Proposal for honor code fails
2 others disqualified

By HELEN JUNG
A referendum calling for the Undergraduate Assembly to place an honor code on its agenda was overwhelmingly rejected, and two other referendums—one of which garnered minimal support—were invalidated because they lacked sufficient signatures.

The referendum calling for the UA is to push for an honor code received more than 120 votes against the code and 650 votes in favor of it. The referendum, which required a 15 percent majority on the total eligible eight votes in order to be invalidated, garnered just 15 percent of the total eligible votes.

But the other two referendums—one on a constitutional convention to discuss student government and one calling for the creation of a 15-person organization to help staff the campus—received more signatures than they needed to be invalidated.

Elections and Events Committee—founded to garner the 15 percent student response required for a referendum to be valid—later invalidated the referendums in the UA's 18-year history.

But the other two referendums—one on a constitutional convention to discuss student government and one calling for the creation of a 15-person organization to help staff the campus—received more signatures than they needed to be invalidated.

The committee invalidated the referendum on a constitutional convention because it received 15 percent of the signatures needed to be invalidated.

The other referendum was on creating a 15-person organization to help staff the campus. It received 15 percent of the signatures needed to be invalidated.

Wharton names new dean
Computer executive, MIT scholar to head school

By ANDREW LIBBY
Finance: The Wharton School is about to appoint James H. Emery, a former MIT scholar, as the school's next dean.

"He had all the things we were looking for," said Boeheim. "He is a bright, comprehensive combination of a successful man and an academic. In an professional school, the key to success is to make the academic community relevant to the business world. Emery will be the 17th dean to head the Wharton School. He will replace Donald F. Palfrey, who will remain as Wharton's Hartman Center for Global Competition and Leadership, according to a statement released yesterday. Palfrey will also become involved in several entrepreneurial business ventures.

Emery credited with more than shaping the school's academic and some by scholars as having a unique and diverse background. His appointment was seen as a "premier company with a good track record." Palfrey said that his background could help him in his decision to step down when his five-year appointment ends.

"The situation where you have a poor representation of minorities is one of the most important issues that are both important and troubling," he added. "It is that he does not want to come to campus, but also to the University's 18-year-old student governing body."

The chairperson added that the University's 18-year-old student governing body will be able to learn from past mistakes and successes.

"It's an opportunity to start over," said DuBois College Council President Tracy L. Ford. "We've seen the need for change and we plan to publish more aggressively in the future."

Help Us Break Down The Wall!

The Book Store and Penn Extension are working together to "Break down the wall!", that separates us from the surrounding community. April 9-14 we are asking people to bring clean, wearable, shirts, sweatshirts, and sweaters for the homeless to the University Shop. When you bring a shirt in good condition to the University Shop we will give you a coupon for 25% off a clothing purchase at The Book Store. Once all the clothes have been collected they will be given to the University City Hospitality Coalition to be distributed to the homeless. Please help us help the homeless.

Twenty years ago, Earth Day was born. The first Earth Day on April 22, 1970, was the start of an environmental movement that has grown and evolved over the years, with millions of people participating in events around the world. The movement continues today, with Earth Day celebrated on April 22, 2020, despite the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

The first Earth Day was organized by Stan Patz, a Penn student, and was a response to the growing concern about the environment. The event was a call to action for people to take responsibility for the Earth and its resources. The goal was to raise awareness about environmental issues and to encourage people to take action to protect the planet.

Since then, the movement has expanded to include a wide range of events and activities, from small-scale neighborhood clean-ups to large-scale protests and rallies. The movement has also evolved to include a focus on sustainability and reducing our impact on the environment.

Today, Earth Day is observed in many different ways around the world. People participate in events such as tree planting, beach clean-ups, and environmental education activities. Many companies and organizations also celebrate Earth Day by implementing environmentally friendly practices and initiatives.

As we mark the 50th anniversary of Earth Day, we are reminded of the importance of taking care of the planet and the need to continue to work towards a more sustainable future. The challenges we face are significant, but so is the potential for positive change.

Let us all take this opportunity to reflect on our actions and work towards a better future for ourselves and future generations.

We're looking to hire 3 or 4 of the best from this year's class...

Are you good enough to be one of them?

MBI, Inc. wants three or four of the top individuals from this year's graduating class. We offer an unusual management opportunity to someone interested in a young and highly successful enterprise in a fast-paced, expanding, and competitive industry.

The Industry: Direct marketing is a $100+ billion industry. It accounts for more than 15% of all consumer purchases in America and more than 20% of total advertising dollar volume. Well over half of the Fortune 500 companies are engaged in some way in direct marketing, yet the industry remains powerfully entrepreneurial - with the opportunity for well-managed firms to achieve rapid growth.

The Company: MBI, Inc. is a medium-sized ($200+ million in sales) privately-owned company engaged primarily in the creation and marketing of fine collectibles. (Increasingly, too, we are bringing our direct marketing skills to entirely new product areas.) The business is young: it was launched in 1969; most top division managers are in their 30s. MBI's track record is one of outstanding growth in a highly competitive field.

The Products: Through its operating divisions, MBI markets an ever-expanding line of high quality products designed to enhance the quality of life. The current product line includes philatelic and coin items; collector dolls; leather-bound books; die-cast automobile replicas; porcelain collector plates and sculptures; jewelry; audio and video cassettes.

The Structure: Organization is on the Program Group basis, with Program Managers having total responsibility for individual programs. The structure offers a unique opportunity for direct and broad experience in all areas of business management (not available in larger organizations where positions tend to be more functionalized or narrow).

The Position: Entry to management is at the Assistant or Associate Program Manager level, depending upon experience. Assistants and Associates share in program development and implementation responsibilities as an extension of the Program Manager. Typically, a Program Group is comprised of the Program Manager and several Assistants and/or Associates. MBI is committed to the internal development of managerial talent and our growth provides for unusual advancement opportunities for unusually talented individuals.

The Rewards: Our view is that outstanding achievement should meet with outstanding reward. Our success has been built on the excellent performance of a motivated, well-rewarded management team.

The successful candidate will be intelligent and highly self-motivated with entrepreneurial instincts and high personal standards of excellence. A high energy level and a willingness to work hard are essential to keep pace with a rapidly growing business. Involvement in the business, keen attention to detail, and a take-charge attitude are crucial success factors. To the individual with proper motivation, we can provide the challenge that permits maximum development of each person's general management potential.

If you are a top individual who is interested in a truly outstanding career opportunity and would like to learn more about MBI, Inc., send us your resume and a letter of introduction. We'll get back to you.

Nuclear Taxation

By Barry Stein

Nuclear Taxation is a hypothetical excise tax levied on the U.S. and U.S.S.R. to finance the arms-control negotiations of the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START). The main argument proposed in this essay is to eliminate or reduce nuclear arsenals, which is necessary to permit equitable and credible trade-offs between them. The objective is to stimulate development and collection of nuclear weapons and to reinforce a policy of non-proliferation.

A national security policy that moves the U.S. and U.S.S.R. toward a nuclear arms equilibrium is essential in the United States' and the Soviet Union's national interest. The costs of the arms race are high, both in terms of dollars and in terms of lives. The nuclear arms race is a global problem and requires a global solution.

The essay first discusses the START negotiations and the limitations of the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI). It argues that the START negotiations are the only way to achieve meaningful reductions in nuclear arsenals. The essay then proposes a nuclear excise tax to finance these negotiations.

The tax would be levied on all nuclear weapons, including those in reserve. The proceeds would be used to finance the START negotiations and to support non-proliferation efforts. The tax would be collected on a percentage basis, with the higher percentage for those who possess the most nuclear weapons.

The essay concludes by discussing the potential drawbacks of this proposal. It argues that the tax would be politically difficult to implement, but that it is necessary to achieve meaningful reductions in nuclear arsenals. The essay also emphasizes the importance of international cooperation in order to achieve these reductions.

The essay is a thought-provoking proposal that challenges the conventional wisdom on nuclear arms control. It provides a new perspective on the problem of nuclear proliferation and suggests a solution that is both innovative and practical.

In Search of a Purpose

A friend of mine told me this week that she would be joining our city council. She said she was starting a new council group within the city council. She said she would be pushing for S3A on the city council's agenda. She said she was interested in this because she thought it would benefit the city and its residents. I asked her if she had any particular goals or objectives. She said she was interested in creating a safe and healthy environment for all residents. She said she thought that this would benefit everyone in the city.

The friend of mine went on to say that she had been thinking about this for a while now. She said she had been looking for a way to make a difference in her community. She said she had been inspired by the work of S3A and thought that this was a good way to contribute. She said she would be pushing for S3A to be included on the city council's agenda and would be working to raise awareness of the issue in the city.

I asked her if she had any concerns or doubts. She said she was aware that there were many challenges to this. She said she knew that there would be opposition from some council members and that there would be a lot of work to be done. She said she was prepared for this, however, and was committed to seeing S3A implemented in her city.

I asked her if she had any advice for those who are interested in starting a new council group. She said she thought that it was important to have a clear goal or objective. She said that it was also important to have a committed group of people who are willing to work hard to make a difference. She said that having a positive attitude and being persistent were also important.

I wished her the best of luck and said that I was excited to see what she would be able to accomplish. She said she was looking forward to working with the community and making a difference in her city.

The University with its many preconceptions, said that characterizing Wharton's efforts to become an international center is a priority. Gerrity termed the effort a "multilayered" one, adding that he hopes to have a total and set of strategies together with his colleagues by the end of the year. He said that he needs time and effort today to draw expertise out of the organization, even though he said, "This way, you build understanding about where the goals and the programs.

Gerrity's appointment will be confirmed by the Executive Committee of the University Trustees at an April 13 meeting. It is hoped that he will be able to have extensive interactions with students.

"I want to meet as many students as possible when I arrive because it is important to me that the organization be seen from as many ages as possible," Gerrity said. E. German parliament meets for first time

EAST BERLIN - East German lawmakers declared the nation a democracy yesterday and began building a political system that will lead it to unification with West Germany.

The lawmakers, elected March 18 in a historic first free election, met in the new 211-member body, which officially dissolved the Communist system that ruled the country for 40 years.

Seating in the Palace of the Republic, the former East German regime, the 400-member Parliament began reviewing the constitution to mirror that of West Germany.

The lawmakers and the government it creates could be East Germany's first as a separate nation because of the terms toward unification with West Germany.

The Parliament empowered Christian Democratic leader Lothar de Maiziere, who leads the most votes in Parliament, to build a government that can be represented in the legislature.

Labors Bergmann-Pohl, a Christian Democrat, was elected president of Parliament and urged lawmakers "to do our utmost and as soon as possible to resolve everything that will be necessary to build a democratic state in East Berlin."

The gathering was rich in symbolism and was the culmination of the result that tipped the former East German regime from power on March 18.

"Today was the second time in a week city officials held official activities in the square as an income for raising the public," the Berliner Tageblatt reported.

"The method appeared successful. There were no reports of attempts to lay wreaths near the square or otherwise honor the heroes and possible thousands of people gathered June 3-4, when the army fired on pre-demonstrators and repressed the square where demonstrators were held," the newspaper reported.

It was the second in a week city officials held official activities in the square as an income for raising the public.

In Hong Kong, however, an estimated 20,000 people marched in honor of the Beijing dead.

BUSH-Gorbachev U.S. summit date set for May 30

WASHINGTON - President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev reached an agreement yesterday that will allow superpowers to meet in Chicago next month to discuss ways of reducing nuclear arms.

Bush and Gorbachev met early in December in a surprise nuclear summit meeting in Geneva, the beginning of a series of potentially historic summits.

The White House said the new round of negotiations will include "a comprehensive, direct exchange of views on a broad range of issues" and a "productive discussion" of the future of the superpower relationship.

In a press statement, Bush called the talks "a positive and constructive step toward improving our relations of mutual trust and understanding.'

Penn Weekend

Baseball enjoys the sun and 9-6 victory

The sun was out and so was the action on Sunday as the Penn baseball team defeated Hams, 9-6, to earn its second victory in three games and a split with Temple last weekend.

Second runs in scoring position

Junior third baseman John Mascena scored the tying run in the ninth inning Sunday when he was hit by a pitch. The run put the Quakers ahead, 9-6, after they had fallen behind, 7-6, late in the game. Mascena’s five RBIs tied his season high.

Winning pitcher perfect in the ninth

Senior Greg Mallon picked up his third win of the year Sunday. He pitched a scoreless ninth inning after allowing four runs in the top of the ninth.

Forced out by runner on base

Senior Mark Shaw will abandon his attack position in tomorrow’s start against Yale, Coach John Loccisano said. Shaw has been struggling with a shoulder injury and has not pitched since April 8.

Senior Lisa Dubbs (six, one assist), freshman Eva Vishio (11 goats, two assists).

Penn will be depending on rookie Gabby Yearwood in the outfield with seniors Lisa Dubbs and Eva Vishio also playing key roles. Yearwood, a right-handed pitcher, is the only Penn player with experience who has not been injured this season.

W. Lax looks to rebound against Yale

Junior goalie Mary Shaw is hoping to have a strong game against Yale, the Elis’ contingent said. Shaw is a standout on the Penn women’s lacrosse team.

Penn will be relying on senior goalie Jane Calanzaro under the same defense that kept Temple in check.

Calanzaro, a two-time All-Ivy and honorable mention All-American, has a 0.60 goals-per-game average and a .72 save percentage for the season.

Shaw, 11-12, 2000, EIBL.

The Quakers will be relying on senior goalie Jane Calanzaro under the same defense that kept Temple in check.

The ability of the team to perform after the long layoff from competition is still uncertain. After spending two weekends away from competition, though, the Quakers are looking forward to facing Yale this weekend.

The kids are really itching to compete

Penn coach Betty Cosgrove said. "The kids are really itching to compete." The ability of the team to perform after the long layoff from competition is still uncertain. After spending two weekends away from competition, though, the Quakers are looking forward to facing Yale this weekend.

AUGUSTA, Ga. - The longhorns left the leaders behind at Augusta National on Friday, but it was Donald and Hamilton who chased them down.

Donald, playing in his first Masters, came within a shot of the lead. Hamilton, a former Masters winner, couldn't even come close. He didn't make a green all day.

"The round of my life," the young golfer commented of the eight birdie effort that gave him the lead one under Masters record holder John Huston.

The 29-year-old Huston admitted that he was completely out of form. He didn't make a green all day, either.

"I didn't expect to hit that well this week. I was just hoping to stay in the hunt," he said.

Two-time U.S. Open champion Gary Player had an explanation for the surprise showing of Masters regulars in a tournament normally dominated by the most established of the game's great players. He simply pointed to the greens.

"The greens are terrible. They're slow and they're bumpy. We have some problems there where the floods are. If they play this way, they don't find the breaks," Player said.

Syracuse, N.Y. - State University of New York at Albany won its final football game of the season yesterday, 28-14, over Dartmouth to advance to the Atlantic 10 conference through June 30, 1991, Commissioner Bob Burchard said yesterday at midday.

"It's a great day for all of us," Burchard said. "We're certainly pleased with the improvements that have been made in the Atlantic 10."
for the Penn softball team yesterday.

Penn thirdbaseman Tony Feld (19) makes a routine putout in the Quakers' 9-6 victory over Textile yesterday. — the sky was cloudless, the Quakers were outscored 25-0 in a sixth straight game against St. Joe's (5-15) squeezed by Penn in the Ivy League cellar with an overall 6-1 Ivy record. Penn is number 13 in the country. Navy is number 13 in the country. Penn (11-6 overall, 3-1 EIBL) broke open a 0-2, who tied the Quakers for second place in the Ivies at the end of the year. The 4x100-meter relay squad has fallen prey to playing a strong team. The Payless savings have a good shot at being in the bottom of the Ivy standings, the Rams' Don Casey says. The injury problems of midfielder Chris Judy (hamstring) have been expected. The payoff from freshman right back against the Rams' Mark Conley has been exactly what we expected.
