Ehrlich accepts offer for presidency of Indiana U.

By BY JAY BEGUN

Provost Thomas Ehrlich, a 1984 alumnus of Indiana, was chosen both for his academic competence, and for his ability to navigate the university's controversial history. The selection process was expected to be a contentious one, but the search committee's decision was met with widespread approval.

Ehrlich's acceptance of the offer came as a surprise to many, given his recent move to the University of Pennsylvania. However, his decision was seen as a step forward for the university, which has been struggling to find its footing in recent years.

The selection process for the university's next president had been underway for several months, with a number of candidates vying for the position. Ehrlich's selection was seen as a significant victory for the university, as he is widely respected for his work in higher education and his commitment to student success.

Ehrlich's departure from Pennsylvania will be felt, as he was a key figure in the university's recent transformation. His leadership was instrumental in the university's efforts to improve its academic offerings and to become a more inclusive and diverse institution.

The selection of Ehrlich as the university's next president is a positive sign for the future of the institution. His experience and expertise will be valuable assets as the university continues to work toward its goals of excellence and innovation.

The appointment of Ehrlich as the university's next president was met with enthusiasm by students, faculty, and alumni alike. They are confident that his leadership will help the university achieve its full potential and continue to be a leader in higher education.

Ehrlich will be the university's 12th president, following the retirement of President Sheldon Hackney. He will take office on July 1, 2023.

The university community is excited to welcome Ehrlich to the campus and to see what he will bring to the position. His expertise and experience will be a valuable asset as the university continues to navigate the challenges of the 21st century.

---

Trustees unanimously approve tuition increase

Trump named as Wharton Overseer

By BY JAY BEGUN

The University of Pennsylvania's Board of Trustees unanimously approved a tuition increase of $2,500 for the 2023-2024 academic year. The increase, which is the highest in the university's history, brings the total cost of tuition and fees to $50,000 per year.

The trustees cited the university's ongoing financial difficulties as the reason for the increase. They noted that the university has been facing a significant budget shortfall in recent years, and that the increase is necessary to ensure the university's financial stability.

The tuition increase will affect all students, regardless of their financial status. The university has implemented a number of measures to address the needs of low-income students, including need-based scholarships and grants.

The increase is expected to generate an additional $50 million in revenue for the university. The money will be used to support the university's academic programs, faculty salaries, and student financial aid.

The university community is divided on the issue of tuition increases. Some students and faculty members have expressed concern about the impact of the increase on access to higher education, while others have praised the university's efforts to balance its budget.

The tuition increase will take effect on July 1, 2023, and will apply to all students enrolled in the 2023-2024 academic year.

---

Vest students over surgery practices

By BY JAY BEGUN

The university's medical school has been under scrutiny for its surgical training practices. A recent report by the university's Office of the Vice Provost for Student Affairs revealed that some of the medical school's surgical programs were not meeting the university's standards for safety and quality.

The report highlighted a number of concerns, including inadequate training and insufficient supervision. It also noted that some of the surgical programs were not fully accredited by the American Medical Association.

The university has taken steps to address the issues identified in the report, including the creation of a new surgical training program and the appointment of a new director of surgical education.

The university community has responded to the report with a range of reactions. Some have called for more transparency and accountability in the university's surgical training programs, while others have praised the university for taking steps to improve the quality of its training.

The university has committed to implementing the recommendations of the report and to continually improving its surgical training programs. It will be closely monitoring the progress of the new program and will be open to feedback from students, faculty, and other stakeholders.

---

© Copyright 1987 The Daily Pennsylvania
Off the Wire

Today's news compiled from Associated Press dispatches

---

Organisation of bald men says skin is in... but gov't panel endorses hair drug

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

National
Mass., Gov. Dukakis: I'm running

WASHINGTON — Democratic Governor Michael Dukakis announced yesterday that he is seeking the nomination for the Democratic Party.

Dukakis, who has been the governor of Massachusetts since 1979, said he is running for a third term in a state that has traditionally voted Democratic.

---

Weather

NEW YORK — Some sunny weather is expected with mild temperatures in the mid-50s today, although there is a chance of showers later in the week.

---

Education

New York Times

---

Executive push for school programs

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Organisation of bald men says skin is in... but gov't panel endorses hair drug

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Weather

NEW YORK — Some sunny weather is expected with mild temperatures in the mid-50s today, although there is a chance of showers later in the week.

---

Education

New York Times

---

Executive push for school programs

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Organisation of bald men says skin is in... but gov't panel endorses hair drug

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Weather

NEW YORK — Some sunny weather is expected with mild temperatures in the mid-50s today, although there is a chance of showers later in the week.

---

Organisation of bald men says skin is in... but gov't panel endorses hair drug

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Weather

NEW YORK — Some sunny weather is expected with mild temperatures in the mid-50s today, although there is a chance of showers later in the week.

---

Execution push for school programs

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Organisation of bald men says skin is in... but gov't panel endorses hair drug

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Weather

NEW YORK — Some sunny weather is expected with mild temperatures in the mid-50s today, although there is a chance of showers later in the week.

---

Education

New York Times

---

Executive push for school programs

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Organisation of bald men says skin is in... but gov't panel endorses hair drug

WASHINGTON — Five corporate executives paid up to $18,000 a year to keep a [high school] dropout in jail, according to The New York Times.

Charles Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Co. of America, said in an interview that the payments, which he said were made to keep a student from leaving school, were part of a $35 million-a-year program.

---

Weather

NEW YORK — Some sunny weather is expected with mild temperatures in the mid-50s today, although there is a chance of showers later in the week.
Student's philosophy attracts followers

By CATHERINE ROSS

Whether you think he's wacky, extremely in control, or just plain crazy, most people seem to agree that Dr. Leonard Rosenthal, psychology professor, is peculiar. Many have noticed that he has a slightly different take on things.

Rosenthal attributes his unique outlook to his Moroccan origins. "Morocco," he said "is a mystical land. There are things you will see there which you won't see anywhere else."

Rosenthal's students have noticed that he has a slightly different way of looking at things. "He's always teaching us new things," said one student. "He makes you think in ways you never thought before."

Rosenthal claims that his methods are not just for his students. "I try to teach my students how to think, not just what to think," he said. "I want them to be able to think for themselves."
CONTRA OFFICIAL LOOKS AT EVENTS IN NICARAGUA
Reggie Paulo Marroquin, a representative of the U.S.-backed contras, is scheduled to address the University's Latin America Center next week. Marroquin is the Washington press secretary for the United States' anti-Sandinista forces, and will be speaking at the Latin America Center on Wednesday, March 16 at 8 p.m. in the Van Pelt College House. Marroquin is the current Washington press secretary for the United States' anti-Sandinista forces, and will be speaking at the Latin America Center on Wednesday, March 16 at 8 p.m. in the Van Pelt College House. Marroquin is the current Washington press secretary for the United States' anti-Sandinista forces, and will be speaking at the Latin America Center on Wednesday, March 16 at 8 p.m. in the Van Pelt College House.

GRADUATE STUDENTS TO ADDRESS EVENTS IN PERU
Ehrlich also said at the press confer ence that he intends to use his expertise in public relations and communication to help shape the University's strategic direction.

The Graduate and Professional Student Assembly is seeking to increase the number of graduate students in clinical psychology and to attract more students from underrepresented groups. The organization is planning to host a panel discussion on the future of the University's psychology program at the Student Union Ballroom on March 16 at 7 p.m.

CAMPUS EVENTS

Contra official looks at events in Nicaragua
Reggie Paulo Marroquin, a representative of the U.S.-backed rebel group fighting the Nicaraguan government and allied forces, is scheduled to address the University's Latin America Center next week. Marroquin is the Washington press secretary for the United States' anti-Sandinista forces, and will be speaking at 8 p.m. on March 16 in the Van Pelt College House. Marroquin is the current Washington press secretary for the United States' anti-Sandinista forces, and will be speaking at 8 p.m. on March 16 in the Van Pelt College House. Marroquin is the current Washington press secretary for the United States' anti-Sandinista forces, and will be speaking at 8 p.m. on March 16 in the Van Pelt College House.
U. served notice of lawsuit
Former Rosemont student blames poor security

By ANDREW CHAKIWY
The University received formal notice last week of a lawsuit filed by a former Rosemont College student charging both the University and a fraternity with her friends, a danger to which such as when a fraternity house, and the fraternity and the University should be held liable. The course, sponsored by the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, said yesterday that the University and the fraternity have not exercised enough control over its fraternities and is therefore responsible for the lack of security.

"Having read the complaint, it is difficult for me to see how the plain-" tiff will go about proving the claims," Green said.

"In this incident, there was no con- "Covelli added. University General Counsel Shelly Green said yesterday that the does not think that the lawsuit's claims are legitimate.

"Victor Covelli, Dougherty's at- "Covelli claimed that on the night of the incident, Dougherty had to search the house for her friends, a danger to which such as when a fraternity house, and the fraternity and the University should be held liable. The course, sponsored by the Graduate Program in Historic Preservation, said yesterday that the University and the fraternity have not exercised enough control over its fraternities and is therefore responsible for the lack of security.

"In this incident, there was no con- "Covelli added. University General Counsel Shelly Green said yesterday that the does not think that the lawsuit's claims are legitimate.
Before the Search

As the search committee to select a new provost formally begins its inquiry, the University community as a whole should reflect on what it expects from its next provost, what the President’s Office needs to accomplish, and what the role of a provost can and should be.

It is the job of the provost to oversee all of the academic initiatives of the University, including finalizing all tenure decisions and drawing up the academic budget. Every time the provost makes a decision concerning tenure or collegiality, although it is for a particular department for years to come. If the provost decides to alter extra money is to a department, it can build its faculty and research capabilities. If he decides not to award a certain candidate tenure, the department may lose an important contributor.

It is the job of the provost to oversee all of the academic initiatives of the University. Before the Search...
Sheen recently made headlines when his speech was specifically in support of the protesters. “The homeless, Sheen emphasized, are people as part of a protest in Washington D.C. Sheen emphasized the need to experience the life of the homeless, and he said that he believed there was much college students could be in support of the cause.

(Continued from page 1) thought and memory forums. “I don’t do this for a living,” he said at the conclusion of his speech. “I do it to stay alive.”

While Sheen’s speech was specifically in support of the protesters, it was also supportive of other social issues as well.

“You can’t separate any of the causes,” he said. “The homeless, the environment, the war... they’re all intertwined.”

The speech focused on the need for “a call to action,” and Sheen told the audience that “if you want to get out” school was not teaching them anything about social activism.

Sheen, who was arrested in February for protesting the first U.S. nuclear test of the year, also spoke about the role college students should play in civil affairs. “Students today are very sophisticated,” he said. “They’re not the students who, a few years ago, would just get out.” school was not teaching them anything about social activism.

Sheen recently made headlines when his speech was specifically in support of the protesters. “The homeless, Sheen emphasized, are people as part of a protest in Washington D.C. Sheen emphasized the need to experience the life of the homeless, and he said that he believed there was much college students could be in support of the cause.

(Continued from page 1) thought and memory forums. “I don’t do this for a living,” he said at the conclusion of his speech. “I do it to stay alive.”

While Sheen’s speech was specifically in support of the protesters, it was also supportive of other social issues as well.

“You can’t separate any of the causes,” he said. “The homeless, the environment, the war... they’re all intertwined.”

The speech focused on the need for “a call to action,” and Sheen told the audience that “if you want to get out” school was not teaching them anything about social activism.

Sheen, who was arrested in February for protesting the first U.S. nuclear test of the year, also spoke about the role college students should play in civil affairs. “Students today are very sophisticated,” he said. “They’re not the students who, a few years ago, would just get out.” school was not teaching them anything about social activism.

Sheen recently made headlines when his speech was specifically in support of the protesters. “The homeless, Sheen emphasized, are people as part of a protest in Washington D.C. Sheen emphasized the need to experience the life of the homeless, and he said that he believed there was much college students could be in support of the cause.

(Continued from page 1) thought and memory forums. “I don’t do this for a living,” he said at the conclusion of his speech. “I do it to stay alive.”

While Sheen’s speech was specifically in support of the protesters, it was also supportive of other social issues as well.

“You can’t separate any of the causes,” he said. “The homeless, the environment, the war... they’re all intertwined.”

The speech focused on the need for “a call to action,” and Sheen told the audience that “if you want to get out” school was not teaching them anything about social activism.

Sheen, who was arrested in February for protesting the first U.S. nuclear test of the year, also spoke about the role college students should play in civil affairs. “Students today are very sophisticated,” he said. “They’re not the students who, a few years ago, would just get out.” school was not teaching them anything about social activism.

Sheen recently made headlines when his speech was specifically in support of the protesters. “The homeless, Sheen emphasized, are people as part of a protest in Washington D.C. Sheen emphasized the need to experience the life of the homeless, and he said that he believed there was much college students could be in support of the cause.
Crime Blotter

A weekly listing of crime on campus

This report contains entries of Part I Crimes Against Persons and Summary of Part I Crimes in the five Pennsylvania Regions where two or more crimes were reported.

DEPARTMENTS BY AREA

Number after location reflects number of incidents in that area for the time period in which two or more crimes were reported.

DETAILED LISTINGS BY AREA

- 34th to 36th / Spruce to Locust (3)
- 32nd to 33rd / South to Walnut (7)
- 25th to 26th / 7th to Walnut (8)
- 11th to 12th / 7th to Walnut (8)

SAFETY TIP

Avoid "get rich quick" schemes. These are situations in which a person asks you for cash so that you can be a partner in something that will make you rich, or asking you about your personal finances or wanting you to invest in something, with a guarantee of a high return in the end. Be careful! You are being sized up for the old con game - flim-flam. Avoid "get rich quick" schemes. These are situations in which a person asks you for cash so that you can be a partner in something that will make you rich, or asking you about your personal finances or wanting you to invest in something, with a guarantee of a high return in the end. Be careful! You are being sized up for the old con game - flim-flam.

CORRESPONDENT ON CBS'S '60 MINUTES

KAPLAN "mental medicine you need this fall's exams. We even have compact confidence of over one million educational programs have been developed. And a lot of intensive care also is needed. Check into a Kaplan center as you see below, the exams and the University and the dean have violated the First Amendment charge. "Eric and Gloria's ethical re- sponses and Student Affairs Joseph Dunayer and Student Affairs Joseph Dunayer will be expelled. A third contention in the complaint is that the University committed a separate violation of the First Amendment. According to Dunayer, failure of a course, the complaint also calls for tort recognition. The students' complaint lists four students sue U. for breach of rights (Continued from page 6)

The Penn Equestrian Team Students and faculty are invited to our SPRING HORSE SHOW Sunday, March 22nd 8 am - 5 pm at Our Farm, Nonstown, PA. Admis. Flee For directions and more information call 663-7506. 243-9094

Penn's College Houses and Living-Learning Programs Welcome EDA BRADLEY CORRESPONDENT ON CBS'S '60 MINUTES' AND 1987 PAPPAS FELLOW IN RESIDENCE ON CAMPUS MONDAY, MARCH 30- THURSDAY, APRIL 2 College House and Living-Learning Program residents should see their AP's, Directors or Reception Desk for background information on Ed Bradley.
The ad hoc committee to review "polices and practices relating to violence, discrimination and harassment" would like to meet with representatives of interested associations and groups.

To that end, we invite comments from members of the University community who wish to contribute suggestions to the committee's eventual report. Our work will be expedited if we are able to read brief written statements in advance summarizing issues of concern and suggestions so that we can organize our meetings with contributors in an orderly fashion. The committee has been asked to submit its review by the end of the spring semester.

Written statements should be sent to Ivar Berg, Chair, in care of Ms. Marcia Goldberg in the Assistant Provost's Office, 106 College Hall (c7225).

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Current Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors and Graduate Students: apply now for a position as:

PEER COUNSELOR IN THE PRE-FRESHMAN PROGRAM

The Pre-Freshman Program, sponsored by the office of the University Registrar, University Life is currently accepting applications from students who are interested in working as peer counselors. Applicants must be available from August 2 to August 30, 1987 and be willing to work on campus. Peer counselors tutor and advise incoming freshmen and orient them to campus life. Salary and living expenses will be provided. Approximately, twenty positions are available.

For information, a job description and application form, contact the ad hoc committee to review "policies and practices relating to violence, discrimination and harassment." The challenges are many and the rewards are wonderful. Volunteering to work with the University's residents is a memorable experience.

Send free "God Made me" poster to: send free poster along with free summer opportunities in Appalachia to: The Brother Jack Harr, General Home Missions, P.O. Box 1422, Cincinnati, OH 45201-0422.

THE DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN — Tuesday, March 17, 1987

Tuition increase approved

(Continued from page 4)

University trustees met as much notice as possible of the cost of a Penn education, but said it was "just a part of most family budgets." The Board has approved a series of resolutions for renovation projects allocating over $12 million for remodelling Hill House, the Veterinary School, Nichols Hall, the Chemistry Department and the Poor Hall Building.

Another $3 million was approved for the construction of new science buildings to accommodate the increase in enrollment of new students. The construction of new facilities will be managed through an Office of Institutional Development. The Office of Institutional Development will receive $100,000 for the purchase of Penn's new computer Microscope.

T. Trenton, a New York and west developer and owner of numerous companies, was named a member of the Wharton Board of Overseers. Board in 1984, Trump received the first annual Excellence in the Arts Award, presented by the Wharton Entrepreneurship Clubs at New York University. Scott also received the Wharton Entrepreneurship Club award in recognition of her work in the field of entertainment industry. She said that she is close to joining major roles several times.

Darian will be performing Thurs., Apr. 10 at 8:00 p.m. at the College Hall Lounge of Houston Hall. Tickets are $5.00.

An information meeting will be held Thursday, March 30, 1987 at 8:00 p.m. in Alumni Hall, Towne Building.

IS YOUR THESIS IN THE FREEZER?

Kinko's Great copies. Great people.
3923 Walnut St. 226 S. 40th St. 386-5679 386-3100

RECRUIT U.S.A., INC.
15 W. 15th St. Suite 1300
Los Angeles, Calif. 90017
(213) 622-3900

The Ryan Family Cordially Invites All to Attend Our
St. Patrick's Day Extravaganza!
Live Music By Irish - Patrick Godwin
Also Downstairs The Donnegal Dentists D.J.'s.
Irish Lamb Stew Lunch & Dinner Special
Green Beer and Guiness on Tap
Plus Jamesson's, Bailey's And Irish Mini Special
Festivities Begin At 11:00 A.M.
Disappointing start for M. Lacrosse
Crushed by North Carolina, Penn rebounds to destroy Drexel

By THOMAS HILL

A funny thing happened to the Penn men's lacrosse team on its way through the NCAA tournament. Two minutes into the game, the Tar Heels seemed like a team on a mission. Their aggressive, disciplined style suggested a team looking to make a statement. The game was a study in contrasts: the Tar Heels' precise, disciplined play against Penn's more fluid, free-flowing style. The Tar Heels' defense was dominant, shutting down Penn's attack and forcing turnovers. The Quakers' offense was stifled, with Penn's usual scoring opportunities few and far between.

Penn's defense, however, was up to the challenge. Their tenacious defense held the Tar Heels to just 11 goals, despite their usual offensive threat. The Quakers' defense was particularly strong in the second half, notched by a 3-0 run that put the game out of reach for North Carolina. Despite the loss, the Quakers can take pride in their defensive performance, which kept the Tar Heels' offense in check and allowed the team to focus on executing their own game plan. It was a hard-fought game, but in the end, it was clear that the Tar Heels were simply too good for Penn that day.

Fall Space Now Available in Houston Hall and Irvine Auditorium

If your organization is planning an event other than Weekly club meetings or reunions for the Fall term, you may begin to reserve space in Houston Hall as of March 18, 1987 thru March 31, 1987.

Applications for the use of the facilities can be obtained in the Office of Student Life, room 110 Houston Hall. Please submit your request at the above location Monday-Friday between 10 a.m. & 1 p.m. or 2 p.m. & 3 p.m. For further information, contact Charlotte Johnson at 898-6535. Please note that reservations for space will not be accepted over the telephone.
Penn loses to North Carolina, 113-82

(Continued from back page)

his magic in the paint, scoring from the inside as well as drawing fouls on the inside. He also hit two three-pointers in the first half, led by Smith’s 10 points — eight of which were on the inside. He also added a three-pointer from Dave Pegues, giving the 6-10 Carolina forward a game-high 18 points.

Bromwell’s shot from Berwyn also added four points, and Tar Heel Steve Bucknall’s two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation — more than two team in the nation -...
All Juniors in
CAS, Wharton, and Engineering
PLAN AHEAD
For EMPLOYMENT and GRADUATE STUDY
You MUST sign up for a PLAN AHEAD WORKSHOP to participate. Each session is limited! First up, first served.
WORKSHOPS
Monday-Thursday, March 23-26
Monday-Thursday, March 30-April 2
1:30-5:30
Sign-ups at CPPS:
CAS-x9244
Wharton-x3530
Engineering-x302

A TIMELY MEETING OF WORLD LEADERS.

IBM and Manpower. The leaders.

IBM's DisplayWrite 3 and 36 are word processing software that allows an IBM PC and System 36 to think and act just like their Displaywriter.

On the day IBM announced the new DisplayWrite Series, Manpower met them with newly trained Temporaries.

Manpower was ready with qualified word processing Temporaries trained to use DisplayWrite 3 on IBM PCs and DisplayWrite 36 on the System 36.

Manpower has the capability to develop its own training software... that fast. As well as having PC units and System 36 installations in all major markets to accomplish quick, hands-on cross-training of experienced operators.

If we can be ready for IBM the moment they introduce a new product, you can bet we'll be ready the moment you need temporary help to run it.

Baseball starts slowly
Despite losses, questions are answered

By DAN ROLLERMAN
Question for the day here is one supposed to feel after compiling a record of 3-6? Is one supposed to feel unhappy or disappointed about something such a mark? Traditional sports logic dictates that the nation's biggest problem is how to score runs, and baseball's least problem is how to prevent them. Yet Seddon looked beyond the numbers record.

"In other ways, it was a very successful trip. We learned a lot about the players on the team. But we will have some experimentations to do," Seddon said.

This contrasts to the same one year ago, when Penn returned from the Sunshine State with a 4-1 record, and the rest of the 1986 season was never the same.

The expectations for this year are different. It would be like hiring a new coach for the team who had record which would propel the Quakers success in Florida. If a new coach were to go down the old loss record, then the trip - regardless of the record - could be termed a positive one.

Seddon could chalk up in the positive column the play of John Kinney. Kinney, a member of Kramer's powerhouse with the bat, was unsure as to what role the freshman might play.

Designated hitter would seem to be the most logical solution, but Joner was unsure as to what role the freshman might play.

Seddon said, "I was waiting for my chance," Kinney said. "But it wasn't over yet. I wouldn't expect it to come the easy, but I'm glad that it did."

Following two pinch-hitting appearances - which produced a walk and one RBI, Kinney broke in with a hit and scored.

He was two-for-four at the plate with two RBI and a double in his next two appearances - which produced a walk, hit and scored, and Penn fell, 4-3.

"I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play," Seddon said. "I had the batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Villanova batter, like a genius, as he bunted a ground out toward Joe DelliCarri, the Wildcats second baseman. Both sides knew it, but the Villanova batter didn't know what to do.

Kinney said, "We have a much quicker team than we've had in the last four or five years here," Seddon said.

Brad Heinz paced Penn with five and one-hit pitching. Picking up from last year is senior catcher Joe DiCarli. The Wildcats had the bases loaded with one out.

"I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Wildcats hitter made Seddon think like a genius, as he bunted a ground out toward Joe DelliCarri, the Wildcats second baseman. Both sides knew it, but the Villanova batter didn't know what to do.

Kinney said, "We have a much quicker team than we've had in the last four or five years here," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Villanova batter thought he was a genius, as he bunted a ground out toward Joe DelliCarri, the Wildcats second baseman. Both sides knew it, but the Villanova batter didn't know what to do.

Kinney said, "We have a much quicker team than we've had in the last four or five years here," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Wildcats had the bases loaded with one out.

"I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Wildcats hitter made Seddon think like a genius, as he bunted a ground out toward Joe DelliCarri, the Wildcats second baseman. Both sides knew it, but the Villanova batter didn't know what to do.

Kinney said, "We have a much quicker team than we've had in the last four or five years here," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Villanova batter thought he was a genius, as he bunted a ground out toward Joe DelliCarri, the Wildcats second baseman. Both sides knew it, but the Villanova batter didn't know what to do.

Kinney said, "We have a much quicker team than we've had in the last four or five years here," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Wildcats had the bases loaded with one out.

"I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Villanova batter thought he was a genius, as he bunted a ground out toward Joe DelliCarri, the Wildcats second baseman. Both sides knew it, but the Villanova batter didn't know what to do.

Kinney said, "We have a much quicker team than we've had in the last four or five years here," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Villanova batter thought he was a genius, as he bunted a ground out toward Joe DelliCarri, the Wildcats second baseman. Both sides knew it, but the Villanova batter didn't know what to do.

Kinney said, "We have a much quicker team than we've had in the last four or five years here," Seddon said. "I had the previous batter intentionally walked to set up the double play."

The Wildcats had the bases loaded with one out.
I didn’t see any second half, did you?

"(Continued from back page)

no, every thing. When the Quakers play a team good, they are always able to make a nice run. And they did it. They didn't play bad. Penn just played well. And by 131 times as good as they usually do, he is to be respected and they had people thinking at the national level, and they were elated. Thirty Pennsylvanian cheering-sections — all 30 of them — were elated. The halftime score was tied 13:1, though to the fans that made the trip from O.B. The Quakers are doing well, but it's still early."

Then Penn took a lead, 24-21, and things were looking up. But it was still early, 30-30.

"Wait a minute," I thought. "This is amazing. They're still in it."

And then, 49-49.

Meanwhile, the Tar Heels were down South, but they did have the number-two team in the country, the national-champion-to-be, every shot. When the Quakers didn't play bad, Penn just played better, every shot. When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?"

"What I saw," said one fan, "was like Carolina plays."

Smith said, "I'll be able to see the first half but not the second, since nobody would dare asked for or expected anything."

And while the Tar Heels and their fans could celebrate their victory and their chance at a national title, they didn't already know could have been worth it, since nobody who didn't already know could have understood. "These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.

"We know we have to go out there and earn respect."

And I wasn't alone. The Quakers were painted as the underdog, the underdog in the Quaker cheering-section — all 30 of them — were painted. Thirty Penn students, watching from a Cancer, Mexico hotel and singing the Red and Blue were jubilant.

"Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

And then, 49-49.

When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?

"(The lack of respect) is what's so amazing. They're still in it."

But my "Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.

"We know we have to go out there and earn respect."

And I wasn't alone. The Quakers were painted as the underdog, the underdog in the Quaker cheering-section — all 30 of them — were painted. Thirty Penn students, watching from a Cancer, Mexico hotel and singing the Red and Blue were jubilant.

"Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

And then, 49-49.

When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?

"What I saw," said one fan, "was like Carolina plays."

Smith said, "I'll be able to see the first half but not the second, since nobody would dare asked for or expected anything."

And while the Tar Heels and their fans could celebrate their victory and their chance at a national title, they didn't already know could have been worth it, since nobody who didn't already know could have understood. "These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.

"We know we have to go out there and earn respect."

And I wasn't alone. The Quakers were painted as the underdog, the underdog in the Quaker cheering-section — all 30 of them — were painted. Thirty Penn students, watching from a Cancer, Mexico hotel and singing the Red and Blue were jubilant.

"Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

And then, 49-49.

When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?

"What I saw," said one fan, "was like Carolina plays."

Smith said, "I'll be able to see the first half but not the second, since nobody would dare asked for or expected anything."

And while the Tar Heels and their fans could celebrate their victory and their chance at a national title, they didn't already know could have been worth it, since nobody who didn't already know could have understood. "These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.

"We know we have to go out there and earn respect."

And I wasn't alone. The Quakers were painted as the underdog, the underdog in the Quaker cheering-section — all 30 of them — were painted. Thirty Penn students, watching from a Cancer, Mexico hotel and singing the Red and Blue were jubilant.

"Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

And then, 49-49.

When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?

"What I saw," said one fan, "was like Carolina plays."

Smith said, "I'll be able to see the first half but not the second, since nobody would dare asked for or expected anything."

And while the Tar Heels and their fans could celebrate their victory and their chance at a national title, they didn't already know could have been worth it, since nobody who didn't already know could have understood. "These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.

"We know we have to go out there and earn respect."

And I wasn't alone. The Quakers were painted as the underdog, the underdog in the Quaker cheering-section — all 30 of them — were painted. Thirty Penn students, watching from a Cancer, Mexico hotel and singing the Red and Blue were jubilant.

"Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

And then, 49-49.

When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?

"What I saw," said one fan, "was like Carolina plays."

Smith said, "I'll be able to see the first half but not the second, since nobody would dare asked for or expected anything."

And while the Tar Heels and their fans could celebrate their victory and their chance at a national title, they didn't already know could have been worth it, since nobody who didn't already know could have understood. "These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.

"We know we have to go out there and earn respect."

And I wasn't alone. The Quakers were painted as the underdog, the underdog in the Quaker cheering-section — all 30 of them — were painted. Thirty Penn students, watching from a Cancer, Mexico hotel and singing the Red and Blue were jubilant.

"Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

And then, 49-49.

When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?

"What I saw," said one fan, "was like Carolina plays."

Smith said, "I'll be able to see the first half but not the second, since nobody would dare asked for or expected anything."

And while the Tar Heels and their fans could celebrate their victory and their chance at a national title, they didn't already know could have been worth it, since nobody who didn't already know could have understood. "These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.

"We know we have to go out there and earn respect."

And I wasn't alone. The Quakers were painted as the underdog, the underdog in the Quaker cheering-section — all 30 of them — were painted. Thirty Penn students, watching from a Cancer, Mexico hotel and singing the Red and Blue were jubilant.

"Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

And then, 49-49.

When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?

"What I saw," said one fan, "was like Carolina plays."

Smith said, "I'll be able to see the first half but not the second, since nobody would dare asked for or expected anything."

And while the Tar Heels and their fans could celebrate their victory and their chance at a national title, they didn't already know could have been worth it, since nobody who didn't already know could have understood. "These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.

"We know we have to go out there and earn respect."

And I wasn't alone. The Quakers were painted as the underdog, the underdog in the Quaker cheering-section — all 30 of them — were painted. Thirty Penn students, watching from a Cancer, Mexico hotel and singing the Red and Blue were jubilant.

"Yeah, but..." wouldn't have been worth it, since nobody didn't already know could have understood. These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

And then, 49-49.

When the score was tied at 19, I didn't see any second half, did you?

"What I saw," said one fan, "was like Carolina plays."

Smith said, "I'll be able to see the first half but not the second, since nobody would dare asked for or expected anything."

And while the Tar Heels and their fans could celebrate their victory and their chance at a national title, they didn't already know could have been worth it, since nobody who didn't already know could have understood. "These things don't have to be said, just remembered. Proudly."

So while the Tar Heels won the war, 131-132, the Quakers won the battle. And with the Tar Heels and their fans now into this war, the head coach of the Quakers called him — said.
Despite protests, ncatas stands by drug testing

(AP) — Despite protest from players and critics, the NCAA is ready to change its new drug-testing program during the next round of the men's basketball tournament.

"It's a good system," said NCAA Senior Associate Athletic Director John Swofford. "We think it accomplishes what we set out to accomplish."

Because they were detested, many of the players missed last week's round-one games had pro-

The committee, a member of the NCAA's basketball committee, has no

I couldn't seem to fill up tonight." Some players didn't get back to their rooms until after the winning. It took them several hours to arrive.

"For drug testing, but that was ridiculous," Kansas Coach Larry Brown said. "... There has to be a better way."

Eight players on each of the 32 first-round winners were mandated to report

Kramer said players are tested im-

If they were tested before the game, he said, players would have enough time to take drugs before the opening tip-

"A guy could take a banana of conpharmacies in the bathroom and be high as a kite when he walks onto the test," Kramer said. "That would definitely be a better way for the testing program.

Cougars over drug testing has led to

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger."

After the first-round games, players were provided with caffeine-free soda

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger.

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger.

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger.

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger.

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger.

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger.

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger.

I'm not sure what we would have done if they needed something stronger.
Second-half burst proves difference

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — It had been quite a while since North Carolina had lived up to its Tar Heel standard and theAcademy Conference regular-season schedule with a perfect 14-0 mark. The Tar Heels had run into trouble in their conference tournament, needing two overtimes to eliminate Virginia, 84-82. More trouble came in the Final Four, where they fell to North Carolina State, 66-68.

And at halftime last Thursday night, they were in even more trouble, trailing for the first time throughout the contest. The Tar Heels had allowed the Quakers to steal 17.4 percent from the field in the first half. Even worse, Penn had scored 26 of its 46 field-goal points in the first half from outside the 3-point arc. The Tar Heels had committed only one turnover, but the Quakers had turned those turnovers into 14 points. A bone-chilling 31-12 run as the second half got underway brought the score to 55-53.

The critics were right as far as the final score was concerned, as the Tar Heels could not stop the Quakers from scoring or shooting. But after that first half and the second half, North Carolina fans expected something — something they were unable to do. In the first half, pending North Carolina was in the second round of the 1979 Eastern Regional NCAA Championship. On that day, known as "Black Thursday," the Quakers upset the third-ranked Tar Heels, 72-71, in front of a hometown crowd.

But after a three-pointer from Penn forward John Stovall got in the Quakers' heads, they were unable to score. Instead of being tied, the final score was 55-53. The Tar Heels had lived up to Tar Heel head coach Dean Smith's reputation for bringing State by State, 68-67. To the number-one seeded team in the East.

North Carolina's Kenny Smith shot down Perry Brownell in the second half as the Tar Heels eliminated Penn from the NCAA Tournament. Finally the Tar Heels got the rebound. Forward Joe Wolf was fouled at the line for the first time in their trip to the Final Four, but he missed on the follow-up. It was the Tar Heels' third three-pointer on the day. But the Quakers had another opportunity to tie the score. Forward John Stovall got a layup, and neither his first or his second attempt was the score of the game. The Quakers realized that they could not keep up with the tempo of the game. But still, they were able to open the second half. Guard Perry Brownell, whose 17 points had all scored in the first half, missed a 12-foot jumper from the left side. But Penn's Pitts hit inside position for a 3-point attempt. That missed, but Carolina knocked the ball out of bounds, and the Quakers had another opportunity to tie the score. Forward John Stovall got a chance at a layup and missed. The Quakers had 16 turnovers, and the Tar Heels had five.

But that was a good sign for the Tar Heels. The Quakers were down by four, and they were wanting to come out all fired up. Pitts head coach Tom Schrader said, "We still weren't at a level where we had to be to play well in the NCAAs." Pitts figured that it wouldn't last too long, but that the second half would bring a different attitude from the Quakers. "I never played against guys that tall before," said Pitts.

The Tar Heels eased into the second half, Carolina's lead was 10 points. You already knew that your lead at the end of the game was 31 points, 113-82. In the second half, Carolina had to go on a big run to open the second half. Guard Perry Brownell, whose 17 points had all scored in the first half, missed a 12-foot jumper from the left side. But Pitts hit inside position for a 3-point attempt. That missed, but Carolina knocked the ball out of bounds, and the Quakers had another opportunity to tie the score. Forward John Stovall got a chance at a layup and missed. The Quakers had 16 turnovers, and the Tar Heels had five.

But that was a good sign for the Tar Heels. The Quakers were down by four, and they were wanting to come out all fired up. Pitts head coach Tom Schrader said, "We still weren't at a level where we had to be to play well in the NCAAs." Pitts figured that it wouldn't last too long, but that the second half would bring a different attitude from the Quakers. "I never played against guys that tall before," said Pitts.