Today changes begin today

By PATRICK O'DONNELL

Several security changes, including the addition of a regular "shuttle" by Escort Services, are scheduled to take effect today.

The University announced the schedule of the changes Friday, including a schedule for the study of the two men accused of running a University voter registration office.

"The changes are designed to increase public awareness of the security threats that University students, faculty, and visitors face," said College senior Bart Jacobson. "We want to make sure that students are aware of the threats that they face, and that they take appropriate steps to protect themselves.

Several University departments approved these measures late last week, including the University Council Security Committee, which is responsible for oversight of the University's security

The Undergraduate Assembly is pushing to add an extra security fee to every undergraduate student's car for the upcoming academic year.

"We want to make sure that students have the resources they need to protect themselves, and that they have a safe environment in which to learn," said UA member Jen Strom. "We want to make sure that students are aware of the threats that they face, and that they take appropriate steps to protect themselves.

According to UA member Jamie Hayes, who sponsored the funding surcharge proposal, "We want to make sure that students have the resources they need to protect themselves, and that they have a safe environment in which to learn."

When does a date become a crime?

It happens when a man forces a woman to have sex against her will. And even when it involves college students, it's still considered a criminal offense. A felony. Punishable by prison. So if you want to keep a good time from turning into a bad one, try to keep this in mind.

When does a date become a crime?

When she says "No". And he refuses to listen.

Against her will is against the law.

Vonnegut to speak today

Author Vonnegut to speak today

Author Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., whose sarcastic and unconventional works are among other things, won the prestigious World Fantasy Award in 1993 for his novel "Slaughterhouse Five." He will speak tonight as a part of the UA President's Lecture Series, sponsored by President Klein and the group is especially excited about bringing a well-known non-fiction speaker who is not a politician or scholar. "It should be a kind of wild experiment," Klein said.

Councilman Joe Pyser, who is not a UA member, proposed a resolution at the end of last night's meeting calling for the UA's "subversive support" of the University's final ruling on the matter. The UA would oppose "any suggestion or proposal that the university does not consider" the final ruling on the matter.

The speech is free of charge and is sponsored by the English Department. The speech will take place tonight at 8 PM in the auditorium. For more information, please contact the English Department.

Humane society proposes pet breeding ban

SAL MATOY, California — Local humane society officials are proposing for cenatus to ban breeding of dogs and cats. It is not that they are against pet owners and litterers, just that it is also killing viable unwanted animals each year. The debate over the proposed breeding ban is running into a clash between those fighting by responsible owners and pet breeders, and those who believe that pet owners who must euthanize hundreds of those pets' poorer cousins each year.

"What is really in what we've been doing, killing, is..." said Kim Stroth, executive director of the Peninsula Humane Society. "I think it's crazy that it's become acceptable to kill dogs and cats, and pets."

Under the proposal, believed to be the first of its kind in the nation, pet owners in Marin County would have to spay or neuter. Opponents argue that it is unenforceable.

Iraq offers to go to a summit but wants conditions

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq said yesterday it would attend a proposed meeting with Western leaders if the agenda included the Palestinian issue, but it said it would not negotiate for a peaceful solution.

The Iraqi offer came in response to an appeal by the French foreign minister, Roland Dumas, who said such a meeting could be a "new and last chance" to resolve the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

"If you put show and prize animals as one value and all other animals to one value that might potentially save 15,000 dogs or cats a year. I think the time is right," Nolan said.

"I would challenge anyone to show anyone another living, in competition, at a competitive price," the show's "happy snip-it" editors, that were certainly interested in their animal to anybody for sale, he said.

"I know what kind of animal he is, and that's not necessary," said Denver-based political consultant David Bailey. "I know what the animal's attributes are, in a whole lot of different ways."

Part of the team's and Landry's performances may be attributed to the terrible conditions. When it rained, poured. On a course which was already con-

Juniors Virginia Mattingly, who was only supposed to run well enough to possibly capture a bid to the Nationals, placed fourth for Penn at sixth. Junior captain made it very tough to keep our positions down these hills.
"It was very hard to keep the positions," Mattingly said. "Everyone got knocked down instead of paying attention to who was around me. The conditions made it very crowded. Because of the puddles, everyone scattered to find dry land."
Penn did not blame the outcome on the weather alone. Everyone had to run in the same conditions, and therefore, the Quakers still should have been able to come out on top. The conditions made the race less predictable. Landry noted, "The more unpredictable the conditions, the harder it was. Last year, when some team members were out and others didn't. This year everyone did run in their full addition."
"If we had run a good race, it would have been a close one," Mattingly said. "But the conditions allowed us to do anything to happen."
Rain saves day for Football vs. Harvard

The last score the Quakers had of the day. When both McNickon and starting quarter- back Eric Hull were forced out because of injuries intrinsic knee and back squirm, respectively, for- mer starter Joe Frenesha came in to help. But that was the last that Harvard would see of the endzone until the third quarter. The Quakers couldn’t get the ball into the endzone for the deciding factors in the game, al- though the Crimson did drive on the last drive and the defense from an offensive standpoint.

And many thanks to whoever sent in the rain.

Giants keep on rolling over NFL

ANACHEM, Calif. — Phil Simms completed 18 of 21 passes and threw two touchdowns yesterday as the New York Giants, efficient in almost every phase of the game, handed the Los Angeles Rams their first loss in eight games.

The Rams, off to their best start ever, ran well, passed well, played solid defense and were virtually score-free against the Rams, who hadn't beaten New York in such a form since 1983.

In the first three quarters yesterday, the Giants committed a fumble, intercepted a pass and fumbled a kickoff return.

The Rams' three short-range touchdown runs came on the Giants' mistakes. So far in the first quarter of the game, the Rams had scored in each of their last three meetings.

The Rams (3-6) seriously threatened only once, early in the third quarter when they took advantage of a fumble by Giants in punt play 25-yards within 16-3. But the Rams came right back, scoring on a 20-yard running drive, with Mark Haynes gaining 14 yards, to increase the margin to 19-3. The Rams also stopped the Giants' last two drives.

The Giants also stopped the Rams' running game, with Cadillac Gage leading the Los Angeles runners with 63 yards in 12 carries.

I. PATI, Minn. — Minnesota Vikings quarterback Vanquish Simms was expected to be charged with a crime after he allegedly endangered the team by leaving the first-quarter sideline brawl, rallied the Quakers to four consecutive first-half touchdowns.

Pittsburgh defensive back Daylon Craig, inspired by a first-quarter fumble recovery,全面推进了Penn State's 52-7 victory over Maine.

V-ball spikes Tigers for Ivy title

By SCOTT WYNNBERRY

Daily Pennsylvanian Sports Writer

EASTERN HEMISPHERE — The Penn women's volleyball team had its worst outing of the season. The Quakers' 11-7 loss to the Harvard Crimson at Franklin Field on Saturday night brought them a second place finish in the Ivy Leagues ahead of the University of Pennsylvania, 5-1, and Harvard's second place finish, 4-3.

The Quakers had a loss in the first game of the series, 15-9, and in the second, 15-8. On Saturday, the Quakers had a chance to win, but the Crimson defeated them, 15-10 and 15-14.
