Declining interest in medical schools concerns officials

By LISA S. SMITH

Some medical school officials are beginning to worry that the number of people applying to medical schools has steadily declined, and officials fear that the shortage of people will be magnified.

The number of medical school applicants declined 14.5 percent from 1978 to 1986, and the decreasing number of applicants has forced the academic community to reevaluate the medical schools. Baum added, "We have a public responsibility to produce people who are qualified."

But University officials said that they are not concerned about the declining number of applicants and that Temple will continue to take in strong applicant pool, and we have not seen decreases in the quality of applicants where we can enrol.

The trend of declining applicants is more severe in Pennsylvania than in most other states because of the demographics of the region, according to Joseph Baum, associate dean and director of Temple University.

Baum said that public institutions such as Temple had the effect of the trend more than private institutions because the former are obligated to accept a certain percentage of Pennsylvania residents.

"This is a more serious issue than we thought," he explained. "As a result, Ronald Reagan simply explained, ‘We should have to take in weaker people,’ he chuckled.

The students' grievances include poor facilities, lack of adequate staffing, and disorganization of the student health services. The students are currently charging that the University is being "very good on backing up his words, but very, very bad on following through."

The PSA official, who asked to remain anonymous, said that the University is "very good on backing up his words, but very, very bad on following through."

The University is planning to study the problems in the student area, with the completion of the financial aid office. He added that the University would begin one month after the speech. Ehrlichman added, responded to the University's next six to eight months."

"We all tend to recede and hope things will work themselves out," said Bette Reimann, the University's assistant vice president for public relations.

Reimann, the former Nixon aide who was questioned extensively by the press about the Watergate scandal like a "sea anemone." Ehrlichman added.

The ICA remembers the innovations of the 60s

By CAROL VINCANT

To celebrate the 20th anniversary of the 60s, the ICA of Contemporary Art will present "1967: At the Crossroads," an exhibit of the visual art works of that year, from March 15th to April 26th. The exhibit will be curated by Brian Koen over a four-year period.

The curatorial concept evolved from the theme of the 60s as a turning point of major social and political changes. In 1967 particular events were crucial: the summer of love, the war in Vietnam, the Civil Rights movement, and the first NASA space walk. The year was also marked by a number of cultural innovations: the Beat Generation movement, the rise of anti-establishment politics, and the beginning of the " opción" in Latin America.

The exhibit will explore the 60s through a variety of media, including painting, sculpture, photography, and video. It will feature works by notable artists such as Andy Warhol, Jasper Johns, and Robert Rauschenberg. The exhibit will also include a section on the counterculture movement, highlighting the role of the ICA in promoting this cultural revolution.

The ICA's "1967: At the Crossroads" exhibit is an opportunity to examine the impact of the 60s on art and society. It invites visitors to reflect on the ways in which this decade influenced contemporary art and culture. The exhibit opens March 15th and runs through April 26th.

Festival features new writers

By PAMELA SCHULMAN

The Philadelphia Festival Theatre for New Plays, which kicks off the 60th season of its annual festival next month, will consist of 15 new works by five contemporary playwrights, including University Professor Romulus Linney. The productions are part of the Philadelphia Festival Theatre's 60th season and will run from March 15th to April 26th.

A unique aspect of the Festival Theatre is a series of curricular offerings for Mask and Wig students. The students will participate in workshops and special events throughout the season, including a reading of the plays in progress and a performance of "The Deal," a play by Laura Maria Censabella and Michael Zirinsky.

March 20, 2017

This year marks the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Cambridge Film Office, a group that has been instrumental in bringing film to the city. The Cambridge Film Office is celebrating its anniversary with a special event on March 20th.

The Cambridge Film Office (CFO) was founded in 1957 as a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the arts and culture in the Cambridge area.

The organization was founded by a group of students from the University of Cambridge, who recognized the need for a film festival in the city. The first festival was held in 1958 and has since grown to include a number of events and workshops throughout the year.

The CFO is involved in a variety of projects, including the production of short films and the promotion of independent filmmakers. The organization also offers a number of opportunities for filmmakers to showcase their work, including the annual film festival.

The 60th anniversary of the Cambridge Film Office will be celebrated with a special event on March 20th. The event will include a screening of the organization's first film, as well as a panel discussion and reception.

According to the CFO, the organization's success can be attributed to the support of the local community and the dedication of its members. The CFO is looking forward to continuing its work in promoting the arts and culture in the Cambridge area for many more years to come.

Spotify

Spotify is a music streaming service that allows users to listen to a wide variety of music, including original works and cover versions. The service was founded in Sweden in 2006 and has since expanded to include over 70 million songs in its library.

The CFO's 60th anniversary event will feature a screening of the first film produced by the organization, "The Devil's Advocate," which was released in 1958. The film was directed by John Cassavetes and starred Robert De Niro and Al Pacino.

The event will also include a panel discussion with members of the CFO and other industry professionals, as well as a reception where attendees can meet and network.

The Cambridge Film Office is located at 11 Brattle Street in Cambridge, MA. For more information about the organization and its events, please visit the official website or follow them on social media.

Panel to discuss media responsibility tomorrow

A panel composed of notable media critics, local journal- ists and concerned citizens will discuss the parameters of  media responsibility tomorrow in a forum entitled "media and the First Amendment."

As part of the "We the People 200" celebration of the U.S. Constitution, panels will address such issues as withholding sensitive information from the media, press responsibility in covering or uncovering confidential  stories and the necessity of the press. The debate will be conducted in the manner of an old-fashioned town meeting, and audience members will be invited to pose questions to the panelists. The forum is a joint meeting of the Phi Sigma Epsilon and the Kappa Delta Kappa fraternities.

The forum will take place at 7 p.m. in the Schuster Auditorium. The forum will be free and open to the public. Tickets will be accepted at the door. No reservations will be necessary.

Travel agents react to students’ gripes

About 50 students met with travel agents about the complaints they have made about the travel service at Hillel. The travel agency that provides service at Hillel is Escapes Unlimited.

"It's a great opportunity to give customers a chance to ask questions," a travel agent said. "It's also a chance for us to ask students what they think of our services."

Students said that they were unsatisfied with the service they received from the travel agency. They said that they were not able to get the information they needed and that they were not able to get a reservation that they wanted.

"We need to improve our service," a travel agent said. "We need to make sure that we are providing the best possible service to our customers."

Congressmen denounce Contra aid

By JENNY NOACK AND MARK SAUNDERS

Addressing a meeting yesterday, a pair of Democratic congressmen denounced President Reagan's support for the Contras.

Conservative Tom Foley, a Democrat from Pennsylvania, and Barney Frank of Massachusetts, were the only congressmen speaking yesterday at the Democratic Association to discuss President Reagan's role in the Central America conflict, as part of Central America Week. Foley was the keynote speaker at an informal discussion at a Faculty Club lounge.

University City area, spoke primarily to the College of Arts and Sciences about the Contras yesterday. Frank comments on the Contras policy was made on Thursday night. As a student, he reflected on his trip to Central America.

"It is a very selfish policy that has neither moral nor genuine justification," he said. He added that the Reagan administration has been successful in using aid to the Contras in order to direct the results of its policy.

"It is not the Contras who are fighting to reverse the Communist Party," he said. "But that the government's goal is not to

Provost Statement on April Holidays

The following is a statement from Provost Thomas E. Emery regarding religious holidays in April:

I have received a request from the Delphi Athletic Council to establish a three-day weekend for the spring semester by making Good Friday and Easter Sunday holidays.

I have been asked to formally respond to this request. Since the Delphi Athletic Council represents a majority of students, and since the Athletic Council is a student organization, I am imposing a temporary ban on any modifications to the spring semester schedule until this request can be reviewed by the Faculty Senate.

Candidates begin campaigning as senior elections approach

By PAMELA KATZ
Are you a political junkie? Then this is the year for you because the candidates for the senior class board are on the press. Petitions were due yesterday for all those interested to register by the close of the day.

The slate of officers up for grabs are: president, first vice-president, second vice-president, treasurer, secretary, faculty College representative, and student College representative. With the addition of the executive board, two new offices are open for the running.

The candidates are all expected to have submitted their petitions by today. Only the names of those whose petition have been approved by the municipal and the campus will be listed on the campus. The campus will also be responsible for verifying the signatures on the petition.

In addition, the candidates are expected to have a campaign beginning today until the elections on March 31. The campus will also be responsible for verifying the signatures on the petition.

Although only a few students have publicized their intentions, a large number of students are expected to run. The campus will also be responsible for verifying the signatures on the petition.

The candidates are allowed to campaign beginning today until the elections on March 31. The campus will also be responsible for verifying the signatures on the petition.

However, the candidates are only allowed to spend a maximum of $25 on the campaign. Candidate in the campaign must not be involved in any other activity on the campus or be a student in any other activity on the campus.

The only publicity candidates are permitted to have is a poster. No other form of publicity is permitted on the campus. The campus will also be responsible for verifying the signatures on the petition.

This year's campaign will be the most competitive ever. The candidates are expected to spend a great deal of time campaigning and many of them are expected to have a campaign team. The campus will also be responsible for verifying the signatures on the petition.

Controversial scholar to address African independence from U.S.

By KRISTINE CONNER

African and Afro-American Heritage Week will be highlighted by a speech tonight by the controversial African nationalist Ali Mazrui, assistant professor of Africana studies and a research professor at the University of Michigan political science department. The professor is also a visiting professor at Harvard University.

According to Dan Butler, administrative assistant to the director of the Afro-American Studies Program, Mazrui is best known for the 1986 controversy involving his major public television series "The Africans." Butler also said that the native Kenyan is best known for the 1986 controversy involving his major public television series "The Africans." Butler added that the native Kenyan is "a terrorist, but a leader who created a machine." "But overall this was only a small part of the series." Mazrui, a well-published scholar, has written over 20 books on African religion, politics, culture, economics, and history. Presently he is editing the fourth volume of the "UNESCO History of Science, Technology and Philosophy of Aids, Harvard Educational Review, and Foreign Affairs. He will speak this evening at 8 p.m. in Irvine Auditorium.

Panel discusses gains in black entrepreneurship

By DOUG TESTER
Black entrepreneurship is the issue developed by any American community, according to a panel at the 19th Annual Meeting of the National Black Entrepreneurship Conference.
"Black business development is the true foundation of any community," Senior Economist Bernet Andrews, moderator of the first panel discussion, said Saturday at the second annual meeting on black entrepreneurship.
About 260 people participated in the panel discussions which featured 17 black panelists, most of whom ran their own businesses.
Though blacks have made great gains in the last several decades, Andrews pointed out that 80 percent of the new businesses were operated by blacks is 1983 that in 1972. He added that nearly half of the businesses are small operations that make less than $1,000 per month.
"The panelists told us that black businesses in the future must be successful in order to be able to earn a living.

The pool is obviously decreasing, because of the increasing numbers of changes as a result of the decrease," she said. "We told the audience that there are more people apply than we can interview.

But the long list of a large opportunity won't affect the decisions in the number of applicants," he added.
"At some point it might affect us, but at the present conditions have been siginificantly increased.

Baseball’s Kinney hits like a veteran
Quakers seek to end slide

The only thing that Penn head baseball coach Bob Suddath has to worry about in reference to John Kinney is keeping him from a walk in the Quaker batter’s box. After that, Kinney has taken it from there.

Kinney, 21, is a left-handed, switch-hitting, left-handed pitcher, a former Miami University star, who is considered to be one of the most potent power hitters outside the Ivy League. He currently leads the Ivy with a .391 batting average and has hit six home runs so far this season.

"I’ve been a batter longer than he’s been a pitcher," said Suddath, who also coaches Kinney in Penn’s varsity soccer team. "He’s worked very hard at it. He didn’t play much his freshman and sophomore years, but since then he’s been incredible."

In order to find Kinney’s potential in the batter’s box, Suddath has moved Kinney to one of Penn’s most prominent offensive positions — first base. Suddath refers to Kinney’s lead in the batting average as a "massive surprise." Kinney leads the team in on-base percentage (.435), slugging percentage (.600), doubles (14) and RBIs (14). His fielding is made more impressive by the fact that he has been consistently at shortstop since 1987.

"He’s always been a hitter," said Suddath, who also coaches Kinney in Penn’s varsity soccer team. "He’s worked very hard at it. He didn’t play much his freshman and sophomore years, but since then he’s been incredible."

Now it’s time to see if Kinney can do it in the batter’s box. Suddath has moved Kinney to one of Penn’s most prominent offensive positions — first base. Suddath refers to Kinney’s lead in the batting average as a "massive surprise." Kinney leads the team in on-base percentage (.435), slugging percentage (.600), doubles (14) and RBIs (14). His fielding is made more impressive by the fact that he has been consistently at shortstop since 1987.

Unfortunately for Kinney, Penn is currently sitting in the middle of the pack in the Ivy League standings. But Suddath is not concerned about Kinney’s performance at the plate.

"I’m not worried about Kinney’s hitting," said Suddath. "I’m more concerned about his pitching. He’s been outstanding so far this season."
