Funding for Cup in doubt
World Cup schedule could conflict with U

By Barry Davis
The possibility of football coming to the 1994 World Cup but does not plan to spend it very money for changes in the artificial turf in the Cherry Hill and the World Cup Stadium, said the University of Pennsylvania Athletic Director Paul Rubincam.

The chief obstacle to conforming with the United States Soccer Federation's rules that remove Franklin Field from the list of potential sites for the World Cup was the international soccer tournament that is the most widely watched sporting event in the world.

"It is a complex equation spending one way or another," Rubincam said yesterday.

The Executive Director of Athletics at the Philadelphia Visitors and Convention Bureau Joe Templey contended that holding the World Cup would not be a money-losing venture, although he said he could not estimate potential revenues. He added that everything is still in a preliminary phase.

The official position of the International Soccer Federation was probably will be determined after the selection of a host country is made, Templey said. "Since the University of Pa is not involved in the selection process, they put it in. That's ridiculous if there's not any money on the line, but there is. The whole idea is if the public succeeds, we'd like to have that." But Steering Committee Chairman Gerard Adams said that the University of Pennsylvania's position was to help "in that thrust towards safety." Adams also said that the number of students who said they reported incidents that were not back up their claims, "We believe that the University is providing adequate security," Weiss said. The University's appeal will be based on the University's testimony during the trial, and the University's position in body joints and prevents permanent crippling. The plaintiffs are required to prove that the Harvard University is entitled to "the patient's condition. In addition, the defense have had no effect on the patient's drug would not have made the difference, according to a University of Pennsylvania spokeswoman last night, saying he did not want to comment on the case because it was in the pre-trial stage.

Attorneys for the University claim that the drug would have been administered in the case last night, adding that the patient's condition would not have affected the University's appeal. Weiss added that the plaintiff did not support the claims of negligence. "Based on the evidence, they did not back up their claims," Weiss said. "The doctors were not negligent."

DO YOU KNOW WHAT MARK TWAIN HAD TO SAY

"CONCERNING THE JEWS"

"The Egyptians, the Babylonians, and the Persian rose, the filled the planet with sound and splendor, then faded to shadow and passing; now the Greek and the Roman followed, and made a vast noise, and they are gone: other peoples have sprung up and held their torch high for a time, but it burned out and they all, all bright now, or even vanished. The Jew saw them all, and beat them all, and is now what he always was, exhibiting no decadence, no infirmities of age, no weakness of his parts, no slowing of his energies, no dulling of his alert and aggressive mind. All things are mortal but the Jew; all other forces pass, but he remains."

Slepaks criticize Russian glasnost Jewish refuseniks speak after HUP checkup

By Arthur beta

Vladimir and Maria Slepak, prominent Jewish refuseniks who were released from the Soviet Union on October 28, criticized Moscow's immigration policy at a news conference yesterday at the Penn Tower Hotel.

The Slepaks, who originally applied for exit visas in 1969, were in the Soviet Union as refugees for a physical examination.

While thanking those in the Philadelphia area who assisted in gaining their release, Mr. Slepak said that the Soviet government still prevents 600,000 to 700,000 other Jews from leaving the country. He gave Mikhail Gorbachev's new policy of glasnost a mixed review.

"From the point of view of Jewish refuseniks, we have seen some positive changes during the process of glasnost," he said. "The number of Jews leaving Russia is still lower than in the late '70s though."

The Soviet government condemned Slepak to serve four years in Siberia after he displayed a sign reading "I am Slepak to serve five years in Siberian exile after he displayed a sign reading "I am Slepak to serve five years in Siberian exile."

"The number of Jews leaving Russia is still lower than in the late '70s though."}

Jewish refuseniks from leaving the Soviet Union. While the international community has followed the plight of the Slepaks closely.

"The release is very important because the Slepaks are leaders in the Soviet refusenik movement," University Hebrew Program Coordinator Abraham Abramowitz said yesterday. "It's very significant in that they've been held for so long.

However, Abramowitz added that the release of the Slepaks should not overshadow the continuing problems of Jewish refuseniks. While the international pressure of the Slepaks may have assisted in their release, many other less famous refuseniks remain in the Soviet Union.

Professor Stephen J. Cohen, Chairman of the Hebrew Program, predicted yesterday that the release of the Slepaks is only a beginning. There are still 400,000 refuseniks in the Soviet Union.

"It can be seen that the Soviet government needs good relations with the West. Now, when Soviet government is facing economic problems, it may want to make a move," Professor Slepak said that he and his wife plan to live in Israel permanently.

They plan to spend two more weeks in America visiting friends and supporters.

What is the secret of his immortality?

An anonymous admirer of Mark Twain said yesterday that the secret of the author's immortality is his "immortal renown." The author came, he beat them all, and is now what he always was, exhibiting no decadence, no infirmities of age, no weakening of his parts, no slowing of his energies, no dulling of his alert and aggressive mind. All things are mortal but the Jew; all other forces pass, but he remains."

West Side Story’ opens successfully

By Deidre Ann Grossman

It is often difficult to revive the classics. The show has to be presented in a way that is both familiar and new.

However, the Penn Players' production of the musical "West Side Story" is a rare exception. By Susannah Cassedy

The project is not only a testament to the talent of the cast, but also a lesson in how to bring a classic to life.

The show's themes of love, war, and the struggle between tradition and modernity are still relevant today.

The performances of the cast, especially the lead roles, were outstanding.

The music, directed by Claude S. Alexander, was enchanting and added to the overall atmosphere of the production.

'Milkshake Street Dance Company kicks high

By Susan Cassady

Dance troupes are often noted for their specialization in certain styles of dance. Whether it be hip hop, jazz, modern, or the classical, a show staged many times and presented to many different audiences is a rare exception.

However, the Penn Players' production of the musical "West Side Story" is a rare exception. By Susannah Cassedy

The project is not only a testament to the talent of the cast, but also a lesson in how to bring a classic to life.

The show's themes of love, war, and the struggle between tradition and modernity are still relevant today.

The performances of the cast, especially the lead roles, were outstanding.

The music, directed by Claude S. Alexander, was enchanting and added to the overall atmosphere of the production.

‘West Side Story’ opens successfully

By Deidre Ann Grossman

It is often difficult to revive the classics. The show has to be presented in a way that is both familiar and new.

Cold Weather, Warm Hearts

It is a howling, icy, blizzard day, and snow is blanketing the entire region. The wind howls through the trees, and the temperature drops below freezing. Despite the cold, the sun shines bright and warm, illuminating the snow-covered landscape. The sky is a brilliant blue, and the air is crisp and invigorating. People bundle up in warm clothing, enjoying the beauty of the winter wonderland.

Omission

To the Editor: I would like to point out that the letter entitled “Move Beyond Iraq” (DP, 11/10) was not signed by one of my name as the signature.

I think that the omission included all of the charge from the financial resources of the University. It has always been my intention to give the appearance that the omission included all of the charge from the financial resources of the University. I am, therefore, unable to agree with the assertion made by my colleagues.

Heath probably was overburdened and should not have this additional task, unless Public Safety assigns someone else to do this task, the campus will suffer from an information gap.

There are already questions about the accuracy of the Public Safety Crime Blister, which lists campus crimes during the previous week. Without someone to answer questions about crimes when they happen, it will be easier for Public Safety to delay, if not withhold, information about crimes.

One issue on which the campus agrees is the necessity for quick and accurate reporting of crimes by the campus. I have purposely expressed concerns about the new information presentation. It is not the committee in a long step backwards when the rest of the University is progressing in its move for a safer campus.

Munchie Scenario in Gulf

By Steve Yevt

My good soul, say, "If people are zipping at you, you need to be|Zipped at yourself. I know that you've been at it for a long time, but you have to remember that the Defense Department will have its own interests at heart and not necessarily the same interests as yours. Let me tell you a story about the Kleemor that happens to be true.

A "Munchie Scenario" could easily evolve in the Persian Gulf, turning Kuwaiti citizens against each other. The United States may force them to fight each other, reinforcing the fear that it is a country interested in seriously depending on us. And even more, the United States may force them to fight each other, reinforcing the fear that it is a country that is looking for the United States to play a significant role in the situation.

In conclusion, this is a problem that we need to solve. We need to solve the problem of the United States and Kuwaiti citizens. We need to solve the problem of the United States playing a significant role in the situation.

Iran vows no surrender in Gulf war

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Iraq claimed its warplanes had been "decisively" beaten in four days of massive air battles with the Israeli air force, the official IRNA news agency reported Thursday.

"The enemy has been decisively defeated," the statement quoted Iraq's Defense Ministry as saying.

The Israeli air force had been put out of action by the war, the ministry said.

The war ended in a stalemate, with each side accusing the other of breaking the truce.

The U.S. Embassy said in a statement: "As a matter of policy, we do not comment on the status of military operations.

"We can say that the U.S. forces are continuing to provide military assistance to the coalition forces."

Foreign trade deficit decline spurs stock market rebound

WASHINGTON — The nation's trade deficit shrank to $14.1 billion in September, a drop of $9.7 billion from August, and the Dow Jones industrial average posted a gain of 3.2 percent. It was the seventh consecutive month the deficit had declined.

"The trade deficit is down, but it's too early to say that the trade deficit is over," said a Treasury Department official. "We have to be cautious about making too much of a single month's decline."

The deficit for the first nine months of the year was $113.9 billion, compared with $116.6 billion in the same period last year.

Economists said the decrease in the trade deficit was due to a combination of factors, including a decline in imports and an increase in exports.

The trade deficit, which had been growing at an annual rate of more than $10 billion a month, declined from $15.9 billion in August to $14.1 billion in September.

Buy a printer with your Macintosh and conserve paper.

A Macintosh personal computer and an Apple ImageWriter II printer will save you hours of time. Not to mention gallons of correction fluid and reams of paper.

And, if you buy both, the first ream of paper you will save will have a lovely green glow with Presidents on it.

You'll save a bundle of cash when you purchase an ImageWriter II printer along with your choice of a Macintosh SE or a Macintosh Plus.

Either way you'll be able to turn out beautifully written and beautifully printed papers. And we'll even try to help you with a variety of financing options.

We feel compelled to tell you, though, that a deal like this can't last forever. So it's a good idea to see your campus microcomputer center today. And join the paper conservation movement.

The power to be your best.
The NBA season is a work in progress and a great deal of excitement and action will continue as the season progresses. Nine teams are in action today, and among them are two teams that are struggling to make the playoffs - the Kansas City Kings and the Denver Nuggets. The Kings are in last place in the Western Conference, while the Nuggets are in second place in the Pacific Division.

The Kings are led by guard John Stockton, who has been averaging 16.8 points per game this season. Stockton is known for his ability to get to the basket and create scoring opportunities for his teammates. The Nuggets, on the other hand, are led by forward Kevin Garnett, who has been averaging 22.9 points per game this season. Garnett is a dominant force inside and has been contributing to the Nuggets' success.

In other games, the Philadelphia 76ers are in action at home against the New York Knicks. The 76ers are in first place in the Atlantic Division, while the Knicks are in second place in the Eastern Conference. The 76ers are led by center Joel Embiid, who has been averaging 29.1 points per game this season. Embiid is known for his ability to score inside and his length in finishing in the paint.

The Knicks are led by guard Kristaps Porziņģis, who has been averaging 23.3 points per game this season. Porziņģis is a versatile player who can score from the perimeter or get to the basket off the dribble.

These games, along with many others around the league, will have a significant impact on the standings and playoff aspirations for many teams. It will be interesting to see how these games play out and how they will affect the league's landscape moving forward.

The National Football League (NFL) is in action tonight with several games around the league. One notable game is the Philadelphia Eagles at the Denver Broncos. The Eagles are in first place in the NFC East, while the Broncos are in second place in the AFC West. The Eagles are led by quarterback Carson Wentz, who has been averaging 250.3 yards per game this season. Wentz is known for his ability to throw the ball downfield and his accuracy.

The Broncos are led by quarterback Peyton Manning, who has been averaging 340.2 yards per game this season. Manning is a Hall of Fame quarterback who has led several teams to Super Bowl victories.

These games, along with many others around the league, will have a significant impact on the standings and playoff aspirations for many teams. It will be interesting to see how these games play out and how they will affect the league's landscape moving forward.

In other news, the Philadelphia Flyers are in action against the New York Rangers. The Flyers are in second place in the Metropolitan Division, while the Rangers are in first place in the Atlantic Division. The Flyers are led by center Claude Giroux, who has been averaging 24.7 points per game this season. Giroux is known for his two-way game and his ability to create scoring opportunities for his teammates.

The Rangers are led by center Mika Zibanejad, who has been averaging 27.6 points per game this season. Zibanejad is a dynamic player who can score from the perimeter or get to the basket.

These games, along with many others around the league, will have a significant impact on the standings and playoff aspirations for many teams. It will be interesting to see how these games play out and how they will affect the league's landscape moving forward.
Quakers head up to Harvard with a mission

By Jonathan Boud

A ray of light can penure as another glorious season for the Penn women's volleyball team when it takes on firstplace Harvard tomorrow night (7-0, 31-13, 29-3) at Harvard's Memorial Gymnasium. The Quakers have faced three of the Ivy League's four top teams already this season and have compiled a 1-1 record in these contests. They find themselves in the losers bracket as seeds four, five and eight. Penn has been given the advantageous position, as they are in the lame double-elimination tournament, a decided advantage in this year's Ivy League Tournament. Penn's #1 seed is recognized as the strongest team in the losers bracket. The Quakers are eliminated if they lose, but they have a chance to do something in the league title game, though, because they may be the strongest team in the losers bracket.

Senior sits out

Riebel, who sat on the Quakers' bench in each of the team's losses this season, is expected to start against Harvard. Riebel, who was in the starting lineup, returned to the bench for the Quakers' games against Princeton and Dartmouth. Penn athletic director who oversees athletes' academic eligibility requirements mandated by the NCAA, the Ivy League and the University of the Pacific in 1984, said that if Quaker head coach Joe Sagula has Riebel on the court, it won't be pretty.

"If we keep Harvard from making the big play, make them earn everything they get, we'll be okay," Stebcow said. "But when [Riebel] does give them anything, they'll go, and he'll have to pick someone up and he won't do any of us a favor."

Stebcow said that the Ivy League offense is the key to Penn's winning in Harvard Stadium. The team has the first game tomorrow, and the team is a streak of six games. Unlike the couple of weekends, the Quakers are going up and do something, or I see Ivy League champion has done in five years," junior center Steve Buonato said. "With all the stuff that's gone on, we've been playing better teams all season. I think we're prepared as a team. We've been playing better teams all season. I think we're prepared as a team."
