Three killed, 162 injured in morning SEPTA crash

Seven are trapped for hours as rescuers work in darkness tunnel

By JAY BRODSKY

A crowded westbound Market-Frankford Line train derailed yesterday morning seconds after leaving the subway system for several hours, and as of this morning, shut down the city's entire subway system for the first time in SEPTA's 21-year history, killing three people and injuring 162.

The accident, which officials are calling the worst in SEPTA's history, left the 30th Street subway stop at approximately 8:30 a.m. and derailed at a switchover point about 250 feet west of the station.

Gorbachev may speak at Brown Casts doubts on possibility of Peak Week appearance

By ANDREW LIBBY
Senior Producer

Secretary of State Michael Gorbachev has tentatively accepted an invitation to speak at Brown University's commencement. But in private doubts that the man who will speak at the University's Peak Week ceremonies in June will speak at the University's Peak Week ceremonies in June.

According to the Boston Globe, Gorbachev has agreed to "principle" at Brown's commencement, but he was not sure because he would accept an honorary degree from the school.

Brown President Peter O'Hanlon yesterday that Gorbachev's appearance hinges on his scheduled visit to the University.

But White House officials said earlier this week that the Bush administration was considering changing the schedule to in order to accommodate both dates adding that the summit is "not yet in stone.

Gorbachev and O'Hanlon met yesterday that the University Peak Week ceremonies are still scheduled for the Brown campus, although the timing of the Brown's event may be flexible.

The Brown administration yesterday that it would be flexible during the Brown's event.

"I understand that we would be very interested in having him," a Brown spokesperson said yesterday that it would be very interested in having him.

"I think there is some interest in having him at Brown," the spokesperson said.

"I think it is unlikely that Gorbachev would schedule a visit to Brown," the spokesperson said.

His United States visit to speak at both schools.

"I think that the whole thing is related to the timing of the summit and when he is free and I don't think it is probable that he will speak at Brown the night before," the spokesperson said.

"I don't think that this is any way to signal," the spokesperson said.

According to Brown, Brown administrations have de tected the possibility of Gorbachev's speaking at Brown.

But one Brown official said yesterday that it was probably "too much to hope," if it were a "real event," if it were a "real event.

Ivy Tower: FRATS NATIONALIZE ENACT STRicter PARTY RULES

By PATRICK HYLAND

As an introduced Stanford University fraternity was being held up by a trial court last month before a hearing on a new social policy, another fraternity was planning to introduce a new social policy that would limit the number of fraternity parties and events.

At the two fraternities, students have been holding parties in violation of new social policies that were introduced last fall. The new policies require further actions on the part of fraternity members before events can be held, and the decision to hold events is made by the fraternity's national office.

At the first fraternity, the national office decided to hold a party on campus last fall to promote further action. At the second fraternity, the national office decided to hold a party on campus last fall to promote further action. At both fraternities, the national office decided to hold a party on campus last fall to promote further action.

The new policies were introduced after a series of incidents involving fraternities at Stanford University and other universities.

At Stanford, a fraternity party in February resulted in several injuries, including a student who was struck by a pickup truck. The fraternity involved was expelled by the university, and the event was investigated by the university's Inter-Greek Council.

At the second fraternity, a party in January resulted in injuries to several students, including a student who was hit by a motorcycle. The fraternity involved was disciplined by the university, and the event was investigated by the university's Inter-Greek Council.

Both fraternities have been planning to hold parties in violation of the new policies, and both fraternities have been given the option to hold events
by the university's Inter-Greek Council.

Hotline, service geared toward women

By ARTHUR APPELLO
Helping hand for problems with divorce or abuse can now be found on Center City streets.

And according to the director of a Philadelphia counseling service, seeking that help from men can be almost unbearable.

"A Philadelphia hotline and counseling center called Women in Transition can offer help and counseling agency said it is easier for women to open up when they are not intimidated by the presence of men."

Women in Transition was created in 1977 by two women who have experienced calls from wives going through divorce. The center's name comes from the idea of a woman's transition through a divorce. Eventually, the center started to receive an increasing number of phone calls from women seeking the services of their own friends or wives. It is not uncommon for volunteers to receive calls from women who have experienced calls from their own friends or wives. If they call with their own problems, "We're not going to help them," said Office Manager Leslie Lugenbeen. "We refer them to different services."".

Center staff member Winona Sharp said that the hotline and counseling centers can be difficult for many women. "Women in Transition is geared exclusively toward women. Women in Transition offers one solution to the problem that many women face in seeking help for problems with divorce or abuse."

Women in Transition is located at 133 5th Street.

Observes describes Nicaraguan voting

By LAURA SANTINI
Two producers who overlook last month's Nicaraguan elections spoke Tuesday night in Houston that theocrin, a political leader, is in a strong position to win the election.

"The market and the political context are beginning to favor the candidacy of Violeta Barrios de Chamorro," he said. "The Sandinista party is still the largest political force in Nicaragua, but the opposition is gaining strength."

"The Sandinista party is still powerful, but the opposition is gaining strength," he said. "We welcome the opportunity to talk about the elections and the political context in Nicaragua."

Tuition hikes small across U.S.

Colleges and universities across the nation are announcing some of the smallest tuition increases in a decade for next fall.

"We're quite happy," said Robert Atwell, president of the American Council of Education. "I think we're optimistic that the market will continue to support tuition increases.

"Generally, college and university officials have made most announcements this month, but spokesman Peter Costa said fees probably won't be announced until later this month, noting that Colombia's fall tuition hikes won't be announced until later this month. The Brazilian government has also announced tuition hikes for the fall."

Despite prolonged discussion, this NEC re-committees — had the others removed the random factor from the election process — and most UA members saying that the random factor would make the elections fairer.

But the longest debate centered on the party structure, which partially is to blame. The proposal's advocates said eliminating parties would force individual candidates to speak on issues in order to get elected, instead of allowing one member of a party to articulate a platform which all others endorse.

And to force candidates to state their position.

"If you represent a party, then you represent a certain set of issues," UA Vice Chairperson Betty Balian said.

But most assembly members maintained that the party system did not promote the discussion of issues, and sponsors of the proposal said that its passage would change elections substantially. "If we have to stop students with a barricade to get their voices heard, we'll do it," Balian said.

Balian also said that since most candidates run on a certain set of issues, the party structure would make them listen to us, we'll do it," Balian said.

Although I support the Women's Rights Movement, I have never been to a support meeting, having been pointed in the center which the decision process has been viewed.

In her review, Carla Hutton, points out that men should edit the "ethics and sexism stories" (P 325/257). But women should also be aware of the sexism in the way how their rules and their treatment of men promote sexism.

Hutton's statement, "Just as racism originates within the social order, sexism must originate within the social order, emerging from racism," is not only false but also会造成胡乱解读. The sexism in the way how their rules and their treatment of men promote sexism.

SEPTA accident delays U. workers

By JOSEPH ENRIGHT and CARIN LEMMER

"Yesterday morning SEPTA's new regional maintenance division delayed the trains on the subway for two hours," said a SEPTA official. "Our next step is to begin our investigation of the accident."

By JENNIFER BRIGHT

The wreckage of a SEPTA subway train sits on the tracks underneath Market Street after yesterday's accident. The accident forced HUP to call in about 100 National Transportation Safety Board officials to begin their investigation of the accident. John Lauber, a spokesperson for the board, said that "the subway lines were not damaged." The accident occurred at 10 a.m. yesterday when a SEPTA subway train derailed at the 15th Street SEPTA station. Rescue workers struggled all morning to extract people from the wreckage of the derailed SEPTA train.

Judge refuses to dismiss Hazelwood charges after prosecution rests its case

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — A judge yesterday refused to dismiss charges against Joseph Hazelwood after the prosecution rested its case and the defendant offered a plea of not guilty to the charges.

The trial for the captain of the Exxon Valdez, which ran aground March 24, 1989, continued with Hazelwood's defense team saying the executives of the Exxon Corporation were to blame for the accident.

When it does convene, two things distinguish it from Congress, said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater. "When Congress is in session, two things happen. First, the budget is enacted. And two, the House and Senate are in session."

Agreement to boost U.S., Soviet flights

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union plan sharp increases in air traffic between the two nations, Bush announced yesterday, saying the agreement is the "most significant step" in U.S.-Soviet relations.

The agreement, announced in London last week, U.S. airlines would increase flights to the Soviet Union.

Gathers' team, Loyola Mmt., accepts NCAA tournament bid

FOR COLLEGE—Los Angeles—Loyola Marymount's basketball team, still led by the career of Hank Gathers, vowed yesterday to play in the NCAA tournament and will dedicate the season to their leader.

The victory also marked the first time the Lions have led their division after 60 games since their 1983-84 NCAA championship season. Loyola won the 1983-84 Mountain Pacific Conference title and was fourth against New York this season.

The victory was Philadelphia's third in the last 10 points of the first period to take a 1-0 lead. The Knicks trailed 1-0 in the first period, but not one time again.

The closest the Knicks got in the final period was 85-70 with 10:40 to play.

W. Hoops rebound from skid for strong finish

By NOAH BARKER

The men’s basketball team finally got back on track last week after giving up a game to Yale and losing to Brown. This past weekend, Harvard and Pennsylvania suffered another bad loss, setting them up for a possible upset for the Ivy League title. The Quakers were able to make it happen this past weekend.

Season Review

Success against Ancient Eight rivals. "We want to be good against the Ivy League," said coach Dave Bender. The Quakers showed signs of recovery during its recent road trip. They are starting to play up to their expectations and are building towards an Ivy League title.

Despite losing their last two games, the Quakers are still considered a strong team in the Ivy League. They are off to their best start in 25 years, and are currently tied for first place with Columbia and Cornell. Their record of 12-8 is the highest they’ve finished since 1989-90.

The Quakers have scored 100 points or more in two of their last three games, including a 101-79 win over Cornell. They have also outscored their opponents by an average of 25 points per game.

The Quakers are currently on a five-game winning streak, and are looking to continue this trend in the upcoming games.

Philadelphia, February 13, 1988 - The Penn gymnastics team finished in seventh place at the Ivy League Tournament on Sunday as they bounced back to upset Temple, 175.45 to 174.85, in the final dual meet of the season. Ben Spiva was presented with the Most Valuable Player award.

The victory over Temple, a Division I scholarship team, was a great way to end the season, said Penn coach Tom Schneider.

Despite the graduation of these two gymnasts, the team is still strong enough to compete for a championship. The team is looking forward to the upcoming season and is determined to make it a successful one.

Spiva’s spark put to use at Memphis St.

By ERIC COMBERG

Despite being cut from the Harvard basketball team last year, Ben Spiva is making the most of his opportunity to play for his home university. He is currently averaging 12.2 points and 5.6 rebounds per game.

Spiva seemed to feel at home in Memphis, where he was able to showcase his skills in front of a strong crowd.

"It was a great place to play," said Spiva. "I had a lot of fun here."

The reason I transferred here is not only because of the opportunity to play for my home school, but also to see more of my basketball career.

"I wanted to go home and help pay Penn's expensive tuition," said Spiva. "The best thing for me was to see him here (at Loyola); it was a dream come true."
