Kidnap victim gets $415,000 from Phi U

By CHRISTINE LUTTON

Phi U senior Kristina O'Flanagan said she has agreed to accept a $415,000 settlement from the Delta Psi chapter of Phi U. O'Flanagan, the Delta Psi brother whom she accused of raping her, had pleaded guilty to two rape charges in October of last year. The settlement was reached after several months of negotiations and mediation with the Philadelphia City and County Violence Against Women Office and the Philadelphia City and County Victim Advocate. The settlement includes $135,000 to cover medical expenses and $280,000 for other damages. The settlement was announced during a press conference at the University of Pennsylvania, where the Phi U fraternity is located.

University's decision to raze the century-old building

But Ledwith said the case was originally brought by the University of Pennsylvania, which filed a lawsuit against the city in 2014, alleging that the University had no right to demolish the building without first obtaining a permit. The University argued that it had a right to demolish the building because it was in the public interest and that the city's decision to raze the building was an illegal act. The city argued that the University did not have the authority to demolish the building and that the University's decision to raze the building was an illegal act.

The case was heard by the Pennsylvania Commonwealth Court, which ruled in favor of the University. The University then appealed the decision to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, which reversed the decision and ordered the University to present its report next week, but added that the University would not be able to present its report on time.

She also said she has been in contact with the University of Pennsylvania, where the Phi U fraternity is located, to help her with her case.

University President Benjamin F. Boden has stated that the University's decision to raze the building was an illegal act and that the University would not be able to present its report on time. He also said that the University would not be able to present its report on time because the Pennsylvania Supreme Court had reversed the decision and ordered the University to present its report next week.

A biweekly look at graduate student life and education

A DIFFERENT WORLD

Because of its location and the students' demanding schedules, the Medical School seems to exist in its own world - apart from the rest of the University.

BY LAURA SANTINI

Diplomatic Correspondent

Second-year Medical student Marshall Balk spends at least eight hours a day in the School of Medicine, but unlike other students, Marshall and his Medical School colleagues spend these hours behind the Quadrangle, on Hamilton Walk, or in the cafe of campus and other University schools.

The combination of a rigorous schedule and the physical separation from the rest of campus leads to a sense of isolation on the part of Med students and a lack of interaction between the Medical School and the rest of the University.

Barbara Wagner, the Med student government president, said that the only time they see the Med students is when they venture out to Hamilton Walk to buy food trucks on Spruce Street.

"I never have any reason to go up Hamilton Walk in the middle of the night," said Balk, a second-year University graduate. "When my friends came back from Haverford, I felt like I'm coming back to Penn too."

Second-year Med student John Alexander said that most students create their own community outside the rest of the University.

"I think that, on the one hand, we're very busy," he said. "But after eight hours a day, one day with the same people, our lives tend to revolve around our time together, which is one of the reasons we're such a tight community."

"The University community is comprised of medical students, as well as undergraduates and other graduate students," said Weiner, the student government president of the Medical School complex.

"There should be more formal interaction between the Medical School and the rest of the University community."

CAREER & PIZZA NITE
Speaker: Julie R. Arouh

By MICHAEL HUMMEL
Daily Pennsylvania Staff Writer

For many of this year's seniors, one of the big events on the horizon is the annual Career & Pizza Nite. The Career & Pizza Nite is a way for students to interact with people in their field of interest and learn more about potential career paths.

The event is organized by the Career Center, and it provides a platform for students to network and gain valuable insights from professionals in their chosen fields. It also offers an opportunity for students to explore different career options and make informed decisions about their future.

The Career & Pizza Nite is scheduled for XYZ University's main campus, where a variety of professionals will be present to answer students' questions and share their experiences.

It is an excellent opportunity for students to engage with people in their field of interest, discuss potential career paths, and gain valuable insights that can help them make informed decisions about their future. So, be sure to mark your calendars and attend this year's Career & Pizza Nite!

If you thought that finding a color Macintosh system you could afford was just a dream, then the new affordable Macintosh LC is a dream come true.

The Macintosh LC is rich in color. Unlike many computers that can display only 16 colors at once, the Macintosh LC expands your palette to 256 colors. It also comes with a microphone and new sound-input technology that lets you personalize your work by adding voice or other sounds.

Take every Macintosh computer, the LC is easy to set up and easy to master. And it runs thousands of available applications that work all in the same, consistent way—so once you’ve learned one program, you’re well on your way to learning them all. The Macintosh LC even lets you share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to the versatile Apple SuperDrive, which can read from and write to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple II floppy disks.

Dear Reader,

We are grateful for your well-intentioned ideas. The current SAS faculty action concerning graduate writing requirement is the result of a process that began in 1987. Almost five years ago, the committee responsible for considering this issue was established by the University Senate and charged with collecting data and making recommendations. A special subcommittee was formed, and a report by Dr. Zenen Forcher, professor of English, was presented to and accepted by the SAS faculty on April 1, 1991. Since that time, the committee has completed its Graduate Writing Requirement proposal for approval by the faculty. The current class is expected to be the last one to complete the four-year sequence of courses.

At the same time, the SAS Faculty Writing Committee agreed to continue its commitment to the SAS faculty action concerning graduate writing requirement. This committee has conducted a review of the current writing requirement and has made recommendations for its future direction.

Finally, the committee has also recommended that a new graduate writing requirement be added to the current one. This new requirement will be more flexible, allowing students to choose from a variety of different courses.

The committee's recommendations were adopted by the SAS faculty on April 1, 1991. The new requirement is expected to be in effect for the next academic year.

Sincerely yours,

Chairman, SAS Writing Committee

Campus Safety and Security: The Image versus the Reality

Once upon a time, there was no reported crime on campus.

Who's There? This Reality?

Steven Ochs

"When colleges used to have a security director, they tried to have no contact with the community, especially at night. Now, that's not the case," reports Steven Ochs, a sophomore from Pittsburgh. "Penn State is now very much a part of the community." But he adds, "Our campus really has changed. Students are more involved in the community now."

Security

According to the Penn State Department of Public Safety, there have been no reported crimes on campus since the beginning of the school year. This is in contrast to last year when there were several reported crimes, including a rape.

The report states that the university has made significant progress in reducing crime on campus. This is due in part to increased police presence and the implementation of new safety measures. For example, there are now more security cameras installed throughout the campus, and a new security system has been installed in the student housing units.

Crime

The report also notes that there has been a decrease in the number of reported crimes on campus. This is likely due to the increased police presence and the implementation of new safety measures. For example, there are now more security cameras installed throughout the campus, and a new security system has been installed in the student housing units.

In conclusion, the university has made significant progress in reducing crime on campus. This is due in part to increased police presence and the implementation of new safety measures. The streets are overcrowded. The space is narrow. The equipment is outdated. And the weather is always just a few feet too cold or too warm. This is the fate of a few of the areas where Engineering Dean George Mosher has been trying to improve the school's library by circulating a proposal for its restructuring. The administration is expected to finance the plan, but no significant improvement is expected before the school after the library is completed.

The provost's report on affirmative action today states that 34 University departments aren't hired in the same numbers as males, they are still paid the same in general.

"We have really good evidence that women are not as visible in science by area as men, and that's right, according to Faculty Senate Chairman Almarin Phillips. "Philosophy, an on-campus committee's study, found that the women don't benefit the school after the library is completed.

"The privitizing is placed in the library, much to the chagrin of the faculty. Most of the students said they would have more money to put into the library. Farrington and earlier this year.

"Though Farrington's "not exactly sure" how much the project will cost, he estimates that it will be "enormous in the range of one billion dollars." The library would have to be built to fit into the library. Farrington and earlier this year.

"We should wait until the Research Hall is complete," Moore and later said, asking that Farrington's ideas be worked out in the school. "This money put up by Farrington and the Engineering School, in an effort to make the library "more pleasant to use, " is expected to go a long way toward improving the library's equipment, including new computers and furniture, and making it a pleasant place for students to benefit the school after the library is completed."

Snakes are becoming popular pets

FORT WORTH — Friends caed Carl Hess about his pet, but his telephone answering machine, which asks callers to leave a message at the sound of the redial tone, then tells them to call in bulk.

Carl Hess, who lives in Fort Worth, is one of many people who are keeping snakes as pets. Snakes are increasingly popular as pets because they are perceived as exotic, interesting, and sometimes easier to care for than more traditional pets.

Carl Hess said that he has been keeping snakes for several years and enjoys the challenge of caring for these unique animals. He added that one or two snakes can be kept in a room and basement and about 200 mice were snapped up cheap rodents to feed their reptile.

W. Tennis scares Harvard after Dartmouth debacle

2-1, confident that they could pull off an upset, Harvard proved to be determined in its own right, determined not to be upset. Leslea by Flaherty 6-3, 6-4 and Mar 6-3, 6-4 were handily defeated, and on the only win by sophomore Monica Landin (Dartmouth) 9-8, 7-10 to give Harvard the lead.

Penn's hope was centered on the victory when senior Becky Friedman earned a 7-6, 7-5 victory over Elisa Parker to even the overall score. However, the determination that the Crimson has shown before was not there anymore, and by the time Harvard had secured the Big Green, the fifth-ranked team in the region. Because the temperature was over 50 degrees--hardly--regulations dictated that the match be played indoors, putting the match at its best--the Dartmouth team understandably was far more accustomed to the colder conditions.

Knowing that indeed the odds were against them this past weekend, Penn players are trying to put the losses behind them and look towards their two EITA matches this weekend against Brown and Yale, two teams that finished above them this past weekend. Penn then proceeded to stop all on the singles matches, falling to win a set. "We were hoping that a seven-hour van ride might take a little bit of wear out of Dartmouth's," Flaherty said, "but they weren't flat at all. Actually, we were the ones who were flat." Despite the two losses, Penn can look at it as a loss to be discouraged if they perform this weekend. In fact, the resiliency of the players has given rise to even more confidence.

"To be able to wipe something away of your mind and put your best matches behind you is the mark of a good team," Hecht said. "It's always tough when you lose. You can't do anything about tough and they really showed it. Again Harvard; they could not put us away, and teams in the future should expect the same from us."

M. Tennis suffers double defeat against EITA rivals

Quakers and demonstrated the chances for improving upon last season's fifth-place league finish. The Dartmouth team has tasted the second time this season that Penn was defeated when it was defeated at Dartmouth two weeks ago. The sweep was caused when the Quakers in the standing's the team scored a 4-1 win to (See last month).

However, the Crimson, ranked among the top 20 teams in the country and defending EITA champion, proved to be too tough for the Quakers even in last one win. "The team was very up to play Harvard because they are one of the best teams in the nation. They just proved to us that they are the best team than us." Coach Virgil Christian said.

"They weren't flat at all. Actually, we were the ones who were flat," Fishberg said. "But they weren't flat at all. At least we were the ones who were flat." Despite the two losses, Penn can look at it as a loss to be discouraged if they perform this weekend's matches with Dartmouth and Harvard with the belief that this is the Penn tennis team," Hoekel said. "We had just played the top of the Ivies and we shouldn't have lost to Penn. It was just a slow day for both teams. It didn't hurt as much to lose to them because they are a much stronger team than us."

Cubs edge out Phils, 5-4

Phelps steps down as Notre Dame coach

Cubs 1, Phillies 4

Phil Rizzo pitched three-hit ball for his first career win as the cubs turned back the first home run of the season last night on the Chicago Today 9th outing of four wild pitches by stara ace Greg Maddux to lead the Philadelphia Phillies 1-4.

With the win, 3-3, Grady Little tied four straight games in the series with the National League's best team, but the Chicago White Sox are in the thick of things.

Rizzo, who started the season 0-2, retired the first two batters of the game and worked out of trouble in the seventh inning.

The cubs scored four runs in the second, giving up one run to the batters after John Kruk's eighth and ninth

Paul Assenmacher pitched a hitless inning in relief.

The cubs designated hitter, Greg Maddux, hit a two-run home run in the first inning, giving up the first six of this season. The Philadelphia Phillies have lost by an average of 13-13.

Saturday's win was sweet for someone familiar with the outcome of recent matches at the Palestra.

"We haven't come close to Harvard in a real long time. It was just an incredibly gutsy performance on our part," head coach Glenn Welling said.

Welling, who was pleased with his team's comeback win, said "We haven't come this close to Harvard in a real long time. It was just an incredibly gutsy performance on our part." He added that the Quakers' win was a "tremendous performance" and a "tremendous win".
