility

Minority groups hope to publish magazine

B: ROBERT PASSAU

The University Multicultural Committee has new theme this year — "visibility."

For the first time, UMC has adopted a new structure, and a new strategy to become a leading voice for campus minority concerns.

UMC Vice Chairman Sanjay Chheda characterized the organization as an "umbrella group" that includes a wide range of diverse committees of the same groups in the organization.

The UMC hopes to publish a monthly magazine and help in coordinating major events in the minority community such as incorporated in Philadelphia yesterday. He was speaking at the preview of an exhibit, "Miracle at Philadelphia," which depicts the history of the Constitution. Approximately 1968 gay rights activists protested Burger's presence because of a June 30.

Shiites urge U.S. to negotiate for American hostages in letter

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Islamic Jihad said the United States yesterday signaled its intention to negotiate for the release of three Americans held in Lebanon by the Shiite guerrilla group.

This series of moves, which also included a letter轴承 by the Jihad, left the hostage situation in limbo and failed to dispel serious doubts that the kidnappers might kill the hostages.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said in a telephone interview yesterday that the White House had received "a letter of that sort" from the Islamic Jihad group, but he declined to comment on its contents.

"We are not in a situation to comment on that," Mr. Speakes said, referring to the contents of the letter.

White House aides confirmed that the letter, which appeared in the letterbox of the Shah, was written in English, but they would not comment on its contents.

The letter said the group had "several different demands," and that it would not be satisfied with the capture of the Shah.

Burger opens Constitution celebration

Gay activists protest his appearance

By PEG HATKAS

While Philadelphia opened the 200th anniversary celebration of the Constitution yesterday with a speech by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, more than 100 gay rights activists gathered to protest the judge's arrival.

Burger was on hand to open a Constitution exhibit called the "Miracle at Independence Hall," which kicks off a 10-months of celebrations continuing through 1987, the bicentennial of the signing of the document.

During his address, Burger said the nation should learn from the 200th anniversary. "We haven't found it yet. Our goal is to see that we have a healthy and vital Constitution," he said.

The Philadelphia Lesbian and Gay Task Force Executive Director Rita Afton announced the rally -- to protest the Burger Roast -- to protest the Supreme Court's ruling that sodomy is not protected by the Constitution.

Gay activists, in the majority opinion, Burger wrote that "in constitutional terms, sodomy is not protected," a decision this summer which stated that sodomy is not protected by the Constitution.

"We're waiting for the spark," said "Give 'em hell," she continued. "In constitutional terms, sodomy is not protected by the Constitution," she said.

"Gee, isn't this special?" she added. "Give 'em hell," she continued. "In constitutional terms, sodomy is not protected by the Constitution," she said.

Brownsworth said that the Chief Justice, finding that sodomy is not protected, did not follow sound legal reasoning. "Gee, isn't this special?" she added. "Give 'em hell," she continued. "In constitutional terms, sodomy is not protected by the Constitution," she said.

KEATS AND YATES ON YOUR SIDE

Make Fraternities Coed

"Bad form," I'm thinking as I read the headline. "Keats and Yates on Your Side." "Make Fraternities Coed." As one who has written before about the issues surrounding coeducation and fraternity life, I find this headline, and the accompanying article, to be a red herring. The real issue is not whether fraternities should be coed, but rather how we address the systemic issues of power, privilege, and exclusion within these organizations.

MUEVE TE

Cowardice and Deceit

The Trustees of the University are not too powerful, and the Penn student, from Sheldon Hackney, to the President, to the Trustees, to the Director of Admissions, are all responsible for the actions of the University. The Trustees, being elected by the alumni, are responsible for the actions of the university. The President, being elected by the Trustees, is responsible for the actions of the University. The Directors of Admissions, being elected by the Trustees, are responsible for the actions of the University. The Trustees ignored campus sentiment, paying lip-service to anything they please and get away because ii has no other choice — most other universities have loyalties to other companies and colleagues.

Further, these old boy clubs are exactly what aren't needed to give opportunities. But there are only seven prospective freshmen with all that think. They're a good place for cheap and dirty, and their calling "fag" at the image. It is just a matter of our image. It is just a matter of making sure that we see all the facts of admissions that don't allow us to allow answers. This isn't much of a reason, however, so much as a poor tip at justice. What is such a discriminatory organization doing on this campus? Penn? The University, with its students and faculty, is the bad boy of the Ivy League's foremost follower, acting only after everyone has been.

A Woman Harassed by Signs

Letter to the Editor:

I am writing to you to express my concerns about the increasing presence of BOB signs around town. I have noticed that these signs have become more prevalent, and their placement has caused me to be vigilant at all times.

I was out for a walk recently when I saw a BOB sign placed on a lamppost near my home. As I walked past it, I felt a sense of unease, knowing that these signs are often used to harass individuals.

I believe that the presence of BOB signs is a form of hate speech and a violation of civil rights. It is important that we address this issue and take steps to prevent such harassment.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]

Another Country.

I may never be inside a BOB sign again. It has been a long and difficult journey, but I have finally come to terms with my feelings about this country.

My family and friends have always been a source of comfort and support, and I am grateful for their unwavering love. However, I have come to realize that I cannot continue to live my life in this country, where my identity and dignity are constantly questioned.

I am considering moving to another country, where I can be myself and not be judged by others. It is a hard decision, but I know it is necessary.

I am grateful for the opportunities that this country has given me, but I cannot continue to live here. I am ready to leave and start a new life.

Thank you for listening.

The Validity of 'The Truth' — The Battle Rages On

Dear Editor,

I have been following the debate about the validity of 'The Truth' for quite some time now, and I must say that I find the arguments on both sides quite compelling.

On one hand, there are those who argue that 'The Truth' is a valuable tool in promoting social justice and equality. They believe that by providing a clear and accurate understanding of the world, 'The Truth' can help to counteract the misinformation and propaganda that is so prevalent in today's society.

On the other hand, there are those who argue that 'The Truth' is a form of white supremacy and a tool for maintaining power and control. They believe that the perpetuation of 'The Truth' is a way of keeping certain groups of people in power, and that it is essential to challenge and dismantle these narratives.

I believe that both sides have valid points, and that the truth about 'The Truth' is that it is a complex and multifaceted phenomenon that cannot be reduced to black or white.

Sincerely,

Williams Criticized for Attempting to Split Blacks, Jews

By Evan Gahr

This is in response to Erik Williams’ column "Raising Hell" (DP, 9/21). Williams’ attempt to divide blacks, Jews and other African-Americans is unacceptable.

Williams seems to believe that Jews and blacks are somehow diametrically opposed. He argues that Jews have a "natural affinity" for whites, while blacks are more likely to support African-American leaders.

This is a false dichotomy. Jews and blacks share a common struggle for freedom and justice. They have both experienced centuries of oppression and discrimination.

Williams’ article is a thinly veiled attempt to divide and conquer. It is a strategy that has been used by many demagogues throughout history.

I urge Williams to focus on the commonalities between Jews and blacks, rather than on their differences. Only then can we move towards a future where all people can live in peace and harmony.

Why Working in a Better Camp is Than an Internship

By Evan Gahr

There are two types of people in this world, the people who believe that college is an opportunity to learn and grow, and the people who believe that it's just a way to get a job. I believe that college is an opportunity to learn and grow, and that it is more valuable than an internship.

I have worked at several internships during my time in college, and I have to say that they have been disappointing. Many of the Interns spend their time doing tasks that could have been done by anyone, and they don't really learn anything.

On the other hand, I have worked at several camps as a counselor, and I have found that it has been much more fulfilling. I have been able to use my skills and knowledge to help kids, and I have learned a lot in the process.

I believe that working in a better camp is a much better use of one's time than an internship. It is a chance to make a real difference in the lives of others, and to learn valuable skills that will help one in the future.

Folklore course studies Quakers

By AARON MILLER

William Penn, one of the settlers of the first Quaker colony in Pennsylvania, was always encouraging the Quakers to be involved in the community. He wanted Quakers to be more than just religious leaders, but also active members of society. One day, he was caught up in a debate with a group of people about whether or not Quakers should be teaching in schools. He argued that Quakers should be teaching the children of the community, not just the Quakers, because it was a way for them to be involved in the community and help shape the future of the city.

According to course instructor Don Yoder, it is "one just a course in another of an ongoing series on new courses.

Quaker religion—how a culture developed around the religion

The Quakers, who have been living in Pennsylvania for hundreds of years, have tried to live on the belief that all people are equal because "there is God within Man." Their society, said Yoder, is designed not to include any hierarchy, so that the tenant and the jeweler are accorded equal respect.

Yoder, a professor of folklore and

U. takes cue from SCUE students to have the same advisor for four years.

"The integrated advising system is a new idea that they have now," Parergah said. "Each individual student on the campus is assigned to a development area. But our system, we believe, will be more effective."

Parergah explained that the offloading seats and resources of the four undergraduate schools make it difficult to create a comprehensive advising facility.

"The College doesn't have the budget and manpower to make these changes," and Engineering and Nursing don't see the need to assign themselves into a large network, but, that would really speed the process of the students," she said. "It's going to take a long time, but a lot of people are working on these changes."

"Everything is going much more quickly than we had ever hoped," she said. "It was a pleasant surprise."

"But they're heading in the direction of the need," she added. "We were very pleased.""

Soviet Jewry activists at yesterday's freedom rally

U. takes cue from SCUE students to have the same advisor for four years.

"The integrated advising system is a new idea that they have now," Parergah said. "Each individual student on the campus is assigned to a development area. But our system, we believe, will be more effective."

Parergah explained that the offloading seats and resources of the four undergraduate schools make it difficult to create a comprehensive advising facility.

"The College doesn't have the budget and manpower to make these changes," and Engineering and Nursing don't see the need to assign themselves into a large network, but, that would really speed the process of the students," she said. "It's going to take a long time, but a lot of people are working on these changes."

"Everything is going much more quickly than we had ever hoped," she said. "It was a pleasant surprise."

"But they're heading in the direction of the need," she added. "We were very pleased.""

Gays protest court's ruling

"Good law is not Burger's forte," Brownworth said, noting that Burger followed biblical law.

"It seems fineing is meted out with some excellence and mergence," Ciondola said. "I think what they can do is meet the goals they have set and implement what they can do to decide on what is the most effective solution to us."

Greenfield Intercultural Center Director Rene Gonzalez said yesterday that he believes the UMC has made progress to an excellent beginning this year.

"The officers started out with some excellent ideas and mergence," Ciondola said. "I think what they can do is meet the goals they have set and involve themselves in the minority organizations."

"I think the leadership is there," he added. "I certainly think the interest is there."

with an interest in
FERMAT'S LAST THEOREM
Within the next 3 months, several proofs (currently there are 6) of Fermat's Last Theorem will be delivered to the Mathematics Department so that any curious mathematician may study them. Only the first proof has been checked by one mathematician (another mathematician has checked the first 22 pages). I cannot find another mathematician to check my work (I believe I know why). If the 6 proofs are correct, they eliminate all but 23 ordered triples (A,B,K) where (1) A and B are integers from 1 to 10 (I have not yet determined the number of possible ordered triples for larger ranges of A and B) and (2) K is a prime number and is the exponent.
Mets win, clinic at least a tie

ST. LOUIS (AP) - New York gained at least a share of the National League East crown with Roy King's fifth-inning two-run home run and Rigo Hopp's heroics in the ninth. The Mets beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1, their third ining as the Mets beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1, their third straight win and 19th in 23 games. "It's the Mets, by stepping on a four-game losing streak that matched their longest of the season, scored 18 games in a row." (above the second-place Philadelphia Phillies, who won 9-0 against the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Mets and Phillies have 15 games left in the season.

Righetti hopes to pass "Quiz" for save record

NEW YORK (AP) - Dave Righetti is 1-0 in 10 saves. "I was told to work hard to win baseball history this season," Righetti said. "I know that the Mets are the best team in baseball, and I want to win as many games as possible." Righetti would know all about winning. "I pitched the Mets' only game this season, in the final game of the regular season. I allowed only four runs in 7.2 innings, against the Giants. I'll have to get past Righetti, if we're going to break the record of 45 saves held by Don Drysdale of the Kansas City Royals.

..."I've been told by the Mets that I'm not thinking about the record," Righetti said. "I've been told to keep working hard and winning games." Righetti would know all about winning. "I pitched the Mets' only game this season, in the final game of the regular season. I allowed only four runs in 7.2 innings, against the Giants. I'll have to get past Righetti, if we're going to break the record of 45 saves held by Don Drysdale of the Kansas City Royals."

Healthy Quakers prepare for opener

CINCINNATI (AP) -健康的Quakers are eager to face the challenge of their first regular season game. "We're excited about this game," said head coach Tim Abbott. Redskins put Kaufman, Bryant on injured list

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Washington Redskins have placed tight end John Bryant and linebacker Mike Mosesis on the injured list. "We'll miss them for the rest of the season," said head coach Norv Turner. "They're two key players for us." Bryant has missed the last three games due to a sprained ankle, while Mosesis has missed the last two games due to a broken wrist. The Redskins are currently 2-0-0 on the season.

Life of Riley

From Penn to pro in 3 years

By ROY SEGAL

Penn tenor Eric Riley, a 1983 Penn graduate and former captain of the men's tennis team, will play in his first game under his new team's banner for the University of Miami this season Saturday.

"I always wanted to become a pro athlete," Riley said. "I just never thought it would come as quickly as this."

A three-sport athlete at River Hill High School in Columbia, Maryland, Riley played three years of varsity tennis and two years of varsity basketball. Riley, an immediate hit with his teammates, was the first black athlete on the squad, and the first person of color ever to win a conference title.

"I was surprised the first time I heard about it," said teammate and fellow freshman Matt Novak. "I thought he was going to be too good to stay on this team."

On the court, Riley is a powerful, athletic hitter with a strong groundstroke and an effective volley. Off the court, he is a quiet, thoughtful and determined student.

"I'm definitely a goal-oriented person," Riley said. "I'm always trying to improve my game and to do my best."

Riley intends to major in business administration and plans to attend the University of Miami's business school.
