Temple teaching assistants to be promoted to professorial status

By CHELLY HONG

Many university students see the ability to earn graduate status at a university as the ultimate mark on their college careers. Among the professors and teaching assistants at Temple, the ability to earn a professorship is also something that is hard to come by.

Temple's Faculty Senate recently approved the creation of 30 new graduate assistantships, which will be awarded on a need-based basis. The Senate also approved the creation of 10 new graduate student positions, which will be awarded on a merit-based basis.

The new graduate positions will be awarded to students who are nominated by their professors and are selected by a committee of 10 faculty members and 10 students. The committee will also consider the students' academic performance and their participation in extracurricular activities.

The new graduate assistantships will provide tuition remission for the students and a stipend of $5,000 per year. The new graduate student positions will provide a stipend of $10,000 per year.

The new positions are part of a larger effort by Temple to increase its competitiveness in the graduate school market.

Temple University is currently ranked 48th among public universities in the United States by U.S. News & World Report. The university aims to improve its ranking by increasing the number of graduate students it enrolls.

Two awarded chairs in Wharton School

By DAVID BORENSCHE

The Wharton School has announced that two faculty members have been awarded new chairs.

John M. Osterman, professor of finance and management, has been awarded the Osterman Chair in Finance.

Richard A. DeGeorge, professor of management, has been awarded the DeGeorge Chair in Management.

The chairs were established with gifts from the Osterman and DeGeorge families.

The chairs will provide research and teaching support for the professors, as well as opportunities for collaboration with other faculty members and students.

Wharton is one of the top business schools in the United States and is known for its strong programs in finance, management, and economics.

Wheel of Fortune contestants bring home more than $16,000

By LARA STRAUGH

While most University students studied, parsed, or hung out on campus last weekend, two were encountering the ultimate test of their skills — a trip to California and a slot on Wheel of Fortune.

The two contestants, Wharton seniors Thomas J. Espen and Donald J. Eisen, will appear on the show Wednesday and Sunday, April 9 and 10, on Tap 16, the University's public television station.

Eisen, a marketing major, said he was selected to be on the show because of his skills in mathematics, and Espen, a finance major, said he was chosen because of his knowledge of current events.

The two students will be competing for cash prizes, and the University will receive a share of the proceeds.

The Wheel of Fortune contest is part of the University's fundraising efforts for the upcoming academic year.

The students were chosen by a panel of judges who reviewed their applications and interviews.

The show is taped in Burbank, California, and the contestants will be flown to the studio to record their episodes.

The University hopes to raise $10,000 from the contest to support its programs and services.

Two-year-old Emily Louisi, of National Park, Md., won the SCDM national student elections for the first time in the school's history.

Emily Louisi, a senior at the University of Pennsylvania, won the election by one vote, defeating her opponent, a junior. Louisi will now serve as president of the student government for the next two years.

The election was held on campus last week, and Louisi won by a margin of one vote. She will now lead the student government in its efforts to improve the campus and support the University's mission.

The election was open to all students and was held in conjunction with the University's annual spring break festivities.

The University's student government is responsible for a wide range of campus activities, including athletics, student services, and campus events.

The election was held in a climate of excitement and energy, as students voted on a variety of issues, including housing, food, and campus security.

Emily Louisi said she was thrilled to have won the election and would work hard to improve the campus and support the University's mission.

The University's student government is an important and influential body on campus, and Emily Louisi will have a significant role in shaping the future of the University.

UA backs required racism class Proposal to be evaluated by students, faculty

By ANDREW GOLDBERG

The undergraduate Assembly overwhelmingly sent last night to support mandatory half-semester classes on racism and race relations.

The plan, which would begin next semester as a non-mandatory pilot program, was created by Students for Racial Education and would require all incoming freshmen to attend the classes. Students would attend the classes twice a week, or one in a non-full-time basis.

The UA resolution calls for the general education curriculum to be evaluated by the students and faculty members administering the class to determine its feasibility.

College junior Scott Berger, who presented Students for Racial Education's proposal at the meeting, said, "The UA should get involved in this before it's too late." Berger added that the classes, which would consist of one hour of class and one hour of discussion, will be mandatory for all incoming freshmen.

Wharton chair honors dean

In Brief:

The Wharton School has named Edward J. Schlosser, former dean of the university, as the new Wharton School chair. Schlosser will be responsible for the development of the school's programs and will serve as the liaison between the faculty and the administration.

The school will also be seeking a new dean to replace Schlosser, who is currently serving as interim dean.

Farrakhan Makes His Point.

Congressional Condolence:
In January, The Daily Pennsylvania called Farrakhan'sCondolence,"in service and support of all the talk about Louis Farrakhan was anything more than just talk.

And in March the DP questioned whether Farrakhan had any real message for people, black or white.

Last week Conrad Trotz told Farrakhan that he was not just talking. And moreover, Farrakhan posited that he is speaking to and for powerful. Black people could do far worse if they are listening.

Although Farrakhan has many admirers, no more than a handful of students on campus are followers of the Nation of Islam, and it has always been difficult to: what Farrakhan is really about.

Two years ago, when he came to the University, Tildad said that he believed in the Nation because it offered a whole philosophy of life, in contrast to the political and not just leftist, work. Legitimate, it was une to see what Tildad found to attract him. Perhaps with Farrakhan or not, one had to admit the way he忡ed the image of the black man, reaching from Marxism to the concept of political em- bethed in the University's history.

For Farrakhan, the problem of racism at the University have been more than a startling shock to the system for students. Farmakhan told The Daily Pennsylvania that: "I think it's a problem of the world's problems.

If you think of the two divergent messages. We are more concerned that we are content with the status quo, that's the problem. But the problems are here, and we need to confront them.

Tillard said that he believed in the Nation because its political. Ihe next two weeks, for example, are a period of one semester after the exam has been received. A student may not take any final examination on any one calendar day.

The FBI says mob clan losing its control

FBI agents have linked a group of mobsters to the hijackers who took over a Kuwait Airways jumbo jet in December 1983. The hijackers released an ailing hijacker and flew the plane to Kuwait. The FBI believes the hijackers were part of a mob clan.

The hijackers demanded that the Kuwaiti government release a convicted Ukrainian-born defendant named Demjanjuk, 68, who was accused of war crimes during World War II.

Demjanjuk had been detained in Israel for 40 years after being interned in a Nazi death camp. He was eventually freed in 1989.

The FBI has identified one of the hijackers as Suleiman al-Ibrahim, who was accused of hijacking a Kuwait Airways flight in 1983.

The FBI is investigating whether other members of the mob clan may be involved in the hijacking.

In other news, the Senate was considering a bill to increase the minimum wage to $15 per hour.

Phibious task force are due to arrive to meet's amid the Mediterranean.

April 19-20, 1991

Saudi Arabia's state-run news service, Saudi Arabia's News Agency (SPA), said Monday that four ships from the U.S. Navy were due to arrive in Naples, Italy, to assist in the investigation of the attack.

The attack on the U.S. embassy in Naples, Italy, left four people dead and dozens injured, according to SPA. The attack was the latest in a series of bombings and other attacks targeting Americans in the region.

"The attack was carried out by Islamic militants, a senior official of the American embassy said today. Police said at least five people were killed, including two Americans and a British citizen.

"The investigation into the attack is ongoing, and we are working closely with Italian authorities to determine the identity of the individuals involved," the official said.

The attack comes amid growing concerns about the security of U.S. embassies and other American facilities in the region, following a series of similar attacks in recent months.

Military sources said the attack was a response to the killing of a U.S. soldier in a friendly fire incident in Saudi Arabia last month.

"We're going to extend the ramp inspections, which we began on March 10, to all U.S. embassies in the region," the official said.

The ramp inspections are part of ongoing efforts to enhance security at U.S. facilities in the region, following the attacks on the U.S. embassies in Khartoum, Sudan, and Caracas, Venezuela, earlier this year.

"We're working closely with our counterparts in the region to prevent similar incidents from occurring again," the official said.

Spring Festival jumping by violence

Temple University is one of the schools that have faced similar incidents over the years. The student government has been criticized for not taking more aggressive measures to prevent violence at events. (Photo by Greg Swenson)

The weekend that closed out spring featured the 34th Annual Spring Festival at Temple, an event that draws nearly 2300 people, 15 groups per-performance, and 68000+ people over the weekend. It was also an opportunity for Temple students to see the sights, meet a lot of new people, and to relax after a long academic year.

The Temple ruling comes at a time when several incidents at similar events have sown concerns among students and administration about the safety of those who attend. The university is expected to release a report on the ruling later today.

Dougherty's desire to improvise offensively is one from the Quakers' 10-8 win over Dartmouth, thus becoming the all-time win leader Seaman had forseen for him.

M. Tennis stumbles at Brown, Yale

By BILL KRUPP

The weekend was a test of character, the Penn men's tennis team passed. But the Quakers failed another test in the form of a 7-1 tiebreaker loss to the Brown Bears on Saturday.

Actually, Penn had two tennis matches, and the first was a rather trying 4-3 win over Dartmouth on Friday. It was the second that proved to be the heartbreaker for Penn.

"It was a hard match. We were down 3-0 in the first set, but we came back to win the second set and then lose the third," said junior Charles "Virgil" DeMott. "It was a real performance, and I was really proud of the way we played."

The match was a close one, as Penn took the first set 6-3, but lost the second set 6-2 before winning the third set 6-2.

"We were really nervous, and we were really tired," said senior Pete Speigel. "But we were able to come back and win the third set.

The Quakers then moved on to play Brown on Saturday, and the match was even more intense.

"It was a really tough match, and we were down 4-1 at one point," said senior Tim Fiscus. "But we were able to come back and win the last two sets.

"We were really happy to win," said DeMott. "We were really excited to win the match."
McEnroe takes Japan Open

TOKYO — John McEnroe, serving strongly and volleying at the net, easily defeated Edberg 6-2, 6-2, 7-5 to win the men's singles final of the Japan Open Tennis Championships yesterday and add to his growing list of tennis honors.

Navratilova tops Sabatini to win Bausch & Lomb

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. — Martina Navratilova used a strong serve and volley to defeat Gabriela Sabatini 6-2, 6-1 in just 79 minutes yesterday and win the $300,000 Bausch & Lomb Championships.

For the second-straight Navratilova, 34, increased her career total to 199 and her fifth title this year and the second time in as many years that she has defeated Sabatini 2-0.

"I played well and she didn’t. She made errors. She can’t serve as well as I can. She can’t fake. She can’t attack. She can’t hit as well as I can. She doesn’t have the same ability," said Navratilova, 34, after her 6th round four set victory. "It was a good day for me. I was hitting the ball well. She was hitting the ball too low too much. She was serving better than I have been. I was hitting the ball better than she had been."

Starting bets Brzezinski to keep wellestling title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Marlon Brzezinski and Mark Chidley thought twice. Neither of them boarded his boat.

At the end of a rather dull 12 1/2 hour final, Robby Robin, 20, of Las Vegas, finished still the World Wrestling Champion and inactivated his nemesis Chidley, 20, of London, 50-22. Chidley was the international wrestling champion by virtue of a draw.

"Mark made the better technical move," said Brzezinski. "Mark was never in the lead."

I felt it on the line in the 41st minute. I thought I was."

Two of the three judges gave the match to Brzezinski and the third called the last four: 1-1-1. The Olympic champion left just short of bragging rights and has missed several tournaments after breaking his hand in training.

"John is about 90-100 percent compared to his best days," said Bogdan, 19. The Czechoslovakian defeated Vildseth 20, and 6-0, 6-2, 6-2 in the final.

Alyshea noshes Ferdinand in San Bernardino race

ACADIA, Calif. — Alyshea noshed Ferdinand by a nose in the 1500m San Bernardino Handicap at Santa Anita yesterday in the meeting of the two Kentucky Derby winners.

Argentine-bred Good Time finished a surprising second, third horse back. Alyshea has now beaten Ferdinand twice, after also winning the $1 100,000 San Luis Rey at Santa Anita last month.

Ferdinand won the $3 646,000 Kentucky Derby in April.

With Chris McCarron calling, Alyshea made a strong break early and put Ferdinand to the rear. The two battled head-to-head through the stretch and Alyshea ran away in the shadow of the wire, winning by a neck.

The winning, timed in 1:54 1/5, and 10th, returned $6, $2.20 and $2.20. Ferdinand paid $2.20 and $2.20 and $30. Ferdinand paid $2.20 and $2.20 and $30.

Dougherty now flows in Penn's flexible offense

B. THOMAS HILL

Imagine Sean Dougherty as a linchpin of the old dollar-bill-attached-to-a-string scam. Every time he reached for the bill, some villain around the corner would pull the bill away. Again and again and again. Until finally, in frustration, he decided to give up — at least in appearance.

That's what he did in year one. But he did something different this year. Penn's 21-3 win over Dartmouth Saturday didn't stop the con of that scam for Dougherty. He took advantage of the Big Green's defensive decision to.

On the Sidelines

Dougherty's front line in favor of concealing the bill on the field. Dougherty, in senior goal selection, fired and added one assist, making the game his first outing as a senior producer at Penn.

For the freshmen who have not experienced the past, the weekend was simply the start of a new era for Penn baseball. But everyone reacts differently to victory. "At first, we didn't know what was going on," said senior left fielder Al Meyers concurred. "We knew we had a good day, but we didn't know how good. Now we're ready for next weekend."

This attitude will be especially important for the rest of the year. Penn cannot afford to let up now that "The biggest two games of the season that this team has won,” according to Seaman as their general.

Penn's Dough Noditi delivers an offering to the plate in one of the Quakers' four wins over the weekend.

The second game against Princeton, however, the Quakers' pitching staff was spectacularly followed a few weeks ago. This was the offense that kept the game in check from the start on. Penn's Assistant Coach Bill Wagner said, "We did what we wanted to do..."

"I don't do anything to win," said Costalou. "I just do things to keep the ball in the park."

Big Green "We know we could outrun them with our big arms," he said. "If we could, we'd take the ball with us."

M. Lax rolls to 23-2 romp of Big Green

By BARRY DUBIN

HANOVER, N.H. — Please excuse Penn men's lacrosse coach Tony Seaman for the following remarks, for it's not every day that his team scores 23 goals. In fact, the Quakers have never scored more than 21 goals in a game in the history of the program.

"We can't do anything to win," said Costalou. "I just do things to keep the ball in the park."
