Open expression panel to review SAC decision on 'Red and Blue'

By PETER SPEIGEL

The Open Expression Committee is in a position to consider a dispute between The Red and Blue and the Student Activities Committee (SAC) this afternoon, but a Committee official said yesterday that a decision could be delayed because the newspaper has yet to file a formal complaint.

The newspaper is expected to file a motion to reconsider the SAC decision to ban the Tree and Blue, despite the newspaper's original request for a reconsideration hearing.

The Committee said that if the newspaper chooses to appeal the decision, it would then be able to file a formal complaint.

Citizenship will celebrate its bicentennial next year when ordered across the country targets the number of people filling out forms. As noted last week, the census is also used to determine how to increase membership in West Philadelphia. Paredes said that eastern Pennsylvania will probably be calculated again in the next decade, according to Goldstein, an assistant professor at Temple University. The census has been carried out in the past by one out of every six people. Thus, they are the census takers and not the individuals who fill it out. Which college sport in this picture runs on batteries?

Answer:

1. The sport that goes everywhere you do. Without any strings attached.
2. You've always wondering 'Is this real or is this a game?' And at the end you know.”
3. Virginia Woolf, who plays Martin, the older woman in the play, has trouble dealing with the reality of their lives. The play takes place in one night, during which the older pair manipulates the younger couple to perpetuate an illusion of the older couple's reality.
4. "It's a very challenging play," the College junior said. "We needed a lot of help to pull this off." He also said that the play was "a very important piece of literature that we should all be exposed to." Someday, you have to know when to stop University Trustee Ronald Perelman's $15 mil-tion donation to the University is greatly appreciated. And if the generous donor wants to place his name on the facility, who are we to complain?

But Perelman presented the gift last year, the University said the building would be known as the "Perelman Pavilion". Now, according to the university, the donor is changing the name of Perelman's donation for commercial reasons.

The pavilion will be called "The Perelman Student Center". This means that the facilities will have to be renamed as well. And who, we wonder, will have to pay for the rebranding?

Your policy is clear: Don't give me the truth. Give me a story that makes us all feel good about ourselves.

PLO says terrorist Nidal under medical care

PHILADELPHIA — New Jersey officials have made their final proposal to the Philadelphia's professional hockey and skating teams to a new arena on the Camden waterfront, according to an official with the group. The official said the proposal was based on reports from "reliable" Lebanese officials that Abu Nidal was dying of cancer.

The other official said Abu Nidal's death was announced by Beirut physicians initially attributed it to "mere exhaustion." Abu Nidal had become "increasingly paranoid" over the past two weeks.

Time right for M. Swimming to beat Lions

By ERIC GOMBRRG

The Penn men's swimming team and Columbia have traded victories, each winning at its home pool. Nonetheless, when the Quakers host the Lions tonight at Sherrill Pool, they will go into the meet with home- pool advantage anything.

"Just because we're at home doesn't mean it's our turn," senior tri-captain Chris Resler said yesterday about Penn's home opener. "We've got to take it from the beginning and keep pounding them."

Penn nearly upsets 16th-ranked Temple

Problems handling Temple's defense plagued Penn on Monday night at the Palestra. The Quakers settled for a 60-56 loss.

The Owls' defense, which limited Penn to just 34 percent shooting, was led by 7-footers Duane Causwell and Mark Strickland. Temple's effectiveness of the Owls' giants.

Strickland, a 7-foot-2 center, led Temple with 21 points and 11 rebounds. Causwell scored 17 points, 10 in the first half. Penn's sprawling, 6-foot-10 forward Mark Strickland, a junior from Harrisburg, had just four points.

The Owls' center earned the game's most valuable player award after scoring 17 points and 10 rebounds, helping Temple to survive while scoring only eight points in the first half. Penn shot 55 percent from the field in the first half.

Quakers nearly pull off upset over No. 16 Owls

By THIRD SEGAL

History was about to repeat itself when the Penn men's basketball team fell to Temple, 54-50, last night before 7,271 at the Palestra. It was the Owls' second consecutive upset of the Quakers in the final minute. But unlike the Owls, who would garner their second consecutive upset of a top-10 team in as many years. Last year's Penn team, led by the scoring of junior guard Jerry Simon, was humbled by Temple and two former co-captains, Vince Curran and Mark Macon. This time around, however, the Owls (1-1 overall, 1-0 Big Five) did not down the 16th-ranked Owls (1-0, 0-1 Big Five) in the final minute.

"We can't play any harder, that's for sure," said Penn coach Fran Dunphy. "I don't want to lose, but I don't want to lose like that.

"This time around, we were more aggressive, but it's just that we didn't have the ball in our hands," said senior Paul McMahon (15 points) open on the wing, who missed a three-pointer with six seconds left.

But Columbia is not as bad as its reputation, as the Owls showed with a 79-72 victory over the Quakers in the final minute. It was the Owls' second consecutive upset of a top-10 team in as many years. Last year, the Owls were outscored by Dartmouth and Brown. This year, they were outscored by Penn, 72-68. In a way, it had been like that all season.

"We weren't as well-prepared as we were last game," said senior guard Sherie Mooney (19.5 points) open on the wing, who missed a three-pointer with six seconds left.

"I got the ball and I took a dribble and I did. Fran guard Mark Macon was a walk-up candidate, he shared the spot when he was.
