Farrukhan slated for Irvine talk, leaders say
Groups have pledged $10,000 honorarium

Walnut Street has been slower this month, but he admitted that he would be available to speak during the last week of March or the beginning of April. The groups are currently discussing the time in the service, Irvine Auditorium, he said.

No one from the University administration was available for comments for the story.

The PPC chairman also announced that the co-sponsors have pledged to finance a $10,000 honorarium for the speaker as well as expenses and travel fees. The details of the speaking engagements are in the hands of the University, he said. The University could not be reached for comment.

He added that he had conveyed the PPC's offer to Farrukhan during last week, at which time he responded to the offer by expressing interest in coming to speak.

"We have a firm consensus," he said, "that there is an opportunity to negotiate the exact on April or May. The negotiations will continue after the April 3 election of the Student Assembly."

The PPC's spokespersons have been working with several Houston Hall merchants to coordinate a speaking event. The merchants have reported a small loss in sales due to the student labor strike.

They added that they hope to coordinate the event with the Houston Hall mall, five — Discovery Discs, KIS Photo, and News, Etc. — and the Shops at Penn, the Office of Student Activities and the Office of University Life in attendance as well.

Some people may find it odd that the first three months of the spring semester saw a 20 percent increase in sales at campus businesses, but the University administration is taking no chances.

They have issued a warning to all faculty, staff, and students that they must keep an eye on the traffic in the mall, they all say they have to do is walk down to the back block of Walnut Street. There, they will find a shopping mall no different than any other.

But where do students find the time to visit the mall? They have to do is walk down to the back block of Walnut Street. There, they will find a shopping mall no different than any other.

Companies. The ideal facility would be a 250-seat house fully equipped and programmed for the dance companies. Pooled resources will each present performances in the theaters which would otherwise be too scarce manpower and limited available space for dance companies other than the major theaters, which make it difficult to attract funds.

But Philadelphia's arts have been swarmed by the growing number of dance companies. UA calls for changes in PennBus

B. GEORGE TAYLOR

Citing deficiencies in PennBus operations, the Undergraduate Assembly released an official calling for significant improvements in the system.

The report states that the majority of the passengers said they would travel from 34th to 44th and from 44th to 54th streets. They called the system non-existent and added that the current system is not a viable alternative.

Shukman explained that he calls his Ivy League background while rapp- ing because he wants to be good publicity for the University. "If they have one dude who's down," he said.

"I want to encourage people who are not doing it to make the rap," he said.

Weinberger made an honorary knight

LONDON — Former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger became an honorary knight yesterday, joining the queen's list of 100 recipients, it was announced today in a ceremony at Buckingham Palace.

The new knight, who was on the scene to receive the honor, was part of a group that included the queen's oldest daughter, Princess Anne, and her husband, Captain Mark Phillips, who was knighted last year.

Weinberger, 78, is the first American ever to receive the title of knight, which is given in recognition of outstanding contributions to the arts, sciences, or defense.

Penn State probe of Skinksheads a sad

STATE COLLEGE — Student-protesting Skinksheads, a group of Students for a Democratic Society, who have been involved in a series of violent incidents on the Penn State campus, were expelled from the university yesterday.

The group had been seeking to establish a chapter at the university, but their efforts were thwarted by a series of protests and demonstrations.

The university's president, Dr. William J. Green, said the group's activities were in violation of university policy and that they had been expelled.

The group's leader, Dave Johnson, said the university had overstepped its bounds in expelling the group.

Estimates of the impact of the recession on education and training vary widely. The National Education Association, which represents 2.7 million teachers, has projected a 9.2% decline in federal aid to education. The American Federation of Teachers, which represents 1.3 million teachers, predicts a 5.1% drop.

The Department of Labor estimates that unemployment will rise to 7% by the end of the year. The Federal Reserve Board has raised interest rates to try to cool the economy, but many economists believe that further action is needed.

The federal government is also facing a budget crisis. The deficit for fiscal year 1988 is projected to be $144 billion, up from $113 billion in 1987. The Budget Board has proposed a $21 billion cut in non-defense spending to bring the deficit down to $123 billion, but Congress has not yet acted on the proposal.

The uncertainty about the course of the economy is causing considerable anxiety among educators. Many are concerned about the impact of the recession on their teaching jobs and on the ability of their students to afford higher education.

The National Education Association is calling for a moratorium on state testing and a halt to the implementation of the No Child Left Behind Act. The American Federation of Teachers is calling for an increase in federal funding for education and a freeze on state cuts in education funding.

Curtis Ritz

As an avid reader of the Daily Pennsylvania I am writing in response to the Mrs. Karin Curtis letter from last Wednesday's edition. I am writing to express my disappointment with the way in which the Daily Pennsylvania handles the representation of minority voices.

As a member of the LGBTQ+ community, I was alarmed to read about the struggles faced by students at the University of Pennsylvania in finding representation within the school's publications. It is important to note that the Daily Pennsylvania is not the only publication where this issue arises. Many student publications across the country struggle with accurately reflecting the voices and experiences of their diverse communities.

In response, I encourage the Daily Pennsylvania to actively seek out and include the perspectives of students from underrepresented groups. By doing so, the Daily Pennsylvania can better serve its student body and promote a more inclusive and equitable campus environment.

I look forward to seeing positive changes in the future editions of the Daily Pennsylvania.

Jackson to shoot. She kindly obliged. "If I can, I will," Jackson said.

"She's real steady for us," Temple's head coach Tom Kilkennen said.

"She tells me to shoot any time," Coach Duncombe explained. "I'm here to do whatever it takes to win the game."

"I'm more versatile now," she said. "I'll play anywhere the coach needs me."}

Blake scores 26 as Hawks ease to Big Five victory

Blake, from BLAKE, from Pitts

"Tonight was very important to us," said Blake. "We needed to get back on the right track."

"I felt like we needed to get back to our winning ways," Blake added.

"We have a lot of confidence in our team right now," Blake continued.

"I'm just happy to be a part of this team," Blake said.

Pitts-ville Tavares adds explosiveness

Tavares, from Arizona State

"I'm excited to see what Tavares can do for us," Coach Duncombe said.

"He's a physical player," Duncombe added. "He can get to the rim and得分."

"I think he's going to be a big factor for us moving forward," Duncombe concluded.

Jackson's late hot hand quiets Quakers

Jackson, from Temple

"I think Jackson was ready to go," Coach Duncombe said.

"He put Temple up by 17, effectively putting the game out of reach," Duncombe added.

"Jackson is a streak shooter, that's why he puts up those numbers," Duncombe explained.

"I think he's going to be a big factor for us moving forward," Duncombe concluded.

"I think Jackson is going to be a huge part of our team," Duncombe said.

Blake bruises, St. Joe’s cruise

High-rising Tavarez adds explosiveness

By THOMAS JELL
Joe Tavarez, a 6-foot-9 sophomore forward for Princeton, has added some spice to the Princeton offense.

"Even from his junior year, he’s been a jump shot," Tavarez said last week. "But I had a lot of tricks, and I was always creating for myself. And now that Phil makes, I can do. Hopefully after he leaves, I can pick up where he left off.

Tavarez, the Quakers’ senior gaurd, went four of nine from deep during the first two games. He said he was more comfortable shooting from the three point line, and that he’s a better shooter from deep.

"He’s strong, he can rebound, and he can run. But Phil (Jackson) does a lot of things, holds down the run and keeps the loop, draws a lot in the court," Tavarez said.

"He can’t go up with me," Tavarez laughed.

At Courtside

Following the Quakers’ 76-64 loss to St. Joseph’s on the Palestra Friday night,

He may be right.

But that doesn’t mean Tavarez is going to concede. In fact, following Princeton’s practice the next day, on Sunday, he was taking shots attempting to make the jump shot—between the legs.

The friendly body

Tavarez’s confidence has been a deciding factor in the Quaker’s games.

"They haven’t been doing all season, in fact, freshman center Hassan Doumbouya said. "Whenever we want to do it we actually get out on the court. It just so happens that recently it’s been the time of the young guys.

"It’s a better defense because we can do so much with it in five minutes." Doumbouya said. "But I think Joe's got a higher vertical. Enough of the pratistically comparisons. What’s really important is they’re being made.

Last night Tavarez showed why he is a valuable player-and-eligible, big five offense at three victory-against-Samuels. With 20-11 minutes, the career-40 point game-Courtside

"I told myself that there is no way I can lose in three games, I’ve played before... So I went in the big five game with confidence."

"We only played two minutes, and Phil made a lot of shots. We’ve got the most on the court. We’ve got the most out of this game, and we’re trying to win the game, even if we win the game," Tavarez said.

And that was much of what held him back. Tavarez said.

"I do not think that I’m a leader," Tavarez said. "I don’t think that I’m a leader."

But that doesn’t mean Tavarez is going to conced.
