New York City Police arrested Wharton sophomore Christopher Clemente late Tuesday night for faking drugs and weapons charges against a student in an apartment.

In addition, police spokesperson Hugh Barry said 200 were found in and a loaded MAC-11 semi-automatic pistol was found in an apartment window before police entered the building.

According to New York District Attorney's Office spokesperson Sylvia Canada, Clemente's roommates were found to war on the two charges of criminal possession of a controlled substance. The 19-year-old Van Pelt College House resident faces an additional maximum of 15 years in prison for the weapons charge.

Roche said Clemente's dormitory room in Van Pelt College House yesterday.

"(President Hackney) had every reason to believe that there had been a death," said assistant to the vice provost of university life Barbara Cassel yesterday that a Wharton graduate student, committed suicide in his college dormitory room.

A Philadelphia police officer was found with crack and crack cocaine in her apartment, according to a report.

"The officer was not under a drug investigation," said a police spokesperson.

"The officer is on administrative leave," said the spokesperson.

Clemence's partner, who was not at the scene, added that the crack cocaine was a "small amount."

This is a high year for suicide at the University Health Center. "We offer adequate care for students in crisis," a counselor said.

"There are focused short-term counselors, which is standard for school health services," Collins said.

University officials said the University has been counseling services since the mid-1980s. The Counseling Services Office has been counseling students since 1985. The Student Health Center has been counseling students since 1985.

The University is one of the few universities in the country to offer counseling services. The University Health Center offers counseling services to students in crisis, as well as to students who are in need of mental health services.

There are several resources on and off campus for students who have been affected by or are contemplating suicide.

Leadership network to host meeting

In an effort to increase the number of female students in leadership roles at the University, the Women’s Leadership Network will host a meeting for first-year women on Sunday at 5:30 p.m. in the Hess Hall Rotunda.

The event will give first-year women a chance to meet with women in leadership roles throughout the University community and learn more about the various opportunities for women at the University.

An Unfair Disadvantage

Many people believe affirmative action programs are necessary to gain economic and social privileges to those who have traditionally been denied them. But currently, affirmative action programs are actually harming some of the very people they were supposed to help. It is time for a change.

Discrimination is the result of students. Administration must weigh several factors, including race, and consider these factors are important, ultimate importance is undetermined. It is the determination that the highest priority will be given to factors that determine the admission of students. The determination of the priority is based on the most relevant and analytical factors that are important. The determination of the priority is based on the most relevant and analytical factors that are important.

Race-based "leveling the playing field" suggests that Asians as a race cannot succeed independently. Thus, the proponents of this argument should be ending. The standard argument is that Asians should receive the benefits of affirmative action programs. The standard argument is that Asians should receive the benefits of affirmative action programs. But, instead, we are penalized for being minorities.

The problems of equal opportunity led to the creation of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). The EEOC has been effective in enforcing the law, but it has also been criticized for being too slow and too lax in enforcing the law.

A Feminist Issue

The problem with generalization is to not see the Asian student as a group instead of individuals. We need to move away from viewing all Asians as a group and treat them as individuals. The problem with generalization is to not see the Asian student as a group instead of individuals. We need to move away from viewing all Asians as a group and treat them as individuals.

Flawed System

The criticism of the "fairness" of the system is that "the system won't work as long as minorities are held down." The problem with generalization is to not see the Asian student as a group instead of individuals. We need to move away from viewing all Asians as a group and treat them as individuals.

Harvard has no say in what the United States is, but it is the same. Harvard is a private university that has the power to make its own rules. The problem with generalization is to not see the Asian student as a group instead of individuals. We need to move away from viewing all Asians as a group and treat them as individuals.

Letters to the Editor

Definite ‘No-No’

To the Editor: "An Unfair Disadvantage" (DP, 1/10/90) is the epitome of hypocrisy. The author claims that the exclusion of Asians would be a violation of the "one man, one vote" principle. Yet, the author also claims that affirmative action programs are necessary to benefit the Asian community.

The Daily Pennsylvania, established in 1888, is a daily college newspaper published at the University of Pennsylvania. A great university. A great newspaper. And 6 great ways to get involved.

In some ways, college is just like high school. You sit in class, listen, and take notes. At test time, you regurgitate the information you’ve memorized. But wait. There’s more to college life.

Want excitement? The opportunity to meet new people? The chance to learn by doing, not by watching? Join The Daily Pennsylvania.

The DP, the 105-year-old daily newspaper of the University of Pennsylvania, is one of the top college newspapers in the United States. In fact, for the past two years the Columbia Scholastic Press Association has awarded the DP its two highest national honors for overall performance.

Students, faculty and administrators look to us as their main source of news and information about the University and West Philadelphia. Local businesses see us as the most cost-effective way to present their message to the lucrative Penn market.

Most importantly, the DP — a corporation independent of the University — is run and managed by students. Students just like you. Every day, we write and edit the stories, shoot and develop the photographs, lay out and put together the pages. Every day, we sell and design the advertisements, handle customer inquiries, and develop budgets and financial statements.

As a DP staff member, you’ll get the opportunity to learn in the trenches, to apply what you’ve learned in the classroom to the real world. From reporting to shooting photographs to selling advertisements to designing pages, you don’t watch — you do.

And, in all of our departments, you’ll begin doing from day one. All you need is enthusiasm, imagination, and drive — we’ll teach you the rest.

Looking to improve on impressive '89 season, Gymnastics opens tomorrow

By MARVIN DASH

In the seventh year of his career, finishing 6-5 overall, the Penn men's gymnastics team has 10 wins and an 0-3 loss to Harvard on the season. While Penn coach Tom Hart has reasons to be optimistic, he expects his gymnasts to be a little rusty.

Penn Weekend

Despite the presence of Rodriguez and then-senior co-captain Stewart Roland and Peter Lubowitz, the team finished a disappointing fourth in the Ivy League. Their final record was 9-4 overall, and 2-3 in the Ivy. Now the Quakers, with new senior co-captains Scott Lasner and Guy Olly, are looking ahead to the 1990 season where coach Al Molloy believes “the season to beat will be Harvard, Yale and Princeton.”

In November, Molloy and the team had their first pre-season match at Yale. Rodriguez, the 1988 World amateur champion, was dominant by the big three, as Yale won the tournament and Harvard came in second. Princeton defeated Penn, 5-4.

Molloy hoped to see who in his new crop of players will have the talent to be competitive in Ivy League matches. Rodriguez should be a major contributor in 1990. Although he sat out the Yale scrimmage with a pulled his right hamstring, he has returned to be competitive in Ivy League squash.

Penn’s Ivy competitors, except Columbia, were there. That scrimmage was dominated by the big three, as Yale won the tournament and Harvard came in second. Princeton defeated Penn, 5-4.

NEW YORK — A bloodyangeer between Charles Barkley and Mark Jackson turned into a more serious dispute between the two players yesterday. The NBA fined each player $5,000 after learning they had a running bet on who makes the big play when Barkley's Philadelphia 76ers play Jackson's New York Knicks. Barkley was fined for the loss, but Jackson was fined for the win. The fine stems from the six-a-side scramble for a loose ball after with Barkley and Jackson. "When I am persuaded that there was nothing more going on here than some verbal jockeying between two friendly rivals, I am my responsibility to make it plain to Messrs. Barkley and Jackson, and the rest of the people out there, that this is the subject of gambling, even the slightest appearance of illegitimacy is a serious matter," Stern said. Jackson and the Knicks declined comment on the fines. Barkley could not be reached, but Philadelphia general manager John Nash said: "The NBA acted accordingly.

Barkley's short jumper in the closing moments Wednesday night gave the 76ers a 110-111 victory over the Knicks. Jackson, who finished with 23 points, missed a layup just before the final buzzer.

After the game, Barkley men-aged to keep his running bet with Jackson.

"We're just very close friends and we just have a lot of fun," Barkley said. "We just like to compete, even from 30 feet in the playoffs (last season we were "compe-"tition in everything we do, including basketball.

"No, no, we aren't," Jackson joked as he headed to the Philadelphia locker room after the game.

The 76ers are at Phoenix, after 14 years as an assistant to Tom Landry with the Dallas Cowboys, Stallings turned in a 231-141 record. That makes him the third straight coach to come to Alabama with a losing record, although his two immediate predecessors, Ray Perkins and Curry, were more than they had at Ala. Stallings was fired after three seasons at Penn State, and a share of the Southeastern Conference title, the Tide's first in the post Bryant era.

"I want some coaches on our staff with an Alabama background, but they all don't have to be from one," said the 54-year-old Stallings. "I want to get them in the next week or so. We need some fresh ideas on football recruiting.

Shelling, who made up his mind to take the Alabama job as soon as he was offered to him, "I've been in a town that I was going to coach, but I didn't do it," said Stallings. "He played under Bryant at Texas A&M, where he was captain of the Southeastern Conference championship team. He played under Bryant at Texas for two years, with a 23-34-1 record. That makes him the third coach to come to Alabama.

"I'm not Coach Bryant, but I was always taught to do things with peo-l"ple that built during his coaching post Bryant held for 25 years and to keep American Values In Sight."

men's hoops travels to brown and yale

by todd segal

there comes a time in every sport's season when the teams that want to be playing after the season's end know that the time has come to put away the memories of games past. time for the true champions to shine and for the also-rans to suffer.

usually, this climactic moment is reached late in the season. not so for the penn men's basketball team.

yes, it is only the first weekend of ivy league play for the quakers. but how important is it that penn takes on brown and yale this weekend?

"extremely important," coach perry dempsey said. "last year, it was our first weekend away, but we didn't put it as good shape.

"we're trying to keep the running ghting gun of ivy league play for the quakers. that's how important it is that it stays in brown and yale this weekend."

and certainly wouldn't hurt their cause, either. for one, it's imperative for us to come away with a win. if we lose, the quakers may fall themselves out of the league race if they lose this weekend.
