Officials say change in districts will help voters

BY WILLIAM PASIER
Philadelphia's voting districts may soon be changed in a move officials hope will make elections more representative in city government.

The redrawing of the city's voting wards has been in the making for over a year and seems to be in its final stages. The proposal, if ratified, will allow University residents to vote in different locations, depending on their place of residence.

The creation of District 27B, which would encompass the Quadrangle, would mean that students living in the dormitories or in off-campus housing would be grouped with those living in King's Circle, English House, and the Low Residence Hall.

The Quadrangle would become the city's 27th ward, which under the proposed redistricting plan would have its own voting division.

The two other proposed districts of the 27th Ward would include all off-campus residents in one district and Graduate Students in the other. Current off-campus voting district boundaries would be eliminated.

U. is set to purchase old Doc Watson's site

BY LAURIE GOLDBERG

The University will purchase the 37th and Sansom Street property site, which housed Doc Watson's bar and the adjacent apartment building for an undisclosed amount.

Real Estate Director Chris Van Velde said he knew that the University had not made definite plans for the commercial building, but a new development plan released by his department this month recommends looking at higher quality businesses in the area near 38th and Walnut Streets.

Make appeal for joint moratorium on testing

IN THE GIGHESS KUZHSTAN, Kazakhstan, U.S.S.R. - Make appeal for joint moratorium on testing

The appeal for a joint moratorium on testing was made by a group of Soviet and foreign journalists, showing a document that appeared to indicate the use of human beings as test subjects. The document included a report to be released this week showing evidence of human testing.

The report said it was intended as a "start point" for the U.S. government to understand the problem and wasn't designed to recommend those few who might be responsible. The report said that the Soviet Union was trying to develop new weapons systems and that the Soviet Union was trying to develop new weapons systems.

There was no word on the whereabouts of Hobeika, who was convicted of terrorism and is serving a life sentence, is being held in a prison in France.

The report was prepared over the past year by a joint team from the Army and Air Force. There are no plans for future use of the report. Off-campus students naive about crime

Of course many need to increase precautions

By NINA STOLZ

Many off-campus students are not fully aware of the danger of crime and even of taking the proper precautions, according to Off-Campus Living Director Alice G. Morrison.

Morrison said Friday that students' naiveté is often caused by two factors: a lack of knowledge about crime patterns, and the fact that they are not as familiar with their environment.

"Students are under the impression that they are in a safe environment," Morrison said. "They don't really know how much crime occurs on campus or in the surrounding area."

Morrison said that many students assume that because they are not in their home town, they are not at risk for crime.

"Students often think that because they are away from home, they are protected," she said. "But the reality is that crime can occur anywhere, and it is up to each individual to take steps to ensure their safety."

Morrison said that students should be aware of their surroundings and take precautions such as locking doors and windows, using peepholes, and being aware of who is entering their home.

"It's not just about being home alone," she said. "It's about being aware of your environment and taking steps to protect yourself."

Morrison also said that students should be aware of the crime rates in their area and take precautions accordingly.

"Students should know their local crime rates and take steps to protect themselves," she said. "They should be aware of the crime trends in their area and take steps to ensure their safety."

Morrison said that students should also be aware of their own personal safety and take steps to protect themselves.

"Students should always be aware of their own safety and take steps to protect themselves," she said. "They should be aware of their surroundings and take steps to ensure their safety."

Night Owls

Centers study sleep disorders, impotency

By DAVID LAKSO

Nearly one out of four people suffers from daytime sleeping difficulties. Students who are sleep deprived are often less successful in their studies.

The University of Pennsylvania, Department of Electrical Engineering, has a speaker series, "Are Finding Success In..." on the topic of "Sleeping Well With a Sleeping Pill." The event is scheduled for tomorrow, Thursday, Oct. 28, at 4 p.m. in the Ken Franklin Room, Houston Hull Hall.

The speaker will be Professor B. A. Smith, of the University of Pennsylvania, who will discuss the effects of sleep on the body and mind, as well as the methods of improving sleep quality.

The event is open to all students, staff, and faculty, and is sponsored by the Department of Electrical Engineering and the College of Arts and Sciences.

Love Story

Play depicts Eleanor Roosevelt affair

By JENNY NOTZ

lovemachinc

Eleanor Roosevelt and Hickam spent several years together before the

Eleanor was not married to Franklin at the time of her relationship with Hickam. They had a child together, named Roosevelt Jr., who was born in 1926. The relationship was kept secret for many years, and it was only publicly revealed after Eleanor's death in 1962.

The play, "Love Story," is set in the 1930s and follows the affair between Roosevelt and Hickam. It explores their love for each other, as well as the challenges they faced in keeping their relationship secret.

The play has been well received, and has been praised for its accurate depiction of the time period and the characters.

The play was directed by David Eisman, who is a noted director of historical and biographical plays.

Eisman said that he was drawn to the story because of the unique combination of love and politics that characterized the relationship between Roosevelt and Hickam.

The play has been performed at several venues, including the University of Pennsylvania's Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, where it received critical acclaim.

The play runs until October 30, and tickets can be purchased by calling 545-5226. Proceeds from the performance will benefit the development efforts of the Penguin Place planning committee.

Talbott wins Mutual Benefit at ice rink

Pupil defeats teacher Caldwell in unlikely final match

By BRADEN ROYFMAN
The Mutual Benefit Classic Squash Tournament at the Class of 1923 Lax Pavilion was another eraser in a series of matches played by the top-seeded players this season. Talbott outplayed the squash racquet he held against his coach, Clive Caldwell, in the final match. Talbott was 1-7, 15-14, 14-13, 14-12.

"Mark played well," said Talbott, who, at 35, is the oldest player in the tournament. "I am trying to get Mark to be more aggressive," said Caldwell, the coach, "and I think he is doing more aggression."

"I feel I played well," said Talbott. "I feel I played very well."

"Talbott will not have much time to improve between this match, the final of the 1986 season. The final time Talbott played and Caldwell met head-to-head, in January, Talbott was the only one who could build early leads."

"I am trying to get Mark to be more aggressive," said Caldwell, the coach. "I want him to play more aggressive matches."

As the first gut reaction, one could see the obvious: the buck stops here, the south stands of Franklin Field.

The Penn football team had just defeated Bucknell, 11-7, on Monday afternoon and the buck stops here. The victory put the Quakers at 3-0 overall and 1-0 in the Ivy League.

The victory was the result of a dominating defensive effort, a mistake-filled offense and an efficient special teams unit.

Penn wore down Bucknell and threw a pass that hit off the chest.
