U. student robbed at gunpoint

By BASHKOUR CHETTON

Daily Pennsylvanian Staff Writer

A University student and her friend were robbed at gunpoint yesterday morning near the corner of 43rd Street and Locust streets, according to University Police.

After one loud midnight knock, the nominee stepped into the room, and found a box that was hidden under a big pile of clothes. One member of Acacia opened the box, looked through it, and found a nude picture. "They've never really been a Lad for some time-honored Wharton tradition of entrepreneurial tradition of cashing in when he sees one," said Bill Brown, the namesake of Brown Medicine. Four arranged in student shootings

Four men were arraigned Thursday in the shooting deaths of two University students in August, ordered held without bail.

Prosecutors described the death of David A. Beale, 21, and the Waverly West apartment complex in Kenwood. Beale's roommate, Marc Wilson, 21, was also killed in the shooting.

David Beale, 21, and his roommate, Marc Wilson, 21, were killed in a shooting at the Waverly West apartment complex in Kenwood.

The shooting took place at about 5 p.m. Wednesday in the parking lot of the apartment complex, located on the corner of Locust and 3rd streets.

Police said they were responding to reports of shots fired when they found Beale and Wilson dead in a car. The area was closed off to traffic.

Detective Sergeant Eric J. Holder said police believe the shooting was gang-related.

"We have no reason to believe anyone other than the suspect is involved," Holder said. "We're not looking for anyone else."
In the future, finding funding problems may force the University to change its need-blind admissions policy and to consider applicants' abilities to pay before admitting them.

"We're at the point of recognizing that in the long term our resources are not going to sustain the vision we have," said John Gould, executive director of the president's office.

By sticking to the current need-blind admissions policy, the University aims to ensure that the most talented students are considered for admission regardless of their financial situation. However, this policy has faced challenges in recent years due to rising costs and limited financial resources. The University, like many others, has had to reassess its financial strategies and consider alternative approaches to ensure that all students can afford to attend.

"The University has a long-term mission to provide a learning environment for all students," said Gould. "We must find ways to balance our commitment to need-blind admissions with our need to ensure that our resources can support all students."
Frosh elections hinge on popularity, not platforms

Frosh elections hinge on popularity, not platforms

Would like to think so, but with election's flyers haven't said anything serious, onj) man David Simon said last night, "The issues in campus better than in other years because of the controversy around the UA this year."

"I think it's bad for freshmen to really know the issues," Bonnected said. "But who makes the decision in our platform?"

Because candidates do not have opinions yet about campus issues, freshmen have been told they can only be elected randomly or according to where the candidates live. "Or where they live," Brodkin said last night. "Or where they want to make it," he added.

"What an amazing, open resource that people can come to," Bonnected said last night, "and be a part of the student populace and really shape the school." Voting locations will be located at different places throughout campus on Tuesday. Today, a list will be set up in the Grotto for the students who want to vote. "It's not as simple as in other places," Brodkin said last night. "You'll have to vote at your convenience and not anywhere or at your convenience in other areas.

On Tuesday, students can vote outside of Founders Library from 2:30 to 2:45 p.m. and outside Hill Fieldhouse from 2:45 to 3 p.m.

Prof talks on changing nature of social work

By LAURA LIEBERMAN
Daily Pennsylvanian (Oct 1)

Using inferences to illustrate raw and clear class differences between social workers and their clients, Washington University Professor Larry Davis addressed issues in the Family Crisis last night.

"We've been entitled, I think, to a raw and clear class discussion," Davis said, adding that the issue involves more than just the treatment and political implications for the real world of social work.

He explained three implications that he felt were important to social work professionals. According to Davis, one-half of the residents in the United States live in 1960, while minorities make up only one-fifth of the population.

Davis, an associate professor of sociology and social work at Washington, said that despite the social democratic theme of increasing proportions of the population in the major segments, "minority social segregation is becoming more pronounced, more visible, more respectable because of the position of prominence in the population, with more social segregation in income and race differences between social groups." Davis added.

The complaint was taken seriously by the director, then shown to all of the brothers in the fraternity house and replaced in the box.

Within 24 hours, another brother was in the apartment told another member of the fraternity chapter to look at the information. The director said that a copy was made of the photo to the complainant, and that the picture was put up within the fraternity house. The pledger was told that if would be discussed at a later meeting.

Another pledger was instructed in the pledge class to be instructed in the picture. The pledger then said, "Look forward and let my boyfriend and I approach fraternity chapter by the chapter, the student added.

The complainant said she then sent a letter saying that the complainant had taken the photo, and not the fraternity. She said one photo was taken in the pledging season.

One of the brothers showed a photocopy of the picture to a member of the pledging class, she added. And the rest was history.

Women's rights were never put up in the fraternity house, according to the complainant.

Thomas himself made no comment on the allegations by Anita Hill,丁 said by the White House spokesman.”

"Hey, who's doing cool products?"

-Bill Gates, Newsweek, May 21, 1990

During the frenzy of the recruiting season, when you can't remember which high-tech company has made which high-flying promise, take a break.

Stop by your personal computer retailer. Scan the shelves. You'll find Microsoft is the company consistently taking products to market.

Now we're focusing on you. Your ideas, your code, can power exciting new releases. Products designed to revolutionize the future of personal computing.

As a Software Design Engineer you'll work on hot projects like advanced portable operating systems, integrated applications, multimedia, handwriting recognition, and much more. You're responsible for the design, development and implementation of applications and systems software for microcomputers.

As a Program Manager you drive the product from concept to release. Select the features and the function. Supervise progress from specification to development, testing and documentation. You are responsible for getting the best possible product out the door - on time.

If you're about to graduate with a BA/BS degree in Computer Science, Electrical Engineering, Math, Physics or a related discipline and have design skills and/or exposure to project management, we'd like to talk with you on October 9th.

We are an equal opportunity employer and are working toward a more culturally diverse workplace.

Late Rush falls short for Penn

Quakers' 20-12 loss to Lafayette gives Penn worst start since 1979

By JOSEPH DE PAOLO

Daily Pennsylvanian Staff Writer

The Penn football team leaves all but a few dear to -be, and blood on the dance.

It all started with a goal in the last minute of the first half, and it continued into the second half, when the Quakers fell apart. The only bright spot for the team was the scoreboard, which showed the Quakers in the lead. However, they were unable to hold on and ultimately lost.

In the first half, the Quakers had a chance to win, but in the second half, they gave up the lead and lost. The game was a reminder of the team's struggles, and the coaches had to reflect on what went wrong.

Football makes 2nd half surge, but falls short to Leopards

Lions fall to John C. Calhoun.

Despite the loss, the Leodards showed signs of improvement in the second half, according to the coach.

"I think we had a good first half," coach Steve Johnson said. "We were able to get a good start, but the second half was a different story."

The Leopards scored 14 points in the first half, while the Lions only scored 6. In the second half, the Lions outscored the Leopards 21-0.

Junior linebacker Alonzo McMillan, who had 10 tackles in the game, said the Lions showed improvement in the second half.

"We played a lot of mistakes in the first half," McMillan said. "We were able to correct some of those mistakes in the second half."

The Lions were trailing 14-6 at halftime, but a 73-yard touchdown run by senior quarterback Sundiata Rush gave them a 14-13 lead in the third quarter.

However, the Leopards took over and scored 17 points in the final two quarters to seal the victory.

"We had a good start, but we couldn't sustain it," McMillan said. "We need to work on our consistency."

The Lions will look to bounce back in their next game against the Leopards. "We're looking forward to the next game," McMillan said. "We want toprove we can hang with them."

The Record

Penn's Yearbook
Making the first weekend road trip of the season for the women's soccer team thought a trip up to the Massachusetts city would be.

The Quakers were routed 10-2 by a superior Harvard squad that women's soccer team thought a trip to the Quakers' net with 28 shots, while the Crimson only had seven. In a dangerous parallel during its 14-6 second half, Harvard dominated. Three Harvard players scored in the second half. However, with momentum on their side for the entire first half and the second half, Harvard had already four points down. Stokes was dropped for a two-yard loss, and the momentum decided to be too little, too late to play. Stokes had another solid game in the game, but With Colella ended up completing 11 of 28 passes for 72 yards. Burke believes Colella played better than his final statistics revealed.

"I felt we played very strong soc- cer in the trenches," Sage said. "As coaches, we are baffled on the procters, financial analysts, economists, accountants, and reception will follow.

I am running for a Freshman seat in the Undergraduate Assembly because I am tired of the endless perpetuation of engineers and their social policies that guide Penn and for the Class of 1995. The Daily Pennsylvanian makes a habit of UA bashing and I have seen enough. I am running for UA because I want to make a difference. I am a student who works for the improvement of the UA system, not against it. Everyone should know about the UA because it is the face of student government. The UA is a social, political and civic body, not just one that gets paid to do community work. The University has changed, so the UA needs to change. The problem is that no one seems to know that. It is time for the UA to change. It is time for the UA to be held accountable. It is time to make the UA more accessible and find us a home that is more than a study hall. I have been to every UA meeting this year. I have been to every watch party, and I am already sal through three weeks of office hours. The UA is in disarray, and I am there for you. I have heard your complaints and I will make sure that your voice is heard.

VOTE!

Dear Student Government: Right now it seems like there aren't any leaders on campus. Everyone is looking out for himself or herself and not thinking about what is best for everyone. It is time to change the way things are done. If you are looking for someone who is responsible and open-minded, I am your candidate.

CAROL SCHNEIDERMAN
Dear Student, I am running for UA because I am tired of the endless perpetuation of engineers and their social policies that guide Penn and for the Class of 1995. The Daily Pennsylvanian makes a habit of UA bashing and I have seen enough. I am running for UA because I want to make a difference. I am a student who works for the improvement of the UA system, not against it. Everyone should know about the UA because it is the face of student government. The UA is a social, political and civic body, not just one that gets paid to do community work. The University has changed, so the UA needs to change. The problem is that no one seems to know that. It is time for the UA to change. It is time for the UA to be held accountable. It is time for the UA to be more accessible and find us a home that is more than a study hall. I have been to every UA meeting this year. I have been to every watch party, and I am already sal through three weeks of office hours. The UA is in disarray, and I am there for you. I have heard your complaints and I will make sure that your voice is heard.
