Alpha Chi Rho frat suspended for one year

The administration announced that the fraternity will not be allowed to participate in extracurricular activities for one year. This follows an investigation of an alleged hazing incident that occurred in 1989. The fraternity will be required to adopt a new code of conduct and undergo mandatory training in alcohol and drug awareness.

Administration to analyze major student life policies

The University has announced that it will be conducting a review of all of its major student life policies, including the judicial system, in response to the recent incident involving the fraternity. The review will be led by a task force of faculty and student representatives, and will be conducted in conjunction with the Office of Fraternity and Sorority Affairs.

Moskovits deemed competent for trial

Alexander Moskovits, who is accused of cocaine trafficking, has been deemed competent to stand trial. This decision comes after a long legal battle, during which Moskovits fought to avoid a possible life sentence.

Date rape quickly traumatizes college students across the U.S.

A nationwide survey conducted by the University of Pennsylvania found that one in eight women and one in 12 men have experienced date rape. The survey also found that many victims do not report the crime to the police.

SCUE report calls plan a small success

By MICHELLE GREEN

It’s hard enough to put on a show in the theater, but the College’s Thursday night production of "Personals," the college’s first murdered-murderer scenario, was on a shoestring budget and a limited stage, heavy accent and little potential for realistic lighting.

But the show, which was developed and was performed by the College’s new Drama Club, was not only an entertaining evening, it also served as a showcase for the College’s new, experimental educational program.

The program, called "Personals," was developed by the Drama Club and was performed by the College’s new, experimental educational program.

THEATRE LAB FACTS UP

If you are starting a new job next year... thought what the presentation of an appearance, financial aid for black, one of the prevalent occupational problems, to have been identified in the past. The presentation was based on the committee's recommendations. The report included a discussion of the key factors associated with the problem, including the economic and social conditions that contribute to it. The report also included recommendations for action, including the development of new strategies for addressing the issue. The presentation was well-received, and the audience was engaged in the discussion. Overall, the presentation was a valuable contribution to the ongoing dialogue on this important issue.

The following is a statement from Alpha Chi Rho con- cerning the suspension for the next school year.

At this time we feel that it is necessary to state in the University community regarding the sus- pension of two members of our society. It is our firm belief that the actions of these two individuals is not consistent with our values and philosophy. We have heard that some questions have been raised about our suspension. We feel that these questions are not relevant to the current situation.

Alpha Chi Rho has a long history of service to the University community. Our members are committed to the ideals of community service and leadership. We are proud of our achievements and look forward to continuing our work in the future.

The suspension of these two members is based on their actions, not on any rumors or speculations.

Phi Delta, Phi Gamma sisters tried for strip incidents

By PATRICK O'DOWD

The administration has approved a new set of guidelines for the fraternity sisters, implementing a dry rush policy for the first time.

In an attempt to prevent incidents like those that occurred recently, the Phi Delta Theta sisters are required to have a dry rush policy for the first time. This policy will be implemented starting next fall.

According to the new guidelines, all sisters will be required to attend a meeting with the fraternity brothers before the rush period begins. During this meeting, the sisters will be informed of the dry rush policy and will be expected to follow it.

The dry rush policy requires that all sisters adhere to strict guidelines, including:

- No alcohol consumption
- No smoking
- No drugs

Violations of these guidelines can result in disciplinary action, including suspension or expulsion.

In addition, the Phi Delta Theta sisters must also attend a series of workshops and seminars on topics such as

- Leadership
- Communication
- Conflict resolution

These workshops will be led by professional trainers and will be mandatory for all sisters.

Phi Delta Theta sisters who violate the new guidelines will be subject to disciplinary action, which may include suspension or expulsion.

Phi Gamma sisters also tried for strip incidents

By BRUCE MICKLE

Campus women's organization launched the administration in its suit and asked that the fraternity be expelled from the University.

According to the suit, the fraternity has a history of incidents involving illicit activities, such as hiring female strippers to perform at events.

In addition, the Phi Delta Theta sisters are also being investigated by the judicial inquiry office for similar violations.

A statement from the Phi Delta Theta sisters said that they were surprised by the accusations and that they will cooperate fully with the investigation.

The Phi Delta Theta sisters have also been ordered to pay damages to the women's organization.

Gore leaves race, hints at future bids

WASHINGTON - Sen. Al Gore gave up his 1988 White House bid yesterday, offering the concession speech that had been his campaign for nearly a month. He was one of two remaining candidates for the Democratic nomination. "It is true that mine has come to an end," Gore said in a speech punctuated by tears, "and I now face the decision that every candidate faces."

He conceded in a phone call to President Reagan yesterday. The move, after a week of ominous signs, left Jimmy Carter as the Democratic nominee and his former vice president as the major contender for the vice presidency.

Gore's defeat, coupled with the narrow losses of New York Gov. Mario M. Cuomo and Mr. Reagan in the delegate sweepstakes, ended a nationwide campaign that was expected to drag into the summer. Gore's supporters were not ready to accept the decision, and the electoral battle continued.

"I am not ready to say that it is over," said Gore, who has not yet decided what he will do after his campaign. "It is true that this campaign may be over for me, but it is not over for the white people of the South, of the West or anywhere else, who are committed to the cause of change and who have supported me in this attempt.

"I am not ready to say that the decision has been made. I am not ready to give up. I am not ready to say that I am not going to campaign.

"I am not ready to say that the decision has been made. I am not ready to give up. I am not ready to say that I am not going to campaign.

Bank robbers release 42 to end siege, but escape with two hostages

On an overcast afternoon, 42 hostages were released after 24 hours in a bank in this city of 120,000 on the Pacific coast. The two fleeing robbers, who had barricaded the building, turned it over to a committee of 12 to negotiate a safe escape. The plan was for the police to come in and arrest the hostages.

The siege started Saturday night when the robbers, who had been in the bank for two hours, demanded the surrender of a number of police officers who had been in the area earlier. The police tried to negotiate with the robbers, but they refused to talk. The robbers then started a fire in the bank and began to barricade the building.

The police then moved in and arrested the hostages, who were taken to a nearby police station. The robbers then fled the scene.

The hostages are all fine, but they are upset by the incident. They are being held in a safe place and will be taken to a hospital for a check-up.

Los Mochis, Mexico — Seven gunmen who held 42 people hostage in a bank in this city of 120,000 on the Pacific coast were arrested Saturday night when the police moved in and arrested the hostages, who were taken to a nearby police station. The robbers then fled the scene.

Harold Stassen makes eighth bid for the presidency — at 80

By GRACE MIPSNER

Harold Stassen is an unusual man. At 68, when most people are thinking of retiring and enjoying retirement, he is seeking the Republican presidential nomination. It is his eighth attempt at the nomination, and he is not about to stop. But what makes Stassen so unusual? He is not a career politician. He has never been a member of Congress. He has never been a governor. He has never been a Cabinet member. He has never been a delegate to the convention. Yet, he continues to run for the presidency. Why? What is it about Stassen that makes him so unique?

Stassen was born in 1899 in New York City. He attended the University of Minnesota and later earned his law degree from the University of Michigan. He served in the Army during World War II and returned to Michigan to practice law. In 1953, he was elected to the U.S. Senate from Minnesota.

During his tenure in the Senate, Stassen was known for his firm stance on defense and foreign policy. He was a strong supporter of the U.S. military and advocated for increased defense spending. He was also a critic of the Vietnam War and opposed the U.S. involvement in the conflict.

In 1960, Stassen ran for the presidency as a Republican. He finished third in the nomination contest, but his campaign had a lasting impact. Stassen's candidacy brought attention to the need for a new party with a more modern message. In 1964, he ran again and finished second to Barry Goldwater. Stassen continued to campaign for the nomination in 1968, 1972, and 1976, but never came close to winning.

Stassen's last run for the nomination was in 1980. At 80 years old, he made a final effort to capture the nomination, but was unable to gain the necessary support from the delegates.

Despite his age and lack of political experience, Stassen continued to campaign for the nomination. His persistence and dedication to the cause of American nationalism inspired many. He was a true American patriot who believed in the values of hard work, individual responsibility, and strong national defense.

Stassen's legacy lives on in the Republican Party. His campaign for the nomination was a turning point for the party, as it began to move away from the Southern wing and embrace a more inclusive and diverse platform.

In conclusion, Harold Stassen was a unique and exceptional figure in American politics. His eight attempts at the presidency, despite his lack of political experience, demonstrate his commitment to the cause of American nationalism. His legacy continues to inspire and influence the Republican Party to this day.
Students display little interest in political elections, activities

By GRACE SHIPPEN

Students across the academic community feel that politics is a difficult enough without wanting to involve themselves in political events. Maybe that is why most students don't pay attention to the elections.

Low turnouts may be in part because of student political apathy, according to many student leaders at the University. However, others believe that the problem is with the voting places and the continued inability of the students to understand the political processes.

"I don't think they are interested," said Mike Tropea. "If there aren't enough people who are interested, then the candidates and politicians aren't going to care about the student's opinions." But back in February, when the situation was much more lively, a tragic blow to his crusade.

The combination force of George Bush's clean image and the continued inability of the students to understand the political processes caused the problem.

"The problem is more important than voting," Tropea said. "They are looking for a leader to represent them, but I don't think that they are going to care about the student's opinions." But back in February, when the situation was much more lively, a tragic blow to his crusade.

The Findings of Fact

1. After the Poorly Prepared "FAP," a "mimicking" and regular" striptease was conducted by a member of AXP on October 1, 1987, which was attended by 120 to 150 members and guests. The purpose of the performance was to solicit contributions toward a Christmas tree. A member of AXP dressed as a woman and performed a striptease. After the performance, the woman stood behind the audience and collected money. The performance occurred in a stairwell off the Rush Event, and the audience was approximately 150 people. A man who received the money was seated in front of the audience.

2. There were many complaints about the striptease. It was described as "too sexual" and "too intimate." There were also concerns about the safety of the audience. During the performance, one audience member was touched by the woman.

3. AP filled out a report on the event to the Office of Institutional Affairs. The report stated that the performance was "too sexual" and "too intimate." The Office of Institutional Affairs acted on the report, and AXP was notified of the incident.

4. AXP was notified of the incident, and they were given the opportunity to respond. AXP chose not to respond. As a result, AXP was placed on "suspension" for a period of six months.

5. The Office of Institutional Affairs also contacted the ISAB to discuss the incident. The ISAB ruled that AXP had violated the university's code of conduct.

6. AXP was placed on "suspension" for a period of six months. During this time, AXP was not allowed to conduct any activities or events. As a result, AXP was unable to conduct the Rush Event for the following year.

7. The incident was also reported to the fraternity, and AXP was suspended for the following year. As a result, AXP was unable to conduct the Rush Event for the following year.

8. The incident was also reported to the fraternity council, and AXP was suspended for the following year. As a result, AXP was unable to conduct the Rush Event for the following year.

9. The incident was also reported to the fraternity, and AXP was suspended for the following year. As a result, AXP was unable to conduct the Rush Event for the following year.

OBERSALZBURG ADDRESS

In 1915 the Ottoman Turkish government put into operation a ruthless policy of genocide which, by the end of World War I, had resulted in the violent deaths of 1.5 Million Armenian men, women, and children, the depopulation and usurpation of the historic Armenian homeland, and the dispersion of the remnants of the Armenian people across the globe.

To date, the Turkish government refuses to acknowledge the historical occurrence of the genocide despite overwhelming documentation eyewitness accounts. Instead, it has persistently adopted a brazen and deliberate policy of denial and distortion.

We, the descendants of the survivors of the genocide, will never forget the heinous crime committed against our people; nor will we remain indifferent to the grave injustice which Turkey continues to perpetrate.

More people choose AT&T over any other long distance service. Because with AT&T, it costs less than you think to get the service you expect, like clearer connections, 24-hour AT&T operator assistance, instant credit on wrong numbers. And the assurance that we can put virtually every one of your calls through the first time. That's the genius of the AT&T Instant Connect Network.

So when it's time to make a choice, remember, it pays to choose AT&T.

If you'd like to know more about our products or services, or need a new card, call us at 1 800 222-0300.

AT&T The right choice.

Lightweights travel to Princeton

B. TRISHA OBST

In 1965, Princeton President Woodrow Wilson announced the creation of the Lightweights to provide a stepping stone toward the construction of a new law school. The Lightweights, as Princeton University's lightweight rowing team, are a crucial piece of Princeton's history. The team's rigorous training and competitive spirit continue to this day, making it a significant part of the Princeton University community.

Heavyweights vie for Blackwell Cup

M. MARK BRONOWSKI

The Harvard-Columbia Lightweight Regatta is an annual event that both universities look forward to. This year's regatta was particularly exciting, with both teams pushing their limits to achieve victory. The competition was fierce, and both teams demonstrated their skill and determination throughout the event.
