AIDS infects 1 out of 300 on campuses

BY CHERRY FAMILY

Preliminary results from blood tests conducted on college campuses suggest that one of every 300 college students is HIV positive. According to University Health Services, 10 academic planning committees that will form the basis of the University's next five-year plan in "The University's future."

The survey used a randomly selected sample of 41 students who were asked to participate in the study.

The survey was conducted by the University's Student Health Services, which is responsible for testing HIV-positive students.

The survey results indicate that one of every 300 college students is HIV positive. This is consistent with the findings of similar studies conducted at other colleges and universities.

The survey results also indicate that the prevalence of HIV among college students is increasing. This trend is likely to continue as more students become aware of the risks associated with HIV infection.

The survey results also indicate that there is a need for increased education and awareness about HIV infection and its prevention. This is particularly important on college campuses, where many students are at increased risk for HIV infection.

The survey results also indicate that there is a need for increased support for HIV-positive students. This includes providing access to appropriate medical care and support services, as well as providing opportunities for social and emotional support.

The survey results also indicate that there is a need for increased research on HIV infection and its prevention. This includes research on the epidemiology of HIV infection, as well as research on the development of new treatments and prevention strategies.

The survey results also indicate that there is a need for increased collaboration among educators, health care providers, and community organizations in order to address the challenges posed by HIV infection.

The survey results also indicate that there is a need for increased political commitment to addressing the challenges posed by HIV infection. This includes increased funding for HIV-related research and prevention programs, as well as increased support for HIV-positive students and families.
Philadelphia is full of restaurants that serve dishes you can’t pronounce. In amounts you can hardly use. At prices only eight people in all of America can actually afford.

So we put together a menu that makes it possible for you to set out without having to sell your BMW. Specification书中 that start at $445 and finish nearly a 40_DIR. of $1150 and Police that are almost as long as the Eagle’s Nest Four, but seriously more tender. Fish, pastas, soups, sandwiches and even real meals that supply side foods can work in this century. So come on. Any country that can run up a national deficit of three trillion can easily afford to treat you.

WHEN THE CHECK COMES YOU WON’T NEED A STUDENT LOAN.

By GEOFF TAUdBk

Police have had a bizarre rash of break-ins that have struck a University parking lot located 32nd and Walnut Streets last month.

According to one account, a man was found looting a car on Monday, and a second incident occurred Tuesday morning through his car but did not steal anything.

However, the car owner reported that a man with a broken arm was trying to damage, including a smashed dashboard, a credit card and a flat tire.

Although Public Safety has not established and has no plans to establish a town watch program, the program will cause a number of volunteers.

The University police will be there to act as another "eyes and ears of the community," Robinson said. "We’ll be there to act as another vote to catch a man trying to do damage in an attempt to scare away the campus.

Police have no leads in a bizarre rash of vehicle break-ins that have struck a University parking lot located 32nd and Walnut parking lot attracts far as five blocks away from campus, he said that he is op-

Canadian agreed that by giving students first hand advice on security problems, the program will increase student awareness of the security issues.

Several University officials already monitor vehicle parking through Public Safety’s Campus Support Unit work-study program, but the CUA program only provides patrols for off-campus locations.

UA Chairmen Wasserstrom said last night that he expects the program to strengthen the UA’s presence on campus.

"Hopefully, [the town watch program] will demonstrate to the students that we are doing things to help students involved in helping other students and themselves," Wasserstrom said.

32nd and Walnut parking lot attracts recent rash of automobile break-ins

The UA has not determined how many volunteers the program will need, and members hope to begin patrols by the end of the month.

UA representation will meet with officials of the Philadelphia Police Department next week to discuss the details of the program. Robinson said that the report of stu-

Friday, November 4, 1988

所做的内容是关于一个班级要求，根据

Credit Card

Major

American Express / Mastercard / Visa

NONESUCH

VOCAL

Spirits of Philadelphia

The Executive Board of The Daily Pennsylvania

Defying Panorama Inc for the newspaper’s

The Daily Pennsylvania Inc.

Please see BREAK-INS, page 4

Corrections

UA to implement town watch

In an effort to bolster security on campus, the Undergraduate Assembly announced this week that it plans to create a "town watch" program to patrol off-campus areas.

Fashioned after a similar neighborhood watch at Drexel University, the program will recruit up to 120 volunteers to patrol parking lots at 32nd and Walnut Streets and the student parking lots.

According to organizers, the patrol routes will be designed around Public Safety routes, so that security off-

The message has set authority for the content concerning that content should be averted any way regardless for the newspaper’s accuracy of a story cat David Laako.

Spirits of Philadelphia

The Executive Board of The Daily Pennsylvania

Defying Panorama Inc for the newspaper’s

The Daily Pennsylvania Inc.

Please see BREAK-INS, page 4

Corrections

UA to implement town watch

In an effort to bolster security on campus, the Undergraduate Assembly announced this week that it plans to create a "town watch" program to patrol off-campus areas.

Fashioned after a similar neighborhood watch at Drexel University, the program will recruit up to 120 volunteers to patrol parking lots at 32nd and Walnut Streets and the student parking lots.

According to organizers, the patrol routes will be designed around Public Safety routes, so that security off-

The message has set authority for the content concerning that content should be averted any way regardless for the newspaper’s accuracy of a story cat David Laako.

Spirits of Philadelphia

The Executive Board of The Daily Pennsylvania

Defying Panorama Inc for the newspaper’s

The Daily Pennsylvania Inc. 1988
Wisconsin campus polarized by racial incidents at frats

Pledge event touches off latest controversy

Wisconsin student Chris Hocksma sits chained to a bench outside of the school's ZBT fraternity house.

The ZBT incident has dominated headlines in the school's daily paper.

The ZBT incident marks the first time the student committee will act on a governing body. The student committee "power is something that we have not had in the past for its handling of previous problems," said a student who preferred not to be named. "We have been reacting to problems by having peers exert influence over each other for such acts, it gets repetition," Roy said.

The latest controversy at ZBT has furth er contributed to a polarization of the community, forcing a wedge between those who feel that the administration has been slow to respond to the crisis and those who feel such incidents are isolated events caused by racial insensitivity rather than a larger systemic problem.

Response to the incident from the community provides evidence of the larger problem at Madison's campus. The school's Minority Coalition issued a statement last week condemning all forms of oppression and inciting investigation into their value to the university community.

But the editor of one of the school's two daily newspapers, Mike Hildenbrand, said he was frustrated by a_ZBT pledge who performed the offensive skit and that the entire incident would have been over.

When asked if there is a way to break the race divide on the campus, he replied: "It's the same thing over and over again. If they would have..."

Many students, including Hildenbrand, argue that the administration's failure to take swift action in response to the ZBT affair has resulted in a breakdown of race relations on campus.

"What the University is doing is to adopt the policy of being against racism without taking any action," he said.

"They're not doing anything," Hildenbrand explained. "They say they're above the fray. The university is supposed to be the Madison's campus purpose to improve ethnic relations.

The pledge event is expected to prompt increased recruitment of minority faculty members, and to establish a multi-cultural meeting room.

The university has spent a lot of time and money on diversity education, but the pledge event has led to student and student-organized events that are not being addressed by the university.

"It's the same thing over and over again. If they would have allowed us to view the videotape. I don't think the university is acting as carefully as it should," Hildenbrand said.

The student committee has not been in action to show the community what it can do, said Hildenbrand. "It's the same thing over and over again. If they would have..."

Many students, including Hildenbrand, argue that the administration's failure to take swift action in response to the ZBT affair has resulted in a breakdown of race relations on campus.

"What the University is doing is to adopt the policy of being against racism without taking any action," he said.

"They're not doing anything," Hildenbrand explained. "They say they're above the fray. The university is supposed to be the Madison's campus purpose to improve ethnic relations.

The pledge event is expected to prompt increased recruitment of minority faculty members, and to establish a multi-cultural meeting room.

The university has spent a lot of time and money on diversity education, but the pledge event has led to student and student-organized events that are not being addressed by the university.

"It's the same thing over and over again. If they would have allowed us to view the videotape. I don't think the university is acting as carefully as it should," Hildenbrand said.
On Campus

Events

Mon., Nov. 7

HOCKEY—PENN vs nationally ranked to-wa State tomorrow, 5pm Franklin Room, Houston Hall. The rally will begin at 4pm Monday November 7th. in the 387-8106 lounge For more information Ira

MARCH AGAINST the Klan Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!

MARCH AGAINST THE KLAN The Partisan Defense Committee has announced that the Klan's "White Pride Day" rally, which was also

AIDS infects 1 of 300 college students

AIDS, from page 1

The Partisan Defense Committee has announced that the Klan's "White Pride Day" rally, which was also infects 1 of 300 college students

Troupe takes social issues to the stage

BY LYNN WESLAYER

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage in its attempt to help college students tackle a range of pressing issues, from drug rehabilitation to medical research. The program is a part of its annual Oberammergau production composed of undergraduate and graduate students and a facility. The group sets its themes in issues and social 1,000 students who have tested positive for

Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!

AIDS infects 1 of 300 college students

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage

BY LYNN WESLAYER

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage in its attempt to help college students tackle a range of pressing issues, from drug rehabilitation to medical research. The program is a part of its annual Oberammergau production composed of undergraduate and graduate students and a facility. The group sets its themes in issues and social 1,000 students who have tested positive for

Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!

AIDS infects 1 of 300 college students

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage

BY LYNN WESLAYER

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage in its attempt to help college students tackle a range of pressing issues, from drug rehabilitation to medical research. The program is a part of its annual Oberammergau production composed of undergraduate and graduate students and a facility. The group sets its themes in issues and social 1,000 students who have tested positive for

Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!

AIDS infects 1 of 300 college students

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage

BY LYNN WESLAYER

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage in its attempt to help college students tackle a range of pressing issues, from drug rehabilitation to medical research. The program is a part of its annual Oberammergau production composed of undergraduate and graduate students and a facility. The group sets its themes in issues and social 1,000 students who have tested positive for

Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!

AIDS infects 1 of 300 college students

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage

BY LYNN WESLAYER

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage in its attempt to help college students tackle a range of pressing issues, from drug rehabilitation to medical research. The program is a part of its annual Oberammergau production composed of undergraduate and graduate students and a facility. The group sets its themes in issues and social 1,000 students who have tested positive for

Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!

AIDS infects 1 of 300 college students

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage

BY LYNN WESLAYER

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage in its attempt to help college students tackle a range of pressing issues, from drug rehabilitation to medical research. The program is a part of its annual Oberammergau production composed of undergraduate and graduate students and a facility. The group sets its themes in issues and social 1,000 students who have tested positive for

Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!

AIDS infects 1 of 300 college students

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage

BY LYNN WESLAYER

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage in its attempt to help college students tackle a range of pressing issues, from drug rehabilitation to medical research. The program is a part of its annual Oberammergau production composed of undergraduate and graduate students and a facility. The group sets its themes in issues and social 1,000 students who have tested positive for

Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!

AIDS infects 1 of 300 college students

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage

BY LYNN WESLAYER

TROUPE takes social issues to the stage in its attempt to help college students tackle a range of pressing issues, from drug rehabilitation to medical research. The program is a part of its annual Oberammergau production composed of undergraduate and graduate students and a facility. The group sets its themes in issues and social 1,000 students who have tested positive for

Let us help you design a Picture-Perfect Career!
Poll says U. students favor Dukakis

POLLS, from page 1

Four students had what they believe to be a very active day yesterday. They spent the afternoon canvassing the campus for President Dukakis. The students were part of the campaign to support Dukakis over George Bush.

The students stated that they canvassed the campus from 2:30 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. They stated that they went door-to-door and talked to as many people as possible.

They stated that they had a positive response from most of the people they talked to. They said that many people were impressed by Dukakis and his campaign.

They also stated that they received some negative feedback, but they were not discouraged. They said that they continued to talk to people and try to persuade them to vote for Dukakis.

They stated that they believed that their efforts would make a difference in the election. They said that they believed that every vote counts and that their canvassing would help to ensure a victory for Dukakis.

They ended their day by returning to their dorm rooms and preparing for tomorrow's election.

They stated that they were looking forward to tomorrow's election and to the opportunity to make a difference. They said that they believed that their efforts would make a difference in the election.

They ended their day by returning to their dorm rooms and preparing for tomorrow's election.
Culture Clash

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the article about the incident which took place on Monday, Chapter 21 in Pup College Hall. The incident escalated after an apparent act of rudeness on the part of a campus police officer. We believe it is important to mention about the mypole that the “whiteness” played a significant role in the exchange. This fact was left out, and as a result many students were left feeling that we were not in the right to comment. While we agree that racista behavior should be accorded to minorities of all races, we believe that racism should be accorded to those of other races as well.

WILLIAM J. BORKOWSKI

Anti-Klan Rally

Although the announced KKK rally seems to be an event that is still important to present at the University, we believe it is important to consider the potential impact of this event on the climate of the University community. We believe that the event may have a negative effect on the diversity and inclusivity of the University community. In addition, we believe that the event may serve to reinforce stereotypes and prejudices about the KKK and the broader far-right movement.

ALICE ANILE

Letters to the Editor

Sarah Schmidt's article is a call to action for all those who value equality and freedom. It is a reminder that every person deserves to be treated with dignity and respect, regardless of their race, gender, or sexual orientation. The article emphasizes the importance of standing up against hate and discrimination and working towards a more just and equitable society.

DEBRA WENDT

Sarah Schmidt's article is a powerful reminder of the importance of standing up against hate and discrimination. It is a call to action for all those who value equality and freedom, and a reminder that every person deserves to be treated with dignity and respect, regardless of their race, gender, or sexual orientation. The article emphasizes the importance of working towards a more just and equitable society.

WILLIAM J. BORKOWSKI

Policy on Submissions

The Daily Pennsylvania welcomes comments from the University community on a variety of topics and issues. All columns, letters and commentaries appearing on this page represent the views of the authors and not necessarily the opinions of The Daily Pennsylvania. Manuscripts should be typewritten double spaced and should be no longer than two pages. Authors should clearly indicate their name, class standing, and major on their submissions.

A CHALLENGE, A CHANCE FOR ADVANCEMENT: BLACK STUDENTS

Sarah Schmidt is a graduate student in the humanities science department in College Hall. She has been an active member of the University community for several years and has been involved in various campus organizations. She is a strong believer in the importance of diversity and inclusion and has been a vocal advocate for social justice.

DOI: 10.1001/jama.2023.0002

The article emphasizes the importance of working towards a more just and equitable society. It is a call to action for all those who value equality and freedom, and a reminder that every person deserves to be treated with dignity and respect, regardless of their race, gender, or sexual orientation. The article emphasizes the importance of standing up against hate and discrimination and working towards a more just and equitable society.

WILLIAM J. BORKOWSKI

Sarah Schmidt's article is a powerful reminder of the importance of standing up against hate and discrimination. It is a call to action for all those who value equality and freedom, and a reminder that every person deserves to be treated with dignity and respect, regardless of their race, gender, or sexual orientation. The article emphasizes the importance of working towards a more just and equitable society.
Hackney rejects Open Expression revision

GUIDELINES, from page 1

... for the guidelines, is that they are not taken seriously. Although

Hackney's argument that the change

In her four years in eminent

You'll never miss a beat when you read the DP

ATTENTION: all students interested in RESEARCH!

THE NASSAU FUND

has been established to help fund outstanding undergraduate research

Submit proposals to the Office of Undergraduate Dean by NOVEMBER 10th

School of Arts and Sciences: Associate Dean for Undergraduate Studies, 100 Logan Hall

School of Engineering and Applied Science: Office of the Associate Dean for Undergraduate Education, 109 Towne Hall

School of Nursing: Office of the Associate Dean for Undergraduate Studies, 475 Nursing Education Bldg.

Wharton School: Office of the Vice Dean, Wharton Undergraduate Division, 1100 Steinberg-Dietrich Hall

Information sheets are available in Department Offices, Undergraduate Deans' offices and the Office of the Vice Provost for University Life.

at the new Cavanaugh's

39th and Sansom Streets
368-4869

SUNDAY
8.95 Buffet 8.95
All you can eat to 8 P.M.

COMPLIMENTARY PINT FROM 10 P.M. UNTIL MIDNIGHT

Turkey, Beef, Pasta, Salad, Vegetables, Soup, Dessert, much, much more.

MONDAY
Football - TV's 5-7 P.M.
54.00
( includes Draft Beer and Nachos during the game)

TUESDAY
Singer-Songwriter, Recording Artist
Jim Fenime

WEDNESDAY
Reggae SunSplash 10 P.M.
Tropical Drinks Specials

THURSDAY
WIOG Golden Gold 102
with Michael St. John
Dancing 10 P.M.

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
"DJ Dance" Party Dance

• visit our Dining Room

• enjoy our Beer Menu - SS Low, SS Unbelievable Weekly Specials
Israel's largest landlocked country, Jordan, has about 10 million people, mainly of Arab descent. Jordanian officials reported that representatives from the United States and Jordan met in Amman on November 19th to discuss the peace talks. Jordanian officials said the talks were aimed at finding ways to resolve the conflict between Israel and Jordan.

World

Venezuela

Venezuela's military has remained on high alert since the beginning of the week, following reports of a possible coup attempt. The military has been on standby since Saturday, when President Chavez announced that he would not attend his party's congress. Chavez's government has been under pressure from opposition parties to resign.

Israel

The Israeli military says it has killed at least 10 Palestinian suicide bombers in recent raids. The military said the bombers were trying to attack Israeli targets using explosives. The military has been targeting Gaza Strip and the West Bank in recent weeks, as part of its ongoing campaign to stop suicide bombings.

United States

The U.S. government is considering a major decision on whether to recognize the government of the People's Republic of China as the legitimate government of China. The decision, which could have significant implications for U.S.-Chinese relations, is expected to be made in the coming months.

South Korea

South Korea has started work on a new passenger terminal at Incheon International Airport, one of Asia's busiest. The new terminal is expected to be completed by 2020 and will have a capacity of 36 million passengers a year.

Malaysia

Malaysia's government has announced that it will establish a new committee to investigate the sinking of the ferry MV Jaya in the southeast Asian region. The ferry sank in the waters off the coast of Indonesia on October 17th, killing at least 114 people.

India

India's government has announced that it will launch a new national health insurance scheme, which is expected to cost around $5 billion a year. The scheme will cover around 500 million people, or about 70% of the population.

South Africa

South Africa's government has announced that it will increase the minimum wage by 5% in 2016. The increase will be retroactive to January 1st, and is expected to benefit around 10 million workers.

Mexico

Mexican officials have announced that they will tighten border controls to prevent illegal immigration. The move comes after a surge in the number of migrants entering the country, particularly from Central America.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will begin deporting thousands of immigrants who entered the country illegally. The deportations are expected to start in the coming weeks.

Spain

Spanish officials have announced that they will introduce new laws to combat corruption. The new laws include measures to increase transparency in government and to strengthen the role of the judiciary.

Germany

Germany's government has announced that it will increase its spending on renewable energy projects. The government plans to invest around $200 billion over the next decade to develop a new energy system.

Japan

Japanese officials have announced that they will increase the minimum wage by 3.4% in 2016. The increase is expected to benefit around 29 million workers.

China

Chinese officials have announced that they will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

Russia

Russian officials have announced that they will increase the minimum wage by 3.2% in 2016. The increase is expected to benefit around 20 million workers.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.

United States

The U.S. government has announced that it will increase spending on education and healthcare. The government plans to allocate around $350 billion over the next decade to improve these two sectors.
Maldives fend off mercenary attack

Indian paramilitaries flown in to establish order

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka—Foreign mercenary groups are taking over the Maldives and Indian paramilitaries, sent on several occasions to Male, the capital, to establish President Maumududin Abdul Gaffur, Maldivian officials said.

The officials reported Gaffur met with the mercenaries that came by plane, providing the mercenaries with a 'safe haven' in order to control. Gaffur is said to be in control. Everything is under control. Everybody is all right.

A senior Sri Lankan military official said former President Ibrahim Nasir of the Maldives was behind the attempt to overthrow Gaffur, who succeeded Nasir in 1978 and was in power for a three-year term until September 11.

Maldives officials said shooting would start only after the mercenaries arrived.

A senior Sri Lankan military official said former President Ibrahim Nasir of the Maldives was behind the attempt to overthrow Gaffur, who succeeded Nasir in 1978 and was in power for a three-year term until September 11.

Maldives has a population of about 180,000, most of whom speak Maldivian, a small, low-energy coastal islander

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned outsin Marseille said the vote was

No point, but he did.

He was the first to call a meeting of the National Islamic Front that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

In Male, the Maldivian officials, contacted by the West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.

Algerians vote to determine power of monopolistic party

ALGERIA—Algerians voted yesterday on constitutional changes inspired by bloody riots earlier this year.

The vote was held in the capital, Algiers, under the watchful eye of a West African army

President Chadli (Riad) Boudiaf has called a referendum program that eventually may lead to changing the country's ruling system, spread across a 500-mile chain

More than 95 percent of the 13.3 million eligible voters turned out.
Volleyball ready to reatly itself in Hofstra Classic

By TIFFANY SPARKS

For the Harvard men's soccer team, the season is over: the Crimson played its last game on Friday, winning 1-0 against George Mason. The team will now begin to prepare for the upcoming 1989 season.

This year, the Crimson was unable to claim a place in the NCAA tournament. However, the team did make progress, defeating several top teams and improving its overall record.

"We're not looking past this weekend to any other game," said head coach Steve Baumann. "We're just focusing on the immediate task at hand."
Penn looks to wound Leopards

Quakers seek respect in I-AA

BY ERNIE CORY

Penn thought it had at least a chance of an upset in its opener at No. 6 Maryland but the No. 19 Quakers got off to a slow start and were unable to make much of a dent in the Terrapins on Saturday.

Miller's cool head

Penn head coach Anne Miller handled the postgame news conference with her usual coolness. The Quakers, who played well in the first half, were embarrassed by Maryland in the second half.

Miller's team was not as competitive in the second half as it was in the first half. Maryland's quickness and athleticism were too much for the Quakers to handle.

In the second half, the Terrapins outscored the Quakers 31-10 and forced Miller to substitute her top players.

Miller said the Quakers were not able to translate their first-half success into the second half.

"We had a good first half and then in the second half we just got away from what we were doing," Miller said. "We made some mistakes in the second half and we didn't execute as well as we did in the first half."