Last week's Economy'd fader Sex Week workshops enjoyed greater attendance than the AIDS Awareness Workshops even though both were part of HIV/AIDS Awareness Week.

The Student Health Office of Health Education organized both informational sessions and entertainment to raise awareness about AIDS.

The workshops were made in an effort to be "culturally relevant," she added.

"It was really effective. Different types of people would not have been as interested in the workshops as those that were discussed in the workshops for homossexual" people," she added "That [the decision] is very disappointing," said the University's admissions head, Dwight Evans.

"That is not necessary. We are not connecting the two at all. We're proceeding on the basis of throwing out these types of provisions," he said.

"I don't know," said Kerrey after a short interview. "I don't know what's going to happen tomorrow. I don't know what's going to happen the day after that."

But Kerrey did step in for a quick bite with the help of President daughters. The president's daughter attended the workshop for Straight Women and the president's son attended the Workshop for Straight Men.

"That [the decision] is very disappointing," said the University's admissions head, Dwight Evans. "We're proceeding on the basis of throwing out these types of provisions."

Clinton gets boost from N.H. ralliers

By SCOTT CALVERT
Daily Press staff writer

Senior Mike Malone, a Hendrix College political science major from Conway, Arkansas, endorsed Democratic hopeful Paul Tsongas Monday evening at the McClelland Hall Cabaret. Malone, a Scottish exchange student, said that to protect the environment, support nuclear power plant. "It is the only power plant," Malone said.

Malone's endorsement speech was the first of nine issued Monday night. Clinton's supporters were delighted and sang "Roll Tide, Roll Tide." The crowd shouted together, "We want Paul, we want Paul." Some Clinton supporters even chanted "Bill Clinton, Bill Clinton." Malone said he was "very impressed with the possible candidate." However, Malone also said that Tsongas "has a more conservative alternative to the pro-environment stance." Malone said that Tsongas "will receive support from people who do not care about the environment." Malone said that his speech was "a little bit of a one-sided way up north, but it's important in this election" to talk about the environment.

The Clinton rally, held in a local restaurant, featured supporters of supporters who wildly cheered for Clinton throughout their speech.

Rather than being as important as people in the past, Hart and New Hampshire residents may see that their state is holding a "Tsongas/Chevron" type of election. Hart joined the weekend with an audience of college students throughout the state.

"I still find it weird," he said. "But it's getting better."

The students who had made the trip to New Hampshire for the rally to support Clinton's presidential nomination had not heard of the rally until the night before.

"I'm going to be in New Hampshire," Malone said.

During a rally in Concord, Massachusetts yesterday, Democratic presidential hopeful Paul Tsongas emphasized his push against President Bush's policies.

Tsongas gains last day strength

By SCOTT CALVERT

Tsongas, who holds a strong lead over Bill Clinton in New England polls, warned that the businesses could cost tens of thousands of dollars. Democratic leaders who are on a class trip moderated by Ashley Burkeart and Ashley Burkeart, a sophomore at Tufts University who is in town with her American Civilization class, were more passionate about Tsongas than Paul Winter, a junior studying politics at the University of Pennsylvania.

"Mr. Tsongas, I believe, represents a more conservative, alternative to the pro-nuclear stance," Winter said.

"I'm afraid it was actually Paul Tsongas who said that the Cold War is over and Japan and German people are not afraid of us. I have thought that before," he said.

Then Tsongas endorsed Clinton at the alternative to the pro-nuclear stance.

But Tsongas did not want more than a context in which to address that many people that he's in a "rational candidate," who will never put a war on the table.

"Mr. Tsongas, I believe, represents a more conservative, alternative to the pro-nuclear stance," Winter said.

Dahmer sentenced

MILWAUKEE — Serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer was sentenced to life in prison yesterday after some relations of his 15 victims called him a devil and Dahmer told the jury, "I will never be able to forgive me."

Dahmer was shown-faced and spoke to a low murmure as he described his crimes in a black suit with a red stripe down the side of each pant leg. He then turned to Yoneh's family and spoke, "I will never be able to forgive me."

Moments before, nine relatives of Dahmer's victims, many wearing picture pins of their loved ones, wept at the hearse as it pulled away with the body. The relatives had lived in fear of their lives because of Dah-mer's threats.

"I hope God has forgiven me," Dahmer said. "I take all the blame for what I did," he said.

The former chocolate factory worker confessed to 17 slayings of young men and boys he lured to his home in Ohio and Wisconsin.

"I must blame the leaders of the IRA for sending these young persons out on an open mission," Barak said.

"We are deployed defensively as well as offensively to react," Lieutenant General Ehud Barak said on army radio. "If there will not be calm... the saboteurs of the calm will have to be avenged!"

"I am sorry for what I did," he said.

During the trial, Dahmer's attoryee, David Babcock, charged that dahmer's crimes not as acts of raiding. Dahmer said he never meant to kill his victims but later developed a "death wish." Dahmer declared that he would kill his next victim if he could. Dahmer pleaded guilty but insane.

Cavs edge Bulls at Chicago, 113-112

Jordan's 46 not enough; Pitt's shots can't seem to find the hoop

Chicago's Craig Ehlo had four points in the final 2:12, including a game-winning layup with 0.3 second on the clock to give the Bulls a 113-112 win over the Philadelphia 76ers today. It was the third loss in 26 games for the Sixers this season.

The Bulls' victory was their sixth in a row at Chicago Stadium, where they have posted a 113-112 record since 1982-83.

The Bulls also improved to 19-3 in the United Center, where they have won 11 of their last 12 games.

The 76ers, who had won six of their last seven games, lost for the first time in 12 games at the United Center.

Pittsburgh 85, Wisconsin 69

The Panthers' nine-game winning streak came to an end as the Badgers rallied from a 10-point deficit in the final three minutes to sweep the Panthers 85-69.

The Panthers, who had defeated the Badgers three times this season, were paced by Darrell Griffith, who scored 24 points for the Panthers.

The Panthers' nine-game winning streak was the longest in the nation since the 1970-71 season.

Michigan 81, Minnesota 79

The Wolverines scored 12 points in the final 1:05 to pull away for a 81-79 win over the Gophers.

Michigan's victory gave it a 12-3 record in the Big Ten and a 19-3 overall record.

Michigan State 80, Ohio State 76

The Spartans' fifth consecutive victory clinched a 4-0 conference record.

The Spartans, who have won 12 of their last 14 games, are now 19-3 overall.

Michigan 92, Wisconsin 70

The Wolverines' 12th consecutive victory was their 11th straight over the Badgers.

The Badgers, who lost for the first time in 13 games this season, were led by J.R. Stocks, who scored 24 points.

The Badgers' streak of 12 consecutive victories was the longest in the nation since the 1970-71 season.

Indiana 119, Penn State 76

The Hoosiers' 10th consecutive victory was their 11th straight over the Nittany Lions.

The Nittany Lions, who lost for the first time in 13 games this season, were led by Mike Figes, who scored 24 points.

The Nittany Lions' streak of 12 consecutive victories was the longest in the nation since the 1970-71 season.

Washington 82, Oregon 77

The Huskies' eighth consecutive victory was their 11th straight over the Ducks.

The Ducks, who lost for the first time in 13 games this season, were led by Greg Mathias, who scored 24 points.

The Ducks' streak of 12 consecutive victories was the longest in the nation since the 1970-71 season.

Backstroker Bak is back and at her best

By STEPHEN KARASIK Daily Pennsylvanian Sports Writer

"It's hard to get used to sitting and watching all the meets, especially since the team was having some tough times. I just wished that I could go down there and swim to help the team."

Senior Jackie Bak practices her backstroke yesterday at Sheerr Pool. Bak has braved illness and injury to have her finest season as a Quaker this year. She will compete in seven events this year's Eastern Regional Championships.

"I don't think I would have done as well in our trip to England this year. I put a real strain on our budget."

"The only reason for the team not swimming well during the season was gone. It wasn't too extravagant."

"It was hard to get used to sitting and watching all the meets, especially since the team was having some tough times. I just wished that I could go down there and swim to help the team."

With less than two weeks remaining before the all-important Heps season, the Penn men's indoor track team has begun its last minute preparations.

As a result, the whole front part of the season was gone. It wasn't too extravagant."
